ENGLAND'S NEW LADY OPEN GOLF CHAMPION.

Miss Molly A. Graham of the Royal Liverpool Golfers has, by winning the lady's open golf championship of England, added another honor to a family long known and respected in the world of sport. Her father was a splendid athlete and two of her brothers are famous also, one for his golfing prowess and the other as a racquet player. Taught golfing chiefly by her father and watching others, Miss Graham has an easy style and a pretty swing. She has carried off prizes at Hoylake, where she learned to play, ever since she was 5 years old, and is at present the holder of two scratch medals won at the West Lancashire Ladies' club and at Moreton. Miss Graham has also distinguished herself as a mountaineer, having made the first ascent of the season of the Pis-Bernina, in the Engadine, in July, 1900, a climb of seventeen hours. Miss Graham prides herself on being Scotch, but as the championship cup is in the keeping of the Hoylake club, both Scotch and English golfers proudly claim her as one of themselves.

ILLINOIS HOLDS WARSHIP RECORD.

Goes at Average Sustained Speed of 17:31 Nautical Miles an Hour on Trial Trip.

FASTEST IN THE WORLD.

Takes the Broom from Wisconsin, Which Made at Best 17:12 Knots Sustained Speed.

WAS NOT PUSHED TO LIMIT.

STORY OF BOAT'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—American progress in naval construction was again exemplified today when the battleship Illinois, on its trial trip over the measured course of sixty-six nautical miles off Cape Ann, proved itself the fastest of the ten completed battleships of Uncle Sam's navy, and showed that it is also, without much doubt, the fastest of its class in the world.

Its average sustained speed during the trial was 17.31 knots an hour. This is better than was done by either of the other two ships in the same class, the Alabama and the Wisconsin. The latter, built and given a trial on the Pacific coast, steamed 17.12.

The broom that sweeps records for battleships of the new navy is brought back from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and was hoisted today to the foretruck of the Illinois.

Far Above Requirement.

Admiral Evans, President of the trial board of naval officers, says three-quarters of a knot more could have been obtained with a little driving.

The ship's record for the outward 33 miles of the measured course from Cape Ann to off Boon Island was 17.36 knots. On the return it made 17.26, giving an average of 17.31.

The time for the outward run was 1 hour 45 minutes 4 seconds, and for the home run, 1 hour 54 minutes 42 seconds.

Trial Board on Ship.

Associated with Admiral Evans on board were Captain C. J. Train, Captain J. H. Hemphill, Commander Charles E. Vreeland, Lieutenant Commander Richard Henderson, Lieutenant Commander T. S. Rodgers, and Commander J. J. Woodward, Naval Instructor.

They were accompanied by various minor naval officers, including Commander Frank Harvey Bailey and Lieutenants A. C. Herbert and C. E. Romwell of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, Lieutenant Arthur P. Fairfield, and Naval Cadets William Norris, Wallace Berthoff, M. H. Lemmons, and Holden C. Richardson.

The navy yard tug Iwana arrived at Lewis wharf at 6:40 a. m. with Admiral Sampson on board, as well as Captain Wadleigh of the receiving ship Wabash, Lieutenant Commander George W. Mentz, and Surgeon G. H. Beyer. As soon as Admiral Evans and his party had boarded the tug it started down the bay, followed by the tug Confidence with about 100 guests of the builders of the Illinois on board.

Turns Out for Start.

The Illinois weighed anchor at 7:55 and started slowly to turn toward the channel. The ship passed Boston light at 8:25 and steamed slowly out to Harding's Ledge whistling buoy, near which the boat came to a stop to put off Pilot Low.

In the run across the bay from Boston light there was ample time to work up the Illinois' speed to a pitch that would send the ship across the line at the first stakeboat off Cape Ann at its best pace.

The ship's coal was all hand picked and of uniform size. It burned as freely as tar and sent out two long spirals of black smoke from the tall twin stacks.

The builders approached the trial with feelings of perfect confidence. There was no nervousness nor excitement to be observed in any one as the ship surged forward to the line. But by the grim aspect of the ship itself, the great trail of black smoke streaming low behind for miles.

Passes the First Mark Boat.

The first mark boat, the converted yacht Hist, was in sight just before 10 o'clock, and twelve minutes past that hour the ship crossed the starting line with the engines registering 117 revolutions to the minute.

The ship passed mark boat No. 2, the training ship Lancaster, at a seventeen-knot gait, 22:53 after the start. The next mark, the old Essex, was picked up 23:20 later, the Newport in 22:12, the Peoria in 23:03, and the naval tug Potomac at buoy No. 6, indicating the end of the thirty-three-knot run northward in 22:36.

For a part of the northward run the Illinois had reached a speed of 17.84 knots an hour, and at no time did it drop below 16.97. Buoy 6 was passed at 12:06:07, showing elapsed time for the run of 1:45:04 and an average speed for the thirty-three knots of 17.36 nautical miles.

On rounding the stake the battleship was given two complete turns, the first to starboard and the other to port, both at full speed. The ship turned gracefully, taking only a slight heel and steering easily. It was found the vessel turned in practically three times its length, with both engines going ahead at full speed, and made the complete circle in three minutes.

Record on Return Trip.

On the return the elapsed time between buoys was about the same as during the first half of the trial. Again the ship reached a maximum speed of 17.84, with a minimum of 16.97. The finish line was passed, and the speed trial was over at 1:18:33, the elapsed time being 1:54:42, and the average speed for the second half of the trial 17.26.

The completed figures for the entire sixty-six knots gave 3:48:46 elapsed time, and the average speed of 17.31 knots per hour. Tidal corrections may make slight alterations in these figures, but the changes are not likely to affect the result materially.

GET WRIT AND BALK RAID

POWERS & O'BRIEN STOP CHIEF OF POLICE O'NEILL'S MEN.

Detectives Call at the Saloon to Look for Gambling Outfit, and While They Are Waiting, at the Bartender's Suggestion, Judge Haney Issues an Injunction That Ties the Hands of the Invaders — Woes Possible for Derby Bettors.

An anti-gambling campaign freshly undertaken by Chief of Police O'Neill received a sudden check yesterday when Judge Haney, in the Circuit Court, issued an injunction to restrain the Chief and his "plain clothes" detectives from entering the premises of Powers & O'Brien at 170 Madison street, from removing the safe or desks on the premises, or from in any manner interfering with the business "there conducted by Powers & O'Brien."

The service of the injunction was coincident in point of time with a raid on the saloon and "adjuncts" by eight detectives from Chief O'Neill's office.

Bartender Plays for Delay.

The raid was balked, however, before the court writ was secured, by a ruse invented by a bartender. Armed with a search warrant and with orders from the chief to seize all gambling paraphernalia in the place, the policemen entered the saloon and displayed their warrant. The proprietors were not in and the police were informed by the bartender that he did not know the combination to two safes in the rear of the saloon, in which the detectives believed a gambling outfit was hidden.

The men from "Central" agreed to wait an hour for the return of the proprietors. The hour had scarcely elapsed when Edward B. Healy, 522 Reaper Block, appeared on the scene with the injunction.

Much disappointed, the officers returned to Chief O'Neill's office and reported to him their failure.

Plaint of Alderman Powers.

Judge Haney issued the injunction on the presentation of a bill of complaint in which Powers & O'Brien declare that they are conducting a legitimate saloon and bowling alley business, and that detectives have frequented the premises since June 1, making threats and talking in loud tones. It was further declared that the detectives sought to open the private safe of the firm and also demanded that they be admitted to all of the rooms in the building.

Alderman John Powers, whose name is affixed to the petition, asserts that, as he did not know the combination on the safe lock, he was unable to open it for inspection. Thereupon, he asserts, the detectives declared they would take the safe away to open it.

Perry Hull Favors Writ.

The bill was examined by Master in Chancery Perry A. Hull, who recommended that the injunction be issued.

The Chief of Police said after the writ of injunction was served: "The officers who were sent to Powers & O'Brien's saloon had a search warrant, and were after gambling implements and handbooks, which were described in the warrant."

The Corporation Counsel now has the warrant on which the attempted search was made. The warrant describes racing form charts, handbooks, registered bets, and other paraphernalia for gambling purposes. It was issued by Justice Prindiville on June 11.

Woes for Derby Bettors.

Meanwhile, the man who wants to wager his money at the Washington Park track when the American Derby is run on Saturday, June 22, may have to dodge a small army of policemen and detectives and then be accommodated only at a handbook conducted on the "New York" plan. Chief of Police O'Neill, stirred by the troubles of the poolsellers at the Harlem track, began yesterday to make inquiries as to what plans the venders of pools and the Washington Park club officials are making. He refuses to state just what action he will take if he finds the bookmakers lading out their tickets and offering alluring odds to the man who wants to wager his money.

"I'll handle the problem when the time comes," was the Chief's statement.

Have No Reform Notions.

The officials of the club are not making public their intentions, but they admit that, unless the Mayor interferes, the methods of last year's meet will control. At that time, when Sidney Lucas galloped home at the head of the Derby candidates, more than thirty poolsellers were conducting a land office business in the betting ring beneath the grand stand. Thus, it is said, the bookmaker will be crying his odds on Saturday week unless Chief O'Neill, or Mayor Harrison, puts his foot down.

Out at the clubhouse Secretary James Howard was busy arranging plans for the Derby, but pleaded ignorance of bookmakers and any plans as to poolselling.

"We never have bookmakers out here," he said with a smile. "I've heard lots of talk—it was the same thing last year—about such men, but I haven't seen such a thing as a 'bookmaker' yet. No, sir, we are moral out here and we will do nothing that is contrary to any laws or statutes."

"But how about last year? The betting ring was a busy place then!"

"Why, I never saw a bookmaker out here then," asserted the secretary. "I tell you I've been trying to see one of those fellows and see what kind of a thing he is, but I've never been able to find one. We don't know anything about poolselling and poolsellers out here."

And Mr. Howard laughed at his own little joke.

Meanwhile members of the sporting fraternity are laying plans to do a rushing business with the betting public at this great event of the year on the classic grounds of the Washington Park club.

HARLEM WILL TOLERATE TRACK

President Klimmer Says the Village Will Not Oppose Racing or the Making of Books.

"The Village of Harlem will not officially interfere with the bookmakers at the Harlem racetrack," declared Joseph Klimmer, President of the village, yesterday. "There is no village ordinance prohibiting bookmaking and betting on horse races, and I know of no trustee or citizen advocating such an ordinance." President Klimmer acknowledged that there probably was some trouble coming for the racetrack management, but refused to divulge the nature of it. He declared that it was the Sheriff's duty to investigate any violations of the State law.

LOVELESS, WEBER, KANTER GUILTY.

Testimony of Anna Knabjohann Outweighs That of Fourteen Other Witnesses.

FINE AND IMPRISONMENT.

Jury Gives Conspirators Against Civil Service One to Five Years and $1,000 Forfeiture.

ALL REMANDED TO JAIL.

Believing the testimony of one woman, Miss Anna Knabjohann, though fourteen witnesses contradicted her every statement, the jury in Judge Neely's court last night found David B. Weber, Samuel C. Kanter, and Braman H. Loveless guilty of conspiracy to defeat the civil service law. Imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to five years and a fine of $1,000 was the penalty imposed on each of the defendants. This is almost the extreme penalty allowed by law, the maximum fine being $2,000.

Thirteen days were required for the trial, but the verdict of the jury was reached within two hours, the first ballot being unanimous for conviction. Skilled advocates had made every effort for the acquittal of the trio who were accused of conspiring to sell police lieutenancies at $150 each by furnishing candidates for the civil service examination with advance copies of the questions. One woman was practically the only witness for the State. Miss Knabjohann was formerly bookkeeper and cashier for Weber and Kanter, the money loaners, when they conducted the Chicago Credit company, which had from 1,500 to 2,000 city and county employés in its clutches with loans at high rates of interest.

Testimony of Miss Knabjohann.

Miss Knabjohann had told of the methods of the money lenders; of the proposals made to policemen to sell advance questions at $150 a set; of the famous "night school" in the loan offices, where the candidates who had agreed to pay the price were drilled on the answers they were to make. She had no one to corroborate her testimony. Her transcripts, secretly taken from the books of the firm which Max Weber had destroyed as possible telltale evidence, were laughed at by the three defendants.

Kanter, Weber, and Loveless took the witness chair in turn and denied point blank every charge made by the woman on whom the State relied to prove its charges. She was called a "spy" and a "liar" by the attorneys for the defense. Just before the case went to the jury she sprang to her feet to shout out a denial as Attorney W. S. Forrest referred to her in these terms. Men of all conditions had contradicted her claims that Weber, Kanter, and Loveless were at their offices on the day preceding the examination at the time when the questions were alleged to have been delivered by Loveless.

Jury Retires at 6 O'Clock.

It was but a few moments before 6 o'clock, at the close of a day of arguments for both sides, when Judge Neely finished reading his instructions and gave the case to the jury's hands. Within two hours agreement had been reached, and at 9 o'clock the verdict was pronounced, the three accused men looking about in a dazed way as they heard the finding of guilty.

Seven ballots in all were taken by the jurymen before the penalty was fixed. On the first vote every man declared for conviction. The case of each man was considered separately and the evidence canvassed. It was held that all were equally guilty, and six ballots were taken in the effort to fix the punishment. Nine jurymen demanded the maximum penalty. Three contended that imprisonment was sufficient. In the end a compromise was agreed on, the fine being cut in two.

When the defendants reached the courtroom Weber was accompanied by his brother, Max. With Kanter came his father, his wife, and his sister.

"Whatever the verdict may be," warned Judge Neely, "let there be no manifestation in the courtroom.

The jury then filed in, Foreman William C. Pitts handing the verdict to Court Clerk Brady.

Verdict of Guilty Read.

"You have reached an agreement?" queried Judge Neely. The answer was in the affirmative and Clerk Brady then read:

"We, the jury, find the defendants, Braman H. Loveless, Samuel C. Kanter, and David B. Weber, guilty of conspiracy, in manner and form as charged in the indictment, and we fix their punishment at imprisonment in the penitentiary and at a fine of $1,000 each."

Attorney Forrest was on his feet in a moment.

"We enter a motion for a new trial," he said, and this was allowed.

Loveless continued to rock back and forth in his chair, trying to appear unconcerned as he puffed at an unlighted cigar. Kanter turned white and glanced about in a dazed way as if about to ask if he had heard aright. Weber endeavored to keep up a show of unconcern.

"What about the custody of the defendants?" continued Mr. Forrest. "Will they be admitted to bail?"

"I presume they will be remanded to jail," replied Judge Neely. "I believe that is the custom in this court."

"But can they not be released on bail?"

"I understand that in such a case as this bail cannot be allowed," said the Judge. Then he continued:

"Gentlemen, I remand you to the custody of the Sheriff."

Plead in Vain for Bail.

"Can we not have bail?" insisted Mr. Forrest. "The practice is what the court makes it. We don't care what the amount is. I want to be heard on this, if it please the court. I want to be heard on the decisions of the Supreme Court of Illinois that the term 'conviction' means not the verdict of the jury, but the final judgment of the court, and that these men are to be admitted to bail until the final judgment of the court."

Assistant State's Attorney Barnes opposed this contention, and held that the trio should be remanded to jail. Mr. Forrest tried to continue his argument.

"I agree with Mr. Barnes," said Judge Neely. "I will remand the prisoners for

DR. GUNSAULUS OR NO ONE

ULTIMATUM FROM MILLEDGEVILLE HIGH SCHOOL.

Villagers Set Their Hearts on Hearing Central Church Orator and Seeing Him Present Diplomas to Graduates and Their Disappointment at His Inability to Be Present Would Brook of No Substitute—Send Delegate to Chicago to Inquire.

"Give us Gunsaulus or keep all other orators at home" is the purport of the ultimatum which Milledgeville, Ill., yesterday delivered to Chicago. The villagers had set their hearts on hearing the Central Church orator at their high school graduation exercises. Dr. Gunsaulus was unable to fill the appointment, however, and Dr. George N. Carman, director of Lewis Institute, was sent out to deliver the address. Milledgeville had no personal objection to Dr. Carman, but they disliked being disappointed in their original plans.

Dr. Gunsaulus some time age accepted the invitation to award the diplomas at the commencement set for last Tuesday evening. A few days ago he was stricken by the intense heat and his condition became so serious he took to his bed. On Tuesday morning he decided it would be impossible to attempt the trip, and Dr. Carman was prevailed on to go. He reached Sterling, Ill., at 7 p. m., and prepared for a two hours' drive across the country to Milledgeville. But before the horses had been harnessed for the trip the officials and good people of Milledgeville discovered that Chicago was not going to deliver the goods called for nor Gunsaulus the oration.

Hundreds of farmers had driven to the village for the event, and the courthouse square was fringed with teams. The waiting throng in the commencement hall was hurriedly turned into a mass-meeting, and it was unanimously carried that no one but Dr. Gunsaulus should hand those diplomas to the sweet girl graduates. Principal Scott of the high school then telegraphed Dr. Carman at Sterling to cancel his date. Mr. Scott said Dr. Carman could scarcely reach Milledgeville before 9 o'clock, and it was feared the crowd could not be held that long.

Dr. Carman took the next train back to Chicago, and yesterday morning the village sent a delegate, in the person of A. B. Puterbaugh of the School Board, to confer with Mrs. Jene E. Bell, Dr. Gunsaulus' secretary. He was told that Dr. Gunsaulus would be unable to fill the date at any future time, and at last accounts Milledgeville was still without a commencement orator. The pastor is recovering and husbanding all his strength for his sermon next Sunday.

"I think that Dr. Carman was turned back because he would have arrived too late for an address," said Mrs. Bell last night. "The whole affair, however, has been unpleasant, and the less said about it the better."

CYCLONE SAID TO HAVE DESTROYED IRONWOOD, MICH.

Rumor Prevalent at Milwaukee, but All Telegraph and Telephone Wires Are Down North of Stevens Point.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 13, 3 a. m.—A rumor to the effect that the City of Ironwood, Mich., was destroyed by a cyclone tonight is in circulation in this city, but all attempts to verify the rumor have proved fruitless.

At the offices of the Wisconsin Central railroad it was said at midnight that a violent storm early in the evening had blown down their telegraph wires and that no communication could be had with any point north of Stevens Point.

The telephone wires were also down and messages for Ashland and Ironwood were only taken by the telegraph companies subject to delay, owing to "interrupted communication."

OREGON AT SAN FRANCISCO FOR FIRST TIME SINCE WAR.

Big Battleship Given an Enthusiastic Greeting on Its Return to the Port Where It Began Its Famous Run.

San Francisco, Cal., June 12.—[Special.]—The battleship Oregon entered the Golden Gate this afternoon at 4 o'clock and was welcomed with booming cannon and shrieking whistles. All along the water front the greatest enthusiasm was manifested, and the Stars and Stripes floated all over the city in honor of the home coming of the bulldog of the navy.

The Oregon, in command of Captain Charles M. Thomas, formerly of the Brooklyn, left Yokohama on May 16, and reached Honolulu on May 30, slowing down for two days on account of the rough seas. On leaving the islands on June 4 head winds and heavy seas were encountered which washed the ship continually. Despite the rough weather the Oregon averaged 14½ knots.

The battleship will remain here about ten days and then will proceed north to go into dry dock. Of the crew which sailed with the battleship when it left this port three years ago on its famous record run thirty-two men, including petty officers, returned with the vessel. Great preparations have been made to give the crew of the Oregon a great time during their brief stay here.

REFUSE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

Members of Virginia Constitutional Convention Decide Against Swearing Loyalty to Nation.

Richmond, Va., June 12.—[Special.]—Before the constitutional convention could get itself organized today the leaders found themselves all taking part in a wrangle as to whether the body should take the oath of allegiance to the United States, as provided for in the Underwood constitution. Carter Glass and Judge Green were particularly ardent in their opposition to the motion. Glass held that if the oath was subscribed to the convention might as well adjourn, so far as the question of negro suffrage was concerned. He insisted that if the motion was carried he would quit and go home. The motion was lost, 57 to 36, and the convention refused to take the oath.

MRS. M'KINLEY IS GAINING.

Dr. Rixey Says Her Condition Is Growing Steadily Better and Heat Is Not Affecting Her.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Dr. Rixey, on leaving the White House tonight after his usual late call, said: "Mrs. McKinley is getting along nicely. Her improvement continues steadily. The heat is not affecting her materially."

LIGHTNING HAVOC FOLLOWS HEAT.

CHURCH SUFFERS MOST.

St. Bartholomew's Flooded with Water to Quench Fire Chancel Cloth Fails to Smother.

MARSHAL DRISCOLL HURT.

Felled by Bolt Which Hits His House, Near Calumet, Then Recovers and Carries Out Wife and Children.

ONE DEATH FROM TEMPERATURE.

At the climax of hours of extreme heat yesterday an electric storm struck the city at 6 p. m., numerous accidents following in its train. In the path of the storm lightning struck St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church at Sixty-seventh street and Normal Parkway, and caused damage amounting to $10,000.

In South Chicago the residence of Fire Marshal M. R. Driscoll was shattered by a bolt just as the Marshal himself was preparing to answer a call with the department to another residence which had been set on fire by the lightning.

The Fire Marshal was stunned and left unconscious by the stroke. His wife quickly revived him by sprinkling water on his face, but while she was thus engaged the fire cut off the exits in front, and the Marshal upon regaining consciousness had to carry his wife, her mother, and his children to a place of safety. Then he directed the department in its work both upon his own residence and the neighboring house first struck.

Chancel Robe to Smother Flames.

When the lightning struck St. Bartholomew's Church an effort was made to extinguish the fire by throwing a chancel robe over it. This was ineffectual. By the time the department had arrived it was feared that the structure was in danger of destruction. The principal damage done was to the roof and the furnishings of the church.

Other Buildings Struck.

The lightning also struck a five-story building in the course of construction at 871 to 877 Jackson boulevard. A hole was torn in the roof and considerable damage had been done by fire before it was extinguished by the Fire department.

A building at 1369 West Madison street was struck and throughout the residence portion of the city and in the suburbs great damage was done by the lightning and the wind, which tore limbs from trees. In South Chicago and the neighboring suburbs basements were flooded and the streets were filled with water. In Kensington and Grand Crossing the rain fell faster than the sewer would carry it away and the streets were flooded.

Climax of an Oppressive Day.

The storm came as the climax to a day made almost unbearable by humidity and heat. One death and six prostrations had resulted up to 6 o'clock, when the rain began to fall.

The Dead.

CARLSON, JOHN, a city employé, 44 years old; overcome while at work at West Fortieth avenue and Lake street; taken to the County Hospital, where he died.

The Prostrations.

Beanso, A. M., 3917 Dover street, Sheridan Park; overcome at Fifth avenue and Madison street; taken to the Morrison Hotel.

Fire Marshal's Experience.

The most serious damage was that wrought to the church in Englewood, and the narrowest escape was that of Fire Marshal Driscoll's family. The Fire Marshal lives in the third flat of a building at 8138 Exchange avenue. The building at 8136 is occupied by Arnold Tweed. The members of the latter's family were at supper when their house was struck. The structure was ignited and a fierce fire was quickly burning, when Marshal Driscoll hurried to the telephone in his home next door to notify the fire station a few blocks away. He was talking to a fireman at the station when his own house was struck.

The bolt struck the roof directly over where the Marshal was standing, and, tearing a large hole through the ceiling, descended to the floor below. It followed the stairway, setting fire to the woodwork and ripping its way through the lower floor, went into the ground. Marshal Driscoll was thrown from his seat by the shock, and when his wife arrived in the room he was unconscious. She dashed a pitcher of water in his face, and he soon revived sufficiently to learn that the

Gathering his children, who were panic-stricken, into his arms, and shouting to his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary McNelly, to follow him, he led the way down the rear steps. After he had placed the children in safety he returned and carried out his mother-in-law, who is 70 years old.

By the time they reached the ground the first trucks of the Fire department had arrived. The Marshal led the way back into the house, and under his leadership the flames were soon got under control. In the meantime firemen had gone into the house next door, and with the aid of chemicals had extinguished the blaze in that building. The Marshal estimated the damage to his house and contents at $500 and to the building occupied by Tweed at $900.

Marshal Driscoll returned to the fire headquarters with his men. He said: "I did not have time to think much, but I did think my time had come. It was as close a call as I care to have and I am glad I am alive."

St. Bartholomew's Church Fire.

The fire in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church was discovered by E. W. Miller, who was standing on the back porch of his home, 6710 Stewart avenue. Calling to his brother, W. E. Miller, he rushed to the rear of the church, forced open the door, and attempted to extinguish the blaze by throwing a robe over it. His brother rushed to a fire alarm box and turned in an alarm. When the fire engines arrived the fire had gained considerable headway and Marshal Pazen sent in a 4-11 alarm.

The church was filled with smoke by this time, and the firemen experienced difficulty in reaching the blaze. Several of them were almost overcome and were compelled to leave the building.

Lieutenant Michael Doyle of Engine Company No. 51 had a narrow escape from serious injury. He was passing directly under an arch when a large piece of plaster fell, striking his helmet and knocking him down. He was dazed for a short time, but was able to continue on duty. Nearly a foot of water covered the floor of the church, ruining the carpets. The firemen succeeded in gaining control of the blaze after a short fight. The building and contents were valued at $45,000, covered by insurance.

During the progress of the fire a large flag pole, 100 feet high, in front of the Normal School, a short distance away, was blown down by the wind and fell to the ground with a crash.

Church Built Ten Years Ago.

St. Bartholomew's Church was built in 1891. It is of gray stone, having a frontage on North Normal parkway of 186 feet and extends back about 200 feet. The parish at the present time has no regular pastor. The Rev. Benjamin F. Matrau was in charge of the parish for the last eleven years, but he resigned last April on account of failing health. The Rev. M. Edward Fawcett is the rector-elect, and was to have taken charge next Sunday, but owing to the death of his father in Albeat Lea, Minn., on Tuesday he notified the wardens of his inability to be present. The church has a membership of about 1,000. It will not now be reopened until September.

Terror in Holland House.

Guests in the Hotel Holland, Fifty-third street and Lake avenue, was thrown into a panic by lightning striking the skylight and throwing the glass into the dining-room where dinner was being served.

Occupants of the Normandie Apartment Building, 287 East Sixty-seventh street, were frightened by lightning striking that building and overturning a stove in the apartments of J. C. Hicks. No one was injured. The loss was $250.

Plate glass windows in the grocery store of George Schmets, Sixty-sixth street and Monroe avenue, were smashed by the lightning striking them, and a piece of glass cut the face of a customer.

The photograph gallery of R. Hann, 4227 Wentworth avenue, was damaged $300 by lightning. The home of John Landor, 6660 Hartwell street, was struck while the family were at supper. Damage was $200. The three-story frame building occupied by George Cropper, 6031 Vernon avenue, had the roof torn partly away.

The home of John Soderman, 913 Wolfram street, and that of William Schultz, 3114 Hermitage avenue, were struck and nominal damage done.

Trouble on Fire Alarm Wires.

As the storm advanced on the city the operators in the fire alarm office were made aware of its approach by the trouble on the wires and by the fire alarms. From the southwest suburbs the storm made its appearance, and the trouble on the wires kept growing nearer and nearer the central part of the city. Lightning was the cause of twenty alarms in two hours, and for a short while the wires were kept busy transmitting alarms received from the West and South Sides of the city.

False alarms were sent in from two places on the North Side by lightning striking the fire alarm boxes at Diversey street and Sheffield avenue and at Kinzie and Clark streets. Responses were made to both boxes by the Fire department, only to find that the storm had played an unusual trick.

Chief Swenie sat at his instrument at home and received the alarms when they were sent in. He was anxious, as always, and kept careful watch over the department and the districts that were left without fire apparatus. Of the sixteen battalion marshals in the service not one of them missed active service during the two hours.

Houses in Evanston Struck.

The residence of F. Y. Norris, 2407 Harrison street, Evanston, was struck by two bolts of lightning, one of them tearing off a portion of the roof, and the other striking the side of the house near the roof. The damage amounted to $200. Another house in Evanston was damaged—that of William Hagren, 1205 Hinman avenue. At R. L. Wing's house, 1327 Hinman avenue, a minor blaze was started by the burning out of an electric light fuse.

Four women, who were riding on an electric car from Chicago to Evanston, while the storm was at its height, left the car near the southern limits of the city and sought shelter in the Chicago and Northwestern Depot at Calvary. They were afraid the car would be struck by the lightning.

Damage Done to Trees.

The wind caused havoc among the trees in the western suburbs. Many of the finest shade trees that grace the parkways in Oak Park, Austin, Maywood, River Forest, and Riverside were broken and disfigured. The trolley wires on the Berwyn street car line were broken in two places by the storm. The telephone lines were out of order and the lines broken between Oak Park and Berwyn, and no communication could be obtained between Berwyn and Clyde. The rain was heavy and the Desplaines River rose two inches.

HAIL-STORM PELTS OSHKOSH.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—Oshkosh was wind-swept and hail riddled this afternoon. Hundreds and probably thousands of windows were broken, shade trees laid prostrate, and buildings wrecked. The path of the storm was about a mile in width and it swept through the Second, Eighth, Fourth, Seventh, Fifth, and Tenth Wards, doing great damage.

To the north of Oshkosh the storm moderated.

South of Oshkosh, at a point eight miles below, in Black Wolf, the storm was about as severe as in Oshkosh. The northern part of the city in the vicinity of New York avenue and Murdock street was bombarded hard and freight cars at the Chicago and Northwestern "cutoff," about north of Oshkosh, were blown from the tracks.

Among the buildings to suffer the most are the First Congregational Church, whose stained glass windows are shattered; the courthouse, city hall, Athear Hotel, Fremont Hotel, and all the schoolhouses.

Hears Argument in City Gas Case.

Judge Kohlsaat listened to arguments yesterday in the suit of the city against the People's Gas-light and Coke company and the Ogden Gas company on the motion of the city to take the case out of the federal courts and have it remanded for hearing before the State courts. Judge Kohlsaat reserved his decision.

GIRL WHOSE TESTIMONY CONVICTS THOUGH FOURTEEN MEN CONTRADICT IT.

Miss Anna Knabjohann.

CONVICTED IN SHARK CASE

ALL THE DEFENDANTS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY.

Jury Gives Weber, Kanter, and Loveless from One to Five Years in Prison and Imposes a Fine of $1,000 on Each—Testimony of Anna Knabjohann Outweighs That of Fourteen Witnesses Who Contradicted Her—Prisoners Sent to Jail.

tonight. I will hear arguments on this question on Saturday morning."

"But cannot an earlier date be set?" insisted Mr. Forrest. "The jail is not a comfortable place of residence." The matter was closed, however, by the agreement to argue on Saturday morning as to whether the prisoners shall have bail.

The defendants were taken in custody by the bailiffs. At this time Kanter's wife and father joined the little group in the courtroom. The former was crying. Her husband hurried to her side.

"It's only for a little time," he said. "There will be a new trial."

Kanter's Father Falls Crying.

Judge Neely had left the bench and the jurors were being discharged when Kanter's father suddenly fell forward in his chair, crying bitterly. Max Weber sought to lead him from the room. He was on the point of collapse and the younger man half carried him out. His hat was broken where he had struck it on the chair and the sobs shook his body convulsively.

Neither of the defendants would make any statement, their attorneys instructing each to say nothing.

"We look for a new trial," said Attorney Moritz Rosenthal.

Miss Knabjohann was not in court when the verdict was read, but she had been a prominent figure in the room throughout the day. Assistant State's Attorney Barnes in his closing argument had asked a finding of guilty to vindicate the truth of the statements she had made.

"I want this jury to convict these men and to vindicate the honor and truth of this innocent girl," he said. "I want this jury to vindicate the laws of this State, and to return such a verdict as will honor them in the estimation of their fellow-men."

His plea was granted. When the verdict had been read last night he said:

"It was a righteous and just verdict. It means that the laws of the State cannot be trampled down with impunity. To Miss Knabjohann and her courage in facing these men and fighting their schemes is due in great part the outcome of the case."

Forrest Scores Miss Knabjohann.

The finding of the jury came at the close of a day of argument. At the opening of the morning session Attorney Rosenthal concluded his opening argument for the defense. He gave way to Attorney Forrest, who directed his argument against Miss Knabjohann. She winced under his stinging words.

"When Miss Knabjohann," he shouted, at one point, "swore that she didn't see the original copy of the questions for the lieutenants' examination in the State's Attorney's office prior to this trial I say she lied. Assistant State's Attorney Barnes lied also."

She jumped up from her chair in anger, her face flushed.

"I didn't," she cried; "I didn't," and then she fell back and cried piteously. Mr. Forrest continued:

"There she sits, a confessed spy," he shouted. Then followed further accusations as to the truth of her statements.

"That is not so; he knows it is not," replied the woman. Mr. Forrest later retracted privately his references to Mr. Barnes. The latter's closing argument for the State carried a complete summing up of the evidence in the case. He alluded to the "rehearsed" statements which the three had made on the witness stand and his charges brought the color to the cheeks of the three men. With the concluding of his argument Judge Neely read his instructions and the jury was sent to the conference room.

Charge Against the Men.

The charge against Loveless, Weber, and Kanter was that they secured in advance the questions prepared by the municipal Civil Service commission for the examination for Lieutenants of police held on June 16, 1900. Loveless was named as the man who secured the copy of the questions, carried them to the offices of the Chicago Credit company on the afternoon of June 15, and here had copies made. Miss Knabjohann stated that she had made the copies. She told, too, of the money paid by candidates for this advance information. Her statements were made to the Civil Service Commissioners last October and the examination was canceled. She then made her charges before the grand jury, indictments against the three men resulting.

When she went with President Lindblom of the Civil Service commission to get the books of the Chicago Credit company Max Weber, brother of David, struck her while Kanter stood by.

FACES PISTOL IN A PARK.

J. P. HANKEY MEETS HOLDUP MAN; LOSES VALUABLES.

Member of the Chicago Athletic Association Takes a Stroll Near the Washington Refectory and Is Pounced Upon by a Robber, Who Relieves Him of His Watch and $18 in Cash—Threatens to Kill if Victim Makes an Outcry—Police in a Vain Chase.

A footpad who seemed to care nothing for the crowds in Washington Park is now the possessor of a gold watch belonging to James P. Hankey, 4545 Oakenwald avenue, a member of the Chicago Athletic association. Mr. Hankey, an enthusiastic yachtsman and an athlete of experience, was forced to look down the barrel of a revolver while the fellow relieved him of the timepiece and $18 in cash.

Mr. Hankey had left his house in the early evening to seek relief from the heat in the park. As he neared the refectory a man stepped from the shadow of a clump of bushes and pointed a revolver at his head.

"Hold up your hands," commanded the fellow.

Mr. Hankey was so dumfounded that he made no effort to resist.

"You come in here," said the highwayman, pointing to a space between two trees. "This is a quiet place and I won't be disturbed."

The robber then proceeded to go through his victim's pockets, taking the watch and the money and putting them in his pockets. Just then two young men passed on the walk.

The robber pressed the revolver close to Mr. Hankey's forehead.

"Make a holler," he said, "and I'll blow your head off."

After the young men had passed the robber escorted his victim to the entrance of the park, and then told him to go straight north without turning, or he would be killed.

Mr. Hankey reported the robbery to the police at the Hyde Park Station and gave the detectives a good description of the robber. The man apparently was 40 years old, and had a stubby, sandy mustache.

Immediately after learning of the robbery the police sent a patrol wagon to Washington Park with half a dozen detectives. They made a search of the grounds, but were unable to get any trace of the robber.

INSPECT SCHOOL AT GLENWOOD

County Commissioners and Others Spend Day at the Institution—Boys in Prize Drill.

Glenwood Home for Boys, with its busy corps of inmates, was opened yesterday for the annual inspection of the County board and friends from the city. A large number of visitors were entertained at the school. President Hanberg and Commissioners Organ and Beer were among the official visitors. They found the school in a healthy condition, with as many boys as could well be accommodated at work in the various industrial departments. Mrs. John Beecher, who built one of the cottages in which the boys live, was also among the visitors. Mr. and Mrs. Milton George, who founded the school, were present.

One of the exciting features of the day was a prize drill by the military companies. The successful company was rewarded by a pennant offered by Edward B. Butler. It was difficult to choose between the well-drilled companies. The Rev. Joseph A. Milburn of Plymouth Congregational Church made the address in awarding the flag.

Those who attended the reception were guests of the directors. They went to Glenwood on a special train in the morning and spent the day at the school.

TWO CHILDREN DIE OF BURNS.

Beatrice Ellis of 194 North Wood Street and Gypsy Child from Camp in Kedzie Avenue.

Beatrice Ellis, 6 years old, was so seriously burned yesterday afternoon that she died soon afterwards at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The child lived at 194 North Wood street. While playing in the rear of 174 Wood street she lighted a match, her dress became ignited, and before assistance reached her the girl had been burned about the head, face, and arms. A police ambulance hurried her to the hospital, where she died.

Margaret Pietro, a gypsy girl 5 years old, died at Mercy Hospital yesterday from the effects of burns received three weeks ago. The little girl lived in the encampment at Archer and Kedzie avenues. She was playing about a camp fire near her parents' tent when her skirt blew into the flames.

MAY ADD TO POSTOFFICE FORCE

George W. Beavers, Chief of Salary Division, Will Start to Washington Today with Recommendation.

George W. Beavers, chief of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice at Washington, will leave for Washington this morning after two days' conference with Postmaster Coyne regarding the latter's request for additional help. In discussing the matter Mr. Beavers said it would be improper for him to state what his recommendations would be in advance of submitting them to the authorities. He did say, however, that some of them were likely to be radical and he believed they would meet with the approval of the people of Chicago.

RED JAM HORROR IN FAMOUS CASE.

WOMAN'S PAST IS RECALLED.

"The Blood Curdling Adventure of the Barrister and the Red Plum Jelly" was the tale unfolded to a jury in Judge Tuthill's court yesterday afternoon by Attorney A. S. Trude, counsel for Mrs. Minnie Wallace Walkup Ketcham, in the suit brought against her by Dethlef C. Hansen to recover $20,000 retainer's fees. The court, jury, and spectators listened breathlessly to Mr. Trude's portrayal of this unpublished murder scene in which Hansen acted the rôle of the barrister who gave a case of jam its quietus with a bare can-opener.

Hugo Pam, attorney for Lawyer Hansen, had just finished his opening statement, in which he outlined the extensive legal services rendered by his client to Mrs. Ketcham in connection with the death of her husband, John B. Ketcham, under peculiar circumstances in November, 1897, and afterward in the process of probating the dead man's will.

This labor, said the speaker, was so arduous that Hansen was compelled to take up his residence in the Ketcham house and so valuable that it was cheap enough at the price of $20,000.

Tells a Tragedy—of Jam.

"Now, gentlemen of the jury," began Attorney Trude, following Mr. Pam with his statement for the defense, "let me tell you just what were the legal services of this alleged barrister in the month and a half he compelled Mrs. Ketcham to allow him to live in her house. He finally was forced to leave, but in a few days he came back and there was then enacted a fitting finale to his 'legal services.'

"On the occasion of that final visit to her house, he terrorized Mrs. Ketcham and her companions with his riotous behavior, and then he was heard to descend into the dark and mysterious depths of the cellar. He had often made that trip before to the subterranean vault where was stored the champagne and other wine left by the late Mr. Ketcham, but no one dreamed of the awful tragedy that was to be enacted. Noises from time to time proceeded upward from the depths where Hansen had descended, lighting his uncertain way with a candle. The spluttering dip was now shedding its flickering rays from a position in the bung hole of a wine cask while the man worked at his darksome deed."

Dark Deed in a Cellar.

Mr. Trude paused and surveyed his audience with a suggestion of portentous revelations to follow. Hansen averted his eyes from his accuser.

"No one saw what Hansen did there in the cellar," Mr. Trude resumed. "No one knows to this day exactly how he did it. Suffice it to say that the terrified occupants of the house heard him at last ascending the stairway and giving forth unseemly utterances. Mrs. Ketcham, racked in body and soul by the insinuations concerning the poisoning of her husband, rushed down the hallway, peering into the darkness, to see what new tragedy was come to haunt her.

"The door from the cellar opened, and Mrs. Ketcham, shading her startled eyes instinctively, shrank back before the thing that confronted her. There stood Hansen, his eyes wild, his brow and lower face streaked with carmine. 'What murder was this,' marveled Mrs. Ketcham, 'that Hansen has committed?'

"But it was not blood upon the noble Hansen's brow. It was the remains of Mrs. Ketcham's delicious red plum jelly which had splashed upon his countenance. He had broken the can in trying to open it. Yes, gentlemen of the jury, the services for which this complainant demands $20,000 compensation consisted mainly in making away with the dead husband's champagne and the widow's plum jam."

The denouement of the terrible taking off of the jelly stirred the courtroom with amusement, and even Judge Tuthill found it convenient to conceal his merriment in looking for a pin on the floor.

Mrs. Ketcham smiled languidly.

More About Mr. Hansen.

When the bailiffs had restored order Mr. Trude continued to relate Mr. Hansen's career at the bar.

"Why, gentlemen," he said, "you should hear of Hansen's only appearance in court in connection with the Ketcham matter. One day he swaggered into the Probate Court like this—Mr. Trude illustrating a stagey strut, to the merriment of the jurors—"and planted himself before the bar, where sat Judge Kohlsaat—a fine old gentleman, now sitting on the federal bench. There this alleged attorney stopped and removed his silk tile, which he shelved on the bar of the court immediately beneath the nose of the dignified Judge. The man of the hat was about to open his mouth to state his business, which pertained to the contest of the Ketcham will, when Judge Kohlsaat, his dilated eyes fixed upon the offending silk tile, thundered out the words:

"'Take that thing away, sir.'

"Gentlemen, Hansen thereupon retreated, and that scene constituted his entire appearance in court for Mrs. Ketcham in the will contest case. Nor can you tell me of a single case this alleged attorney ever tried in this court of record."

"We'll tell on the witness stand," interrupted Mr. Pam.

"No; tell me right now," thundered Mr. Trude. "I invoke the lightning of God's wrath if his Honor's clerk can tell of a single case Hansen ever tried in this atmosphere. I pause for a reply."

Silence followed, and Clerk La Monte shook his head.

"Why, Hansen," continued the speaker, "wouldn't know a legal proposition if he saw it coming down Clark street with a placard on it and a red lantern on each side."

Woman Early in Court.

Mrs. Ketcham, appearing even younger than her 31 years, was almost the first of the principals in the case to arrive in court in the morning. Accompanying her were D. H. Louderback, late manager for Charles T. Yerkes' interests; Mrs. Sina Torrey, her former housekeeper; and Mrs. Mary O'Brien. Mrs. Ketcham came from her present home in New York last week and is staying at the Grand Pacific.

Lawyer Hansen took the opposite side of the table beside his attorneys. It was alleged in his bill of particulars that Mrs. Ketcham owes him $20,000 for the legal steps he took in defending her before the Coroner's jury which examined into the death of her husband in November, 1897. The trial bids fair before its finish to bring out the sensations which stirred the public years ago in connection with the widow's name. The evidence may recall the days when, as a girl of 16, she was forced into a marriage with Mayor James Walkup of Emporia, Kas. The Creole child wife became famed for her beauty and loved for her charities, but one day her husband died of morphine poisoning, and suspicion fell upon her. She was arrested, the charges investigated, and she finally was set free. It was discovered that Walkup had been a morphine user, but had never betrayed the weakness to his wife.

Then Mrs. Walkup came to Chicago and married John B. Ketcham, a wealthy Board of Trade operator. He died on Nov. 13, 1897, and a few days later the Coroner instituted an investigation. State's Attorney Jacob Kern took a prominent part in the inquiry, but, after all the facts were sifted, the jury exonerated Mrs. Ketcham. At that time Hansen figured as her attorney.

Pam Talks for Hansen.

Attorney Pam, in outlining his case, asserted that Hansen was first employed by Mrs. Ketcham to evade the payment of a large bill to a New Orleans firm, and also consulted by her as to whether Mr. Ketcham had enough money to make it worth while to marry him.

"She was afraid the Chicago newspapers would rake up her record in the Kansas matter," charged the attorney, "so she and her butler, Joe Kellar, took Ketcham to Milwaukee, more dead than alive, and there she secretly married him. She consulted Hansen about drawing Ketcham's will—in fact, she had him draw two wills—disposing of all the property to her. Then came Ketcham's sudden death and her summons to Hansen to aid her. My client went to the house and found the police in possession and suspicion cast upon Mrs. Ketcham.

"And then my client gave up all his other interests and staid in that house day and night ready at a moment's notice to procure bonds for the woman should she be arrested. He appeared with her at the inquest; he secured her butler's release from arrest on a petition of habeas corpus, and he advised her in a thousand details concerning the probation of the will. She was afraid that an autopsy on Ketcham's brain would prove that he was insane when he married her and therefore annul the tie and deprive her of the property. For three long weeks Hansen worked night and day to get witnesses who would swear to Ketcham's sanity. And for all this work he received only $385, and never got the expense money she promised him."

Mr. Pam introduced, punctuated, and concluded his discourse with references to the vast practice of his client in this and other States.

These remarks brought forth Mr. Trude's stories of the red jam and of the offending high silk hat as illustrative of the scope of Hansen's legal services.

The hearing of the case will be continued this morning.

FOUND DEAD IN A CEMETERY.

Benjamin Collard, a Laborer at Waldheim, Expires While at Work, Probably from Epilepsy.

Benjamin Collard, said to be the first man to die in Waldheim Cemetery, was found dead by Frank Brath near the water works on the Desplaines River yesterday afternoon. He had worked around the cemetery for a long time as a maker of boxes in which caskets are placed, and was sent to make a box for a grave near the river. Some time afterwards Superintendent Schrade sent Brath for him, and Collard was found dead. Several years ago Collard had attacks of epilepsy, and it is thought this caused his death. His home was at 132 North Desplaines avenue.

CLUBS AN AID TO PROGRESS.

Former Alderman O'Neill Declares That Improvement Associations Do Much Good.

The good work accomplished by improvement associations was admitted last evening by former Alderman William E. O'Neill at a meeting which was held in Freiberg's Hall. "I think it good policy for an organization of this kind to coöperate with the Aldermen in making local improvements," said the speaker. "You can go at it systematically, and by taking one thing at a time you may all agree upon it and carry it through. In this way you can materially benefit the ward." Alderman Thompson told of conditions of the Second Ward and mentioned some improvements that lately had been made.

He was one of the pioneer citizens and made large amounts in real estate speculation. He died intestate, but there is no other near relative. Mr. Stanley is the son of an Indianapolis contractor and resides in Indianapolis.

NEW FAST LINE TO ENGLAND.

Vessels Said to Have Been Ordered for Service Between Southampton and Sydney, Cape Breton.

Montreal, Que., June 12.—[Special.]—The first steps for the inauguration of a fast steamship service between Sydney, Cape Breton, and Southampton, England, have been taken. H. M. Whitney of Boston has given the contract for three fast steamships, which will be put on the service as soon as ready. The vessels are intended to make the passage from Southampton to Sydney in four days. It is claimed that by the new service it will be possible to land passengers in Chicago in the same time as it now takes to get to New York.

HOPKINS CROWD TO FIGHT

READY TO OPPOSE BURKE'S RULE OF WARD CLUBS.

Will Make No Contests in Some of the Meetings Tomorrow Night, but in Others the Followers of the Former Mayor Are Prepared to Give Battle to the Interests That Represent the Present Occupant of the City Hall—Stock-Yards an Issue.

Former Mayor John P. Hopkins and his principal followers are expected to make a hard fight at the annual meeting of the Democratic ward clubs tomorrow evening. While in some wards there will be no contests, the notable exceptions will be in the cases of Thomas Gahan, National committeeman, and P. H. Keenan, former member of the Board of Election Commissioners, in the Sixth Ward, and Roger C. Sullivan, with a few of his strongest followers, in the Fourteenth Ward.

The hardest fight, however, is looked for in the Thirtieth Ward, but the leaders there are not so widely known. In sending out the official call for the meetings it seems that those who have gone over to the Hopkins camp were ignored. In the Sixth Ward Gahan, Keenan, and their friends were overlooked, and they say it was purposely done. As a result 4,000 copies of a type-written call for the annual meeting and election of officers of the regular Democratic club of the Sixth Ward, signed by Thomas Gahan and P. H. Keenan, were sent out yesterday.

The Gahan call designates Forum Hall, Forty-third street and Calumet avenue, as the place and 8 o'clock p. m. of Friday, June 14, 1901, as the time. The call from Robert E. Burke, as Secretary of the County committee, names Mackinaw Hall, Forty-third street and Evans avenue, as the place.

A copy of the Gahan-Keenan notice was sent to Mr. Burke with a warning that he may be called on to defend himself in an action carrying charges of violation of the rules of the party organization.

In the Fourteenth Ward Mr. Sullivan found it necessary to do practically the same thing. A call bearing his name, also the names of Thomas Little, Alderman Maypole, James Furlong, and Ben J. Mitchell, was prepared and a copy sent to every Democrat belonging to the organization. The meeting will be held in a hall at Western and Grand avenues.

No secret is made of the fact that the Harrison-Burke machine is out to capture and control the party club in every ward.

The situation in the Thirtieth Ward, the Stock-Yards district, shows evidence of great determination among the City Hall people to defeat Mike Butler and put Edward Carroll, ex-Civil Service Commissioner, in the saddle.

D. H. M'DANELD'S WILL FILED.

Estate Said to Be Large, but No Schedule Is Offered—Widow Chief Beneficiary.

The will of Daniel H. McDaneld, wood merchant and member of D. H. McDaneld & Co., Dearborn avenue and Michigan street, was filed for probate yesterday. No schedule of property accompanied the will, but it is said the estate is large. The widow, Celia McDaneld, and Michael Grace are named as executors. The will sets aside $2,000 for the care of a burial lot in Graceland and $1,000 to Daniel Edward McDaneld. Mary Helen Burke is given the business block at 185 Michigan street. The widow is given a life interest in the residue. On the death of the widow the real estate held by her and on the death of Mary Helen Burke the real estate held by her becomes the property of Daniel Edward McDaneld of Evanston and of Henry Burke.

"VEILED LADY" IS SET FREE.

Vina Seavy, Arrested in Connection with Burglars' Dash for Liberty at Toronto, Released.

Toronto, Ont., June 12.—[Special.]—Vina Seavy, the young woman known as the "Veiled Lady," who followed Fred Rice, the bank burglar, to Toronto after the extradition of himself and his associates, and who was arrested and held as a vagrant after the fatal attempt of the men to escape, was discharged from custody today by the police magistrate. The young woman was able to convince the crown authorities that, although she had been active in raising money for the defense of the burglars, and especially of Rice, her sweetheart, she knew nothing of the conspiracy to supply the prisoners with weapons.

Albert Chamberlain, the boy who had been unsuccessfully treated by faith cure methods for a sprained ankle, was yesterday taken by Probation Officer Goggin to Dr. F. W. Belknap, who examined the boy and recommended him as a fit subject for the Crippled Children's Home. The boy had been assigned to that institution by Judge Tuthill. The boy's parents live at 7080 Eggleston avenue.

Another Baby Elk at Lincoln Park.

Another baby elk was added to the collection of elks in the Lincoln Park "zoo" early yesterday morning. There is now quite a herd of little elks in the park, five having come into the world within the last three weeks.

COSTLY COFFIN FOR A PET PUG.

Love for An Animal Gives the Town Hall Police a Momentary Scare.

THINK IT IS A MURDER.

Pry Off Lid of Casket and Find Body of Dog, Covered with Flowers.

MAY BE A FUNERAL TODAY.

What seemed last evening to be a murder mystery was transformed into a touching example of some one's love for a pet dog, but not until the police of the Town Hall Station had made a hard run in their patrol wagon and a dozen men had jumped at the conclusion that a child's life had been sacrificed.

A white coffin of expensive pattern, on the top of which was a silver plate bearing an inscription, was the cause of all the confusion. On the silver plate were the words:

BADGE, DIED JUNE 11, 1901.

H. Grant, an undertaker at 1445 Edgecomb street, was alone in his office yesterday evening when a well dressed man drove up in a closed carriage and declared that he wished to have some one go with him to Rosehill. He was told that the cemetery was closed for the night.

"Too bad, too bad," muttered the stranger, "Well, I suppose it can't be helped."

Then the visitor turned to Grant and asked to leave his carriage and its contents with him for the night.

"I have something dear to me in the carriage," explained the man.

Grant agreed to take care of the property and the stranger left. Grant and some employés took the carriage into the barn in the rear of the office, and there for the first time they saw the little white coffin. Their suspicions at once were aroused.

Grant immediately telephoned to the Town Hall Station, and Lieutenant John McCarthy with Detectives Zable and Garrack hurried to the undertaking shop in the patrol wagon.

"Badge, eh?" remarked Lieutenant McCarthy, as he examined the lid of the casket. "That doesn't tell much. Might be either a boy or a girl. We'd better get a look at the inside."

Zable and Garrack immediately began to pry off the lid of the casket, while the others crowded close around. As the lid was raised and the men peered in with bated breath, their gaze fell on the embalmed and flower bedecked body of a pug dog. There was every evidence that the animal had been well treated.

"Not much violence here," said Lieutenant McCarthy. "Boys, we're on a dead one, sure enough."

The lid of the casket was replaced with care, and the policemen departed without learning or caring to learn the name of the man who was giving the pug the burial of a child. It was learned, however, that he had driven from Sixty-seventh street, which fact was borne out by the jaded appearance of his horse.

It is said that there is a grave already prepared in Rosehill and that the white casket will be hidden from sight there today.

CASH FOR CHICAGO HOSPITAL.

By the Will of Dr. W. S. Caldwell the Provident Will Get Perhaps $50,000.

Freeport, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—By the will of Dr. W. S. Caldwell, disposing of a $400,000 estate, Provident Hospital of Chicago is made residuary legatee and will receive not less than $35,000 and perhaps as much as $50,000. The widow receives all the real estate and $100,000 in cash and securities. The daughter receives $100,000. Other bequests, including $10,000 each to St. Francis Hospital and St. Francis Orphan Asylum of this city and $2,500 to the Freeport public library, bring the total sum bequeathed in personal property to $270,500. Friends of Dr. Caldwell incline to the view that he underestimated the value of his estate, and that Provident Hospital will profit by his mistake.

Think Missing Bonds Were Burned.

It was reported in Evanston yesterday that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of five $1,000 water bonds issued in 1874 by the Village of Evanston for the erection of a water works plant has been solved. It is thought that the bonds were burned in the presence of and by the consent of the Village Councilors.

Grape-Nuts Puts the "Ginger" in the Kind of Food used by Athletes

A former college athlete, one of the long distance runners, began to lose his powers of endurance. His experience with a change in food is interesting.

"While I was in training on the track athletic team, my daily 'jogs' became a task, until after I was put on Grape-Nuts Food for two meals a day. After using the Food for two weeks I felt like a new man. My digestion was perfect, nerves steady and I was full of energy.

I trained for the mile and the half mile runs (those events which require so much endurance) and then the long daily 'jogs,' which had before been such a task, were clipped off with ease. I won both events.

The Grape-Nuts Food put me in a perfect condition and gave me my 'ginger.' Not only was my physical condition made perfect, and my weight increased, but my mind was made clear and vigorous so that I could get out my studies in about half the time formerly required. Now most all of the University men use Grape-Nuts for they have learned its value, but I think my testimony will not be amiss and may perhaps help some one to learn how the best results can be obtained. Please do not publish my name."

There is a reason for the effect of Grape-Nuts Food on the human body and brain. The certain elements in wheat and barley are selected with special reference to their power for rebuilding the brain and nerve centers. The product is then carefully and scientifically prepared so as to make it easy of digestion. The physical and mental results are so apparent after two or three weeks' use as to produce a profound impression. The Food can be secured at any first-class grocery store.

THREAT TO CALL OUT 620,000 MEN.

MILLIONS ON BOTH SIDES.

Engineers of Great Britain Cable an Offer of Aid to Strikers.

FEDERATION OF LABOR IN IT

PLANNING FOR GREAT STRUGGLE.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—It is war to the knife between the Metal Trades association and the striking machinists.

The former today, through the chairman of its Press committee, declared that millions of dollars were behind the defense fund of $500,000 raised yesterday to fight the strikers.

The machinists tonight threaten to call out the 650,000 metal trade workers in the United States, including patternmakers, electrical machinists, iron molders, tool makers, and others.

From this time on it is battle. Both sides are seeking financial backing. The Metal Trades association claims to have 320 members pledged to stand together to resist the demands of the union.

Offer of Aid from London.

The machinists tonight received a cable dispatch from the Amalgamated Society of Engineers in London promising financial aid, and this society, it is asserted, has $8,000,000 in its treasury.

It is further declared that the American Federation of Labor will tax its 2,000,000 members 10 cents each in aid of the strikers.

And to cap the climax it is claimed that if necessary a general sympathetic strike of the machinists on all railroads in the United States and Canada will be ordered.

Fighting Committee Named.

The National Metal Trades convention today appointed a committee to handle the $500,000 fund raised to fight the striking machinists, and the statement was made that millions would be spent if necessary.

The convention also decided to make no definite declaration as to the length of a day's work, deciding that it is purely a local question to be settled by individual employers.

The sum of $500,000, raised by assessment, is to be placed at the disposal of a strike committee to be used in behalf of the employers. That committee is constituted as follows: William Schwanhausner, Brooklyn; John W. Young, Milwaukee; S. W. Watkins, Milwaukee; Charles Bliss, Ansonia; N. B. Payne, Elmira; W. D. Sayle, Cleveland; Thomas E. Durban, Erie; William E. Lodge, Cincinnati; and E. G. Gilbert, Scranton.

Ready to Spend Millions.

Asked as to the use of this fund, W. J. Chalmers, chairman of the Press committee, said:

"I suppose we will use it as the strikers do, to support their fellows, pay pickets, and meet other general expenses. We used $160,000 in the Cleveland strike, where we paid some men a bonus of $4 a day. There are millions more if they are needed. We have just received a telegram from the Pacific coast pledging 114 out of 135 firms to membership. We have delegates from San Francisco, Seattle, and Portland, and the West is with us. We are gratified to receive their support.

"We know nothing of a conciliation committee from Toronto or elsewhere, and no man not a member will get a hearing before us. We seek no trouble, but propose to protect our interests and industry. We are perfecting district organizations, which will be in a measure independent, but all the members will be in the national association, and we will work back and forth in harmony. We regard the outlook as satisfactory and are elated at the support we are getting.

"We are suffering no loss arising from delay on contracts which we were fulfilling at the time our machinists struck, for all of our contracts contain a strike clause releasing us from liability.

Declaration of Principles.

The convention in the afternoon decided to make no definite declaration as to the length of a day's work, leaving the question to settlement locally. After discussing the matter all afternoon the following resolution was passed:

"The declaration of principles makes the question of hours and wages a local issue.

"Resolved, That this association will support any regular member in his endeavor to conform to said declaration of principles."

"This is a victory for the declaration of principles enunciated at Chicago," said Chairman Chalmers of the Press committee. "We have stuck to that declaration all through and are for it now. The question of hours will be settled locally."

After passing the resolution the convention adjourned, and the affairs with regard to the machinists' strike are in the hands of the Finance and Strike committees, named this morning, subject to the general supervision of the Administrative council.

Strikers Accept Challenge.

The Executive committee of the New York district of the International Association of Machinists announced in a statement issued tonight:

"We will combine to fight the employers as they have combined to fight us. Our National Executive board has appealed to all the organizations, both in this country and Great Britain, for assistance. The Amalgamated Association of Engineers, which has its headquarters in England, and has a treasury of several million dollars, has promised its aid, and we are assured of aid by the American Federation of Labor.

"If we have to take further action, all the metal trades will coöperate with us, and a strike of 650,000 people, including patternmakers, electrical machinists, iron molders, and others is likely to follow. If the employers who have settled assist the others we will order the strikes over again.

Pacific Coast Will Fight.

After the convention of the National Metal Trades association was called to order today a telegram was received by the delegate from San Francisco saying that 114 firms in the intermountain district, on the Pacific slope, had pledged themselves to the association. This announcement was received with cheers.

The intermountain district is represented by three delegates—one from San Francisco, another from Portland, Ore., and a third from Seattle, Wash. They represent 135 shops. The list of new members is headed by the Union iron works of San Francisco, the firm that built the United States battleship Oregon and is now building the battleship Ohio. It employs more than 4,000 men. Other important firms were the Risdon iron works of San Francisco, Moran Bros. of Seattle, and the Portland iron works.

O'Connell Calls It a Bluff.

Toronto, Ont., June 12.—[Special.]—Referring to the statement of W. J. Chalmers on behalf of the Metal Trades association at the close of the New York meeting today that half a million dollars would be raised by the association members to fight the strikers, President O'Connell of the International Machinists' union said that it was a grand stand play, intended to scare the men back to work. It would not be effective and the union could do a little itself in the way of raising money. The fact was, he said, that the Metal Trades association had left the wages and hours question to be settled as a local one. This meant "go out and make your own terms with your men" and was being so interpreted.

President O'Connell concluded the interview by saying:

"The shoe machinery trust of Boston, a member of the Metal Trades association, has offered its men fifty-four hours' work with fifty-eight hours' pay, and the Gould company of Seneca Falls, fifty-five hours with sixty hours' pay. If a national fight had been ordered these settlements would not be proposed.

Critical at Newport News.

Newport News, Va., June 12.—The strike situation at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company's yard has reached a critical stage. In addition to the striking machinists, about 500 in number, and the 200 skilled men from the electrical, plumbing, and pipe-fitting departments laid off yesterday, 150 more, chiefly laborers, were laid off today. In each case action was due to the interference in the progress of the work of the departments by the strikers.

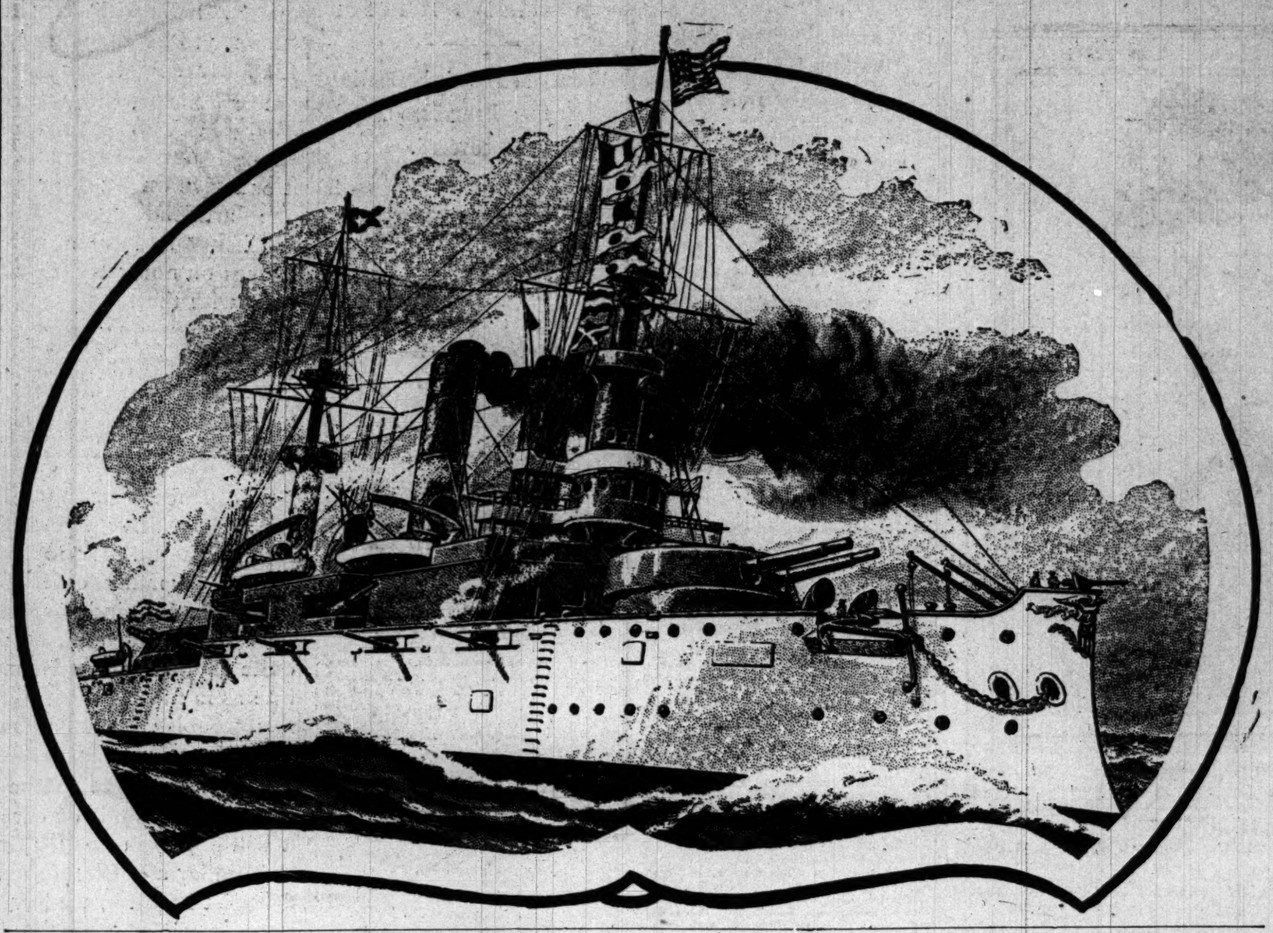

Strikers Clash at Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., June 12.—About 1,000 men who recently struck work on street improvement contracts paraded the streets today and attacked a gang of men who had taken work at the old rate of wages. Policemen drove off the rioters, who resumed their march and caused the suspension of work on other contracts. Subsequently the paraders visited the city hall, where their leaders interviewed Mayor Carnahan. That official promised his best endeavors to induce the contractors to come to terms.

Butchers on a Strike.

San Francisco, Cal., June 12.—The strike of the journeymen butchers, which for several days has been impending, went into effect at 10 o'clock this morning, and at noon the Strike committee of the union made a statement that about 1,100 journeymen meat cutters, slaughterers, and drivers had left their employment.

BATTLESHIP ILLINOIS, WHICH SETS NEW SPEED MARK FOR WAR VESSELS.

NEWS SURPRISE TO MACHINISTS

Hostile Attitude of Metal Trades Association Unexpected—Fight to Be Prosecuted Vigorously.

Advices from New York indicating the hostile attitude of the National Metal Trades association and its preparations for war against the International Association of Machinists created a stir among the machinists. The local leaders were surprised, many of them having thought the convention was likely to move in the direction of peace rather than war. Some of them had declared there was a strong element among the manufacturers in favor of making another effort to adjust the trouble with the union and that a resolution was likely to pass looking to such a line of action.

There was no hesitation on the part of the local machinists in declaring the gauntlet would promptly be taken up and a fight waged to the finish. Moreover, there is a general disposition to question the published statement that a $500,000 fund will be raised by the manufacturers to prosecute the fight.

"It is a final attempt to bluff us," said Business Agent Ireland yesterday afternoon. "They are too wise to think seriously of putting that amount of money into any fight against us at this time. The fact is it is only the larger concerns, which are really in the minority, that are doing all this fighting talk just now, and they are doing it with the purpose of trying to brace up the many other manufacturers who are disposed to make peace with us. I know what I am talking about when I say this, and I want to say that within a week we will have the Association of Chicago Machinery Manufacturers practically disrupted. We will have a majority of the members of that organization, many of whom have practically made terms with us.

"We have no fear of the result of the fight with the National Metal Trades association, for the reason that they have got to go out of business or make terms with us. We have the men in our ranks and the manufacturers cannot get them. The time is auspicious for us. If it settles down into a long fight our men can get other jobs which will keep them going, so that there is no possible danger of our being starved out, and we will always have enough men and means to keep up an effective fight."

FIGARO WAR IS STILL ON.

RIVAL FACTIONS HOLD OFFICE, RECEIVER IN CHARGE.

Courts to Hear the Controversy on June 29—Paper Is Being Issued Under a Temporary Arrangement—Macedonians Appeal to France for Aid in Setting Up an Independent State—Government Urged to Maintain Rights in Morocco.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, June 12.—The quarrel between the rival factions in the Figaro office is to be settled in the courts, and in the meantime a temporary receiver is in charge.

Two rival directors, M. Prestat, acting for the shareholders, and M. Perivier, on his own account, have been camped in the Figaro Building all day. M. Prestat has possession of M. Perivier's private office and the latter has installed himself in a temporary office.

Both men were called before the courts today and each insisted that he would run the paper. The court decided on temporary measures and accordingly the seals placed on the Figaro office this morning were by the court's orders removed tonight and the cashier placed in charge as temporary receiver.

Gaston Calmette, former secretary general of the Figaro company, has asked that his name be taken off the front page, as he refuses to continue the duties of his office until the controversy over the control of the paper is settled. M. Perivier, however, will not allow M. Calmette's name to be removed. M. Prestat wants M. Perivier's name taken off the front page, but the latter refuses and is backing his refusal by force of arms. The followers of the two hostile directors are eating their meals and sleeping in Figaro office. In the meantime the paper is being published under M. Prestat's direction, but it is really controlled by M. Perivier. The whole affair is to come before the courts on June 29, until which time the rival directors declare they will camp out in the Figaro office. An immense police force is on guard on the premises to prevent the rival forces coming to blows.

M. De Rodays, the editor of Figaro, shows deep feeling over the controversy. He says he should not be blamed for bad direction because he had championed Dreyfus and has upheld the present Cabinet.

Must Hold to Morocco.

In an editorial apparently inspired by the ministry the Temps calls upon the government not to be influenced by pressure of other nations to sacrifice the now particularly privileged situation of France in Morocco. The Temps says French rights in Morocco are based on geographical and historical grounds, and that the keeping of them is only a maintenance of national patrimony. No political party, it declares, can neglect them.

The editorial is considered as a tactful answer by the government to the questioning in the English Parliament yesterday on the subject of Morocco.

Appeal from Macedonians.

The Foreign office has received an official communication from the Macedonian revolutionary junta containing notice that the Macedonians desire to form an independent state, with complete autonomy, in nowise connected with Bulgarian rule. The Macedonians count upon the powers of Europe, particularly those nations desiring to check Germany's influence in the Orient, to help them. Austria-Hungary, France, Italy, and England will be applied to by the Macedonians for aid.

Liberals Seeking Facts.

LONDON, June 13, 3 a. m.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will ask the government in the House of Commons today whether it will give full information as to the condition of affairs in south Africa. It will be a surprise if he elicits anything definite. What most people would like, but do not expect the government to give, is the exact truth concerning the basis of the various peace rumors, which are daily becoming more numerous and more emphatic, but which are bewilderingly divergent.

Much Depends on Kruger.

There is daily some fresh version of the mission to Europe of Mrs. Botha, wife of the Boer Commandant General. The latest comes to the Morning Post from Brussells in the form of a summary of a statement issued by the Transvaal agency there. It says in effect that Mrs. Botha is not acting as an intermediary for the purpose of terminating hostilities. She is visiting Mrs. Kruger as the emissary of her husband to explain the situation in south Africa to him. The initiative of any peace negotiations is in Mr. Kruger's hands. Neither General Botha nor any other Boer leader will abandon arms except under orders from Mr. Kruger.

Think Negotiations Are On.

The Standard's Brussels correspondent, however, attributes to the same source a statement that negotiations are possibly passing between General Kitchener and General Schalk-Burger, although Mr. Kruger has not been informed to that effect.

From other Boer and pro-Boer sources on the continent come stories which almost compel belief that negotiations or tentative proposals in that direction are under way.

CHINESE COURT CHANGES PLAN.

Journey to Pekin Will Be by an Out of the Way Route to Avoid Grave Perils.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PEKIN, June 12.—A telegram from Sangan-Fu announces that an edict has been issued changing the route which the court will follow on its return to Pekin. It will go to Wei-Hai-Fu, in the Province of Honan, thence by boat along the river and Grand Canal to Techou, thence overland to Pao-Ting-Fu, and then by rail to the capital.

Li Hung Chang today sent proclamations to the local officials along the route to make preparations. The court is afraid to travel by way of Tien Tsin or the disturbed districts in Central and Southern Chili. The route now decided upon is longer than the one originally selected. That part of it between Techou and Pao Ting-Fu is the most difficult. There is no direct important highway and no inns.

Further details have been received of the rebellion in Chili. It appears that Tien Loh Siang, in order to resist the collection of church indemnities, organized what is known as the Organized Villages society in Shen-Chou. Seventy other villages joined shortly afterward, and now there are many lawless characters, soldiers of the regular army, and 20,000 or 30,000 persons in 700 villages connected with the movement. Some of the rebels are engaged in making weapons. Li Hung Chang admits that Colonel Bitao Sheng has failed to put down the insurgents, and the French are now operating against them.

The Provincial Treasurer of Chou-Fu has requested the missionaries to present evidence of their accusations against the Boxer chiefs, who will be punished if convicted.

He also asked for a secondary list of all Boxers who were specially active or directly implicated in outraging Christians.

Nine missionaries consulted with the Shansi Deputy as to an escort, and have decided to start for that province on June 15. The English missionaries will carry passports from the British Minister. The party will consist of four China inland missionaries, two English Baptists, one American, one Scandinavian, and one member of Piggott's mission. The Governor of Shansi is adjudicating the differences of the missionaries.

EDWARD DISTRIBUTES MEDALS TO MEN FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Motley Procession of 3,000 Men, Including High Officers, Men in Broadcloth and in Tweed, Marches Past the Ruler of England—Military Attaches of Other Nations Also Given Decorations—Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria Watch the Ceremony.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 12.—King Edward today distributed medals to 3,000 troops that have been returned from service in south Africa on the horse guards' parade. Thousands of spectators were present. Earl Roberts, Commander-in-Chief of the forces, received the first medal.

The distribution commenced at 11 o'clock. The long line of recipients which passed before the King included many who have returned to civil pursuits, uniformed policemen, and others. Some of those who have gone back to civil life wore frock coats and carried silk hats, while others were attired in well-worn tweeds and carried derbies. Many walked with a limp, and some were minus arms.

Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria were just behind the King, where chairs had been placed for their convenience.

The distribution was finished at 1 o'clock. After Earl Roberts came Lord Milner of Cape Town, Sir Godfrey Lagden, Commissioner of Natives in the Executive council of the Transvaal, and Earl Roberts' staff officers, including Buller and Ian Hamilton. Next came the foreign military attachés, who were with the British forces in south Africa, including Captain Slocum, who represented the United States. Then followed 200 officers.

The great square was lined with guards drawn from the various regiments. In the center of the ground was a purple covered dais surmounted by an Indian tent with silver corner poles. In the space between the dais and St. James' Park were drawn up 3,000 officers and men of the Guards, Household Cavalry, and City Imperial Volunteers, all of whom served in the campaign.

The Admiralty, Horse Guards, and other official buildings fronting the parade all were decorated with flags. From the house of Joseph H. Choate, the United States Ambassador, on Carlton House terrace, flew the American flag. The Lord Mayor, Frank Green, attended in state, and the members of the special Moorish Embassy, in picturesque costumes, were interested spectators.

FRANCIS JOSEPH IN BOHEMIA.

Austrian Emperor Received with Popular Demonstration at Prague—City in Gala Attire.

PRAGUE, Bohemia, June 12.—Emperor Francis Joseph arrived here today for a visit of five days. It is the first visit he has made Bohemia during the last ten years, and he is now here in the interest of German-Czech conciliation.

His Majesty is accompanied by a suite of 300 persons, and will attend an elaborate program of festivities, likely to prove rather exhausting at his age. The city is crowded with visitors, and great precautions are taken to insure the safety of the Emperor. He was received by the municipal authorities with elaborate ceremonies, and, when replying to the burgomaster's address of welcome, expressed his never-failing interest in the lovely City of Prague and his deep thanks for the hearty reception given him. He then drove through the gayly decorated streets to the royal palace, the populace cheering.

Each day's ceremonies have been planned so that the Czechs and Germans may share equally in the imperial favor.

The day did not pass without its annoying incident. The clubroom of the German Students' league was decorated with German colors. A Czech crowd insisted that the colors be removed. When the Germans refused the Czechs tore them down amid shouts of "Down with the Prussians."

The police are forbidden to use any but Austrian colors, and in order to avoid friction, many aristocratic invitations have been issued in the French language.

HE MADE 'PUNCH' FAMOUS

Distinguished Men of Letters, Artists, Dramatists, Political Leaders, and Cabinet Officers Unite in a Tribute to the Veteran Artist—King Edward Bestows the Medals of Honor on a Large Number of South African Veterans—Ceremony Unique.

[Copyright: 1901: By the New York Tribune.]
[BY CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 13, 3 a. m.—The complimentary dinner at the Whitehall rooms last night to Sir John Tenniel, the aged cartoonist of Punch, was a unique literary, artistic, and political event. Punch had anticipated the supreme moment in a cartoon by Partridge, representing John Bull behind Arthur Balfour, and the veteran artist, who has completed half a century with Punch, in the act of bidding the guests charge their glasses for a bumper. When that moment came Balfour smilingly imitated the pose, and Tenniel's face was fairly twitching with emotion, while the distinguished company of Ministers, members of Parliament, artists, authors, and journalists cheered lustily. Political leaders who had been caricatured year after year were taking amiable revenge, and he who had held them all at his mercy was powerless to defend himself against the flatteries.

It was a large company, with more academicians and men of letters than statesmen, but Balfour was in the chair, the Duke of Devonshire was near by with Lord James of Hereford, Herbert Gladstone, Lord Crewe, Lord Strathcona, and many public men in prominent places, and around were gathered the great men of art, literature, and the drama—such as John Sargent, Luke Fildes, Frank Dicksee, Anthony Hope Hawkins, John Hare, Arthur Pinero, Sir Wemyss Reid, and the full staff of Punch.

Balfour's Easy Compliments.

It was a sumptuous dinner, and when the cigars were lighted Arthur Balfour, after the formal toasts to the King and royal family, made a most graceful and felicitous speech in toasting the guest of the evening. He referred to Sir John Tenniel somewhat shyly, he said, because as First Lord of the Treasury he belonged to a class which was the natural prey to caricature. He described himself as a lamb, honoring a retiring wolf, but quickly added that no lamb in English public life has ever been hurt by this particular wolf. He described the artist as a man who had ever been true to the facts of the moment and who had described the downfall of ministries and the revolution of opinion without bitterness and without lack of charity.

Too Diffident to Speak.

When Balfour sat down Sir John Tenniel rose to the first speech in his long career, but he soon hesitated and broke down. The audience was most sympathetic, cheering him repeatedly as though he had been as fluent and eloquet as Labori.

The American Ambassador followed him in the best speech which he has made in England. Mr. Choate began by covering Tenniel's retreat with a reference to his modesty, which was only equaled by his merit, and proceeded with a humorous and highly sympathetic account of the caricaturists' school in English politics, its manners, and its discipline. He paid a high tribute to Tenniel for having mellowed and sweetened England, and leaving her more cordial and amiable in foreign affairs than she had ever been.

Other speeches were made by Augustine Birrell, Briton Riviere, and the Duke of Devonshire. It was a delightful evening.

King Presents the Medals.

The presentation of the medals on the Horse Guards' parade yesterday was a splendid spectacle under a murky sky. There was a bright blaze of scarlet-coated guards, where 3,000 Household Troops were massed with the City Imperial Volunteers, and there was the green background of St. James' Park. The King did not spare himself, but insisted upon bestowing the medals with his own hands on the cavalcade of 200.

The officers came first, headed by Earl Roberts and Lord Milner, and including a division of brigade commanders, the headquarters staff, Sir Redvers Buller and his staff, the Natal field force, and the foreign military attachés.

Each saluted the King and received the medal, with clasps and ribbons. The King was no respecter of persons, for he honored alike those who, like Hunter, Hamilton, Kelly-Kenny, and Pole-Carew, who had succeeded, and those who, like Gatacre, Warren, and Colvile, had failed.

When the officers had passed the royal standard the veteran soldiers from the Tugela and the Modder, from Pretoria and Ladysmith, filed by for two hours, and each received the medal. The Queen was present, and the white-robed Morocco envoys looked on. It was a most picturesque pageant.

Wedding of Miss Clotilde Hall.

At St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, yesterday, the marriage was solemnized of W. Walsham Hare and Miss Clotilde Hall, adopted sister of a popular and wealthy American lady, Miss Van Wart. London society had looked forward to the wedding last April, but it was postponed until yesterday in consequence of Miss Van Wart's illness. Both women have been generous friends to children of poor folk around London docks, and quite recently several thousands of them were entertained by Miss Van Wart and Miss Hall. The little ones then made a presentation of a gold chain and cross to Miss Hall and this unique wedding gift shone out conspicuously on the neck of the bride's splendid Worth gown.

BIG PRICE FOR A MANUSCRIPT.

London Bookseller Pays $5,800 for a Rare Product of Fifteenth Century Art.

LONDON, June 12.—In the sale of the Ashburnham manuscripts at Sotheby's today the gem of the collection was "Horæ Beatæ Mariæ Virginis Cum Calendario." Within its purple covers there is compressed as much rare art as is to be found in almost any other manuscript of the fifteenth century. The artist had indulged in a riot of grotesque animals—a horse riding a man, a fox shaving a goat, a pig riding a camel clothed in a red cloak and wearing a Bishop's miter, etc. It was sold to Harding, the bookseller, for $5,800.

FEARS THE AMERICAN TRUST.

Ex-Member of French Chamber of Deputies Petitions for Heavy Duties on Steel Products.

PARIS, June 12.—François Laur, a former Deputy, deposited in the Chamber of Deputies today a petition calling attention to the American Steel trust, which, it is claimed, threatens the disorganization of the French metal industry.

The petitioner suggests as reprisals an increase in the duties on American steel products. M. Laur proposes to visit the United States next year to study trusts.

CUBANS ACCEPT THE PLATT LAW.

Convention at Havana Finally Complies with the Demands of Congress.

LAST VOTE IS DECISIVE.

FEAR OF ANNEXATION A SPUR.

Officials at Washington Waiting for Full Text of the Last Resolution.

FEAR THERE MAY BE A TRICK.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, June 12.—After a short session today the constitutional convention voted that the Platt amendment, just as it stands, be added to the constitution. The resolution had a preamble referring to the joint resolution of Congress, the treaty of Paris, and the Platt law.

The vote was 16 to 11, Señor Ferrer having come over from the anti-Platt side. Señors Bravo and Rivera were away. Señors Gener and Robau were in Havana, but they did not vote. Señor Gener is the object of much adverse and scornful criticism for not voting.

The Radicals made no opposition, they being quite beaten, though Señor Ferrer was the only one to come over. The others, too, would have joined the supporters of the amendment if they thought there was a chance of its being defeated.

Until yesterday many Spaniards, Cubans, and Americans hoped that the amendment would be rejected, and thus, perhaps, annexation would come about. This thought weighed powerfully with the convention. Señors Nunez, Quiles, and Sanguily made a most consistent fight to get the matter through. It is stated that the Radicals were more relieved after the amendment had been accepted than were the Conservatives.

In the vote on the resolution the twenty-seven delegates present divided as follows:

In favor of acceptance—Señors Capote, Villuendas, José M. Gomez, Tamayo, Monteaguedo, Delgado, Betancourt, Gibergs, Llorente, Quesada, Sanguilly, Nunez, Rodriguez, Berriel, Quilez, and Ferrer.

Opposed to acceptance—Señors Zayas, Aleman, Eudaldo Tamayo, Juan Gualberto Gomez, Cisneros, Silvala, Fortun, Lacret, Portuondo, Castro, and Manduley.

The convention will now appoint a commission to draw up the electoral law.

Secretary Root's Letter.

The letter of Secretary of War Root is published. It points out that the former resolution, with the explanations attached, so changed the provisions of the Platt amendment that it was not the same as that passed by Congress. It added that President McKinley could not withdraw the troops unless the Platt law was incorporated in the constitution. It further says that the President is not authorized to act until a government is established. When that is done it will be his duty to see whether the constitution contains the Platt amendment as part of itself.

Text of the Amendment.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—The full text of the Platt amendment, reported unofficially to have been adopted by the Cuban constitutional convention, is as follows:

1. The government of the republic of Cuba will make no treaty arrangements with any foreign power which limits or compromises the independence of Cuba, or which in any way permits or authorizes any foreign power to obtain by means of colonization or for military or naval aims or in any other manner a hold upon the authority or a right over any portion of Cuba.

2. The government of the republic of Cuba will not permit its territory to serve as the base of operation in a war against the United States nor against any other country.

3. The government of the republic of Cuba accepts in its entirety the treaty of Paris of Dec. 1, 1898, both in that it affirms the rights of Cuba and with regard to the obligations specifically mentioned as belonging to Cuba, especially with regard to those which international law imposes for the protection of lives and property. Cuba will take the place of the United States which the latter acquired in this sense, in conformity with articles 1 and 16 of the treaty of Paris.

4. The government of the republic of Cuba will recognize as legally valid the acts of the American military government done in representation of the government of the United States during the period of its occupation for the good government of Cuba, as well as the rights that spring from them in conformity with the joint resolution and amendment to the army bill, known as the Foraker law, or with the laws in force in the country.

5. The government of the republic of Cuba should regulate its commercial relations by means of an arrangement based on reciprocity, and which, with the tendencies to a free exchange of their natural and manufactured products, would mutually assure the two countries ample special advantages in their respective markets.

Wait for Official News.

Officials of the administration are rather dubious about the acceptance of the Platt amendment by the Cuban convention, inasmuch as that body has done so many queer things in regard to it that the officials here will not be entirely satisfied until they are in possession of the official text of the proceedings of the convention.

If the Cubans had not assented to these conditions before Congress assembled it is certain they would not have been given an opportunity to agree to conditions as generous as those set forth in the Platt amendment. Congress, tiring of the childishness of the Cubans, who have displayed unmistakable signs of inability to even agree to the things preliminary to establishing an independent government, would have gone so far as to annex Cuba to the United States on the ground that such a course was the only one to pursue, and the one best calculated to conserve the interests of the people of Cuba and of the United States.

Comment of Secretary Root.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 12.—[Special.]—Secretary Root said tonight: "If the Cuban convention has accepted the Platt amendment it has done the wisest and most patriotic act possible for Cuba."

When Secretary of State John Hay read the dispatch he said:

"As an old friend of Cuban independence for the last thirty years, I am most gratified to learn that the Cuban convention has done what is so clearly to the advantage of the Cuban people."

PUTS RAILROAD IN STRONG PLAN.

MAY DEFY THE TRUST.

GENERAL NEWS OF GOTHAM.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, June 12.

Railroad to Make Its Own Steel Rails.

The report that the Pennsylvania railroad company has secured control of the Pennsylvania Steel company caused Wall street to discuss the effect of the change upon the policy of the iron, and steel companies both in and out of the steel trust, as well as upon the industry itself. It has been known for some weeks that the Pennsylvania railroad was likely to demonstrate its ability to make what it uses. The company it now controls affords to a large extent the opportunity the road wants. The steel company is a producer; it manufactures and sells in the open market. Its capital is not large, comparatively speaking, but now that the big Pennsylvania railroad is behind it its financial backing is of the highest.

Naturally talk centers upon what the company, with the road's backing, can do independently of the United States steel trust and incidentally in opposition to it. Will other roads follow the Pennsylvania and put themselves in a position to make their own rails? Will this be an intimation to the steel trust that it cannot dictate the prices of its products to the big railroads? Will the Bethlehem company be absorbed by the Pennsylvania? Are the interests of the International Navigation company and the Pennsylvania railroad company close enough and big enough to make a combination which, with other companies, manufacturing, industrial, maritime, and financial, can make, sell, and bring to the seaboard and ship abroad as cheaply as the United States Steel company? These are questions heard today, and none seems able to answer them accurately.

The Pennsylvania railroad company in March, when its latest annual report was issued, owned 3,503 of the 50,000 shares of common stock of the Pennsylvania company and 1,371 of the 15,000 shares of the preferred. The report that it had now gained control of the steel company caused the stock of the Pennsylvania railroad to advance today, a net gain of 2 per cent being made.

A report of the Berwynd-White Coal company, which, according to reports current in the financial district, will be acquired by the Pennsylvania railroad company for something like $33,000,000, said: "If there is anything in this story it is news to us. Similar reports have gone out before and have as often been found untrue."

[Steel interests in Chicago hope that the example of the Pennsylvania railroad in establishing its own plant for the manufacture of rails will not be followed by other large railway corporations. Steel men place much reliance on the fact that J. P. Morgan is interested in the steel company and in many railroad systems in the country, and they believe he would protect the steel corporation from loss while at the same time he looked after the railways' by not permitting too high a price to be charged for rails.]

At the local office of the Diamond Match company the report that a consolidation of the English branch of that company with the Bryant & May company would soon be effected was officially denied today.

Standard Oil in the Texas Oil Field.

The Standard Oil company is backing J. M. Guffey and his assistant, Mr. Galey, in developing the southeastern Texas oil fields, according to Mr. Guffey's friends in Wall street. It is also asserted that the Standard Oil people are preparing to market Beaumont oil in New York and Philadelphia at an early date. Last week Mr. McDougall, the Standard Oil company's Pittsburg manager, and one of the best informed oil men in the country, was transferred from Pittsburg to Beaumont and Port Arthur. In addition to this it was learned today that the Standard Oil company has already brought tank steamer loads of the Beaumont oil to the Bayonne refineries.

These tank steamers are the only ones, so far, that have taken cargoes from Port Arthur, it is said. Guffey and Galey have organized their company with a capital of $15,000,000, and their expenditures indicate that they are not hampered by lack of means. C. B. Forward, a Cleveland refiner, confirmed the report today that Cleveland and New York capitalists are to build a refinery capable of refining 2,500 barrels a day at or near tide water in the neighborhood of Port Arthur.

Mrs. Harriet G. Mason Ely, wife of the late Ezra S. Ely of Fredonia, N. Y., and mother of Dr. Richard T. Ely, professor of political economy in Wisconsin University, and formerly of Johns Hopkins University, died on June 10 in Fredonia, N. Y.

New Submarine Boat Launched for the Navy.

A large crowd of people at the Nixon shipyards witnessed the launching this afternoon of the submarine boat Fulton, built by the Holland company, which is now connected with Vickers Sons & Maxim of England. The vessel is a trifle larger than the Holland boat which was bought by the United States government, but similar in its interior construction. It will be used by the company in tests at Peconic Bay by the inventor, John P. Holland.

When the boat went overboard Miss Muriel Rice, daughter of President Rice of the company, broke a bottle of champagne over its sharp nose and gave it its name. The Fulton is the pioneer of a fleet of submarine boats building under patents of this company for the United States government.

Every detail of the equipment and motive power will be perfected in this first boat and its efficiency proven. Work on the other boats, however, is being rushed night and day.

Charles Hyde, millionaire, oil magnate, bank owner, bank President, and railroad owner, died this noon at his home in Plainfield, N. J., after a long illness, from stomach trouble. He was in his eightieth year. He leaves a widow, who was a descendant of the famous astronomer, Keppler.

Agree on Plans for Division of Gilman Estate.

Frazier Gilman, the half-brother of the late millionaire tea merchant of Bridgeport, George Francis Gilman, reached this city today from Georgia to confer with certain full blood relatives with a view to settling the dissensions among the various members of the family upon the question of the deceased merchant's estate. After today's conference had been ended Frazier Gilman said: "We have reached a virtual agreement, according to which the estate is to be divided equally among the full blood and half blood heirs. We don't want to have any lawsuit in this matter.

"We find that the estate is worth about $5,000,000.

"As to the relations of Mrs. Blakely Hall to this case, we think she should be paid a good deal for having taken care of George for three years. I have no doubt that some annuity will by mutual agreement be settled upon Mrs. Hall, although we are satisfied that she has no claim before the law."

A ten-story hotel will be built for J. Lewis Fishers, lessee of the Harlem Casino, on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, adjoining the Casino. He has obtained a lease of the proposed hotel site for twenty years. The hotel will cost about $282,000. The first floor will be ready for occupancy about Dec. 1. The owner of the property is Leslie C. Weed of Brookline, Mass.

Country Festival at Spring House, Dobbs Ferry.

A country festival which was unique in conception and which was successfully carried out was held on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Q. Brown's place, Spring House, at Dobbs Ferry, from 1 to 7 o'clock this afternoon. The object of the festival was to raise money to repair the rectory of the Zion Church, of which the Rev. R. M. Berkeley is pastor, but probably the principal one was the "horse and jackass" hurdle race between H. R. Worthington and James McVickar. Mr. Worthington rode a jackass and Mr. McVickar was mounted on a white horse. It was a close race to the last hurdle, when Mr. Worthington's animal balked and he lost to Mr. McVickar. This race caused much amusement, and the winner received a handsome purse. A May pole dance was a pretty feature. It was taken part in by sixteen young society women, who were gowned as peasants. Mrs. Reginald Jaffray and the Misses Hewitt told fortunes.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, the Misses Archbald, Mrs. J. H. McVickar, Mrs. A. L. Barney, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Jaffray, Mrs. Samuel Todd Davis, Miss Julia Worthington, Mrs. Robert S. Hewitt, the Misses Hewitt, Mrs. Henry Villard, Miss Catte, Mrs. J. Henry Whitehouse, and Miss Linda Lee of Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Syms Lehr, who sailed today on the Majestic, will be absent six weeks, or until about Aug. 1. On their return they will occupy the Pratt cottage at Newport, leased by Mr. Lehr. Mrs. Lehr's little son by her first husband, Master Dahlgren, is at New London at the Pequot House, and will probably remain there until his mother's return from abroad.

More Surprises in Kennedy Murder Trial.

A succession of unlooked-for and startling testimony and legal moves in the battle for the life of Samuel J. Kennedy marked the last day of testimony taking in the Staten Island dentist's third trial before Judge Newburger today on the charge of killing Emeline C. Reynolds. The prosecution's sensational witness was Harris Bottlestein, a watchmaker, who swore he had heard Wagner, one of the defense's alibi witnesses, say that he was to get $75 for testifying in the accused dentist's favor.

The defense, in cross-examination, endeavored to show that Bottlestein had first offered to testify for the defense, but his story was "fishy," and the counsel ordered him out of the office. Bottlestein said that he had dined at the home of John P. Purcell on Staten Island one Sunday during the second trial with Lawyers Moore and Cartwell, Miss Hanratty, Actor Roberts, and Mrs. Kennedy.

Mr. Moore himself went on the stand and denied this, and he also put on Roberts to deny that he was there.

Dr. Alvah H. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, and Miss Blanche Ida Rees were married at the Burlington Apartments, 10 West Thirtieth street, this evening. The bride was formerly of Pittsburg, but has been living in New York since the death of her father, a few months ago.

Uncle Sam will not celebrate the Fourth of July by exploding under the water in the Narrows three and one-half tons of dynamite purchased for use in torpedoes in the Spanish-American war, and now stored at Fort Wadsworth. Two men stepped forward with bids which were opened at the Army Building today and relieved the government of the job of disposing of it by explosion. They were James J. Donovan, who bid three cents a pound, and A. Olsen, who wanted to get the dynamite for one cent a pound. Mr. Donovan got it.

President Ulysus Iglesias of the Republic of Costa Rica announces in a letter to Consul General Juan J. Ulloa that he is soon coming to this city. He is expected to sail from San José next Monday. He will pay a visit to the Pan-American Exposition and then to some mountain resort.

Vaudeville Managers Hold Annual Election.

The Association of Vaudeville Managers of the United States held its second annual election at the headquarters in the St. James Building today. Harmony was the text observed throughout the meeting. The officers elected with almost no opposition were: P. B. Chase of Washington, President, to succeed B. F. Keith of Boston; J. H. Moore of Detroit, Vice President, to succeed George Middletown of St. Louis; F. G. Williams of Brooklyn, Treasurer, to succeed Louis C. Behman of Brooklyn; and P. F. Shea of Springfield, Secretary, to succeed P. B. Chase.

The Eastern Board of Managers will be composed of E. F. Albree, M. Shea, G. E. Lothrop, Richard Hyde, and Jules Hurtig.

The Western board will consist of M. C. Anderson, Charles Kohl, M. Meyerfeld Jr., J. J. Murdock, and J. D. Hopkins.

The policy of the association will continue as heretofore.

Ethel Barrymore Shows Strain of Overwork.

The strain of the long engagement of Miss Ethel Barrymore in "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," at the Garrick Theater, is beginning to tell on her. This afternoon at the conclusion of the second act, where she goes through the most severe part of the entire play, she went into a complete collapse just as the curtain was run down, and was carried from the stage by George Barnum and one other member of the company to her dressing-room, where, after restoratives were administered, she revived sufficiently to continue the remaining part of the play. At the evening performance she appeared greatly improved, but her voice was noticeably hoarse.

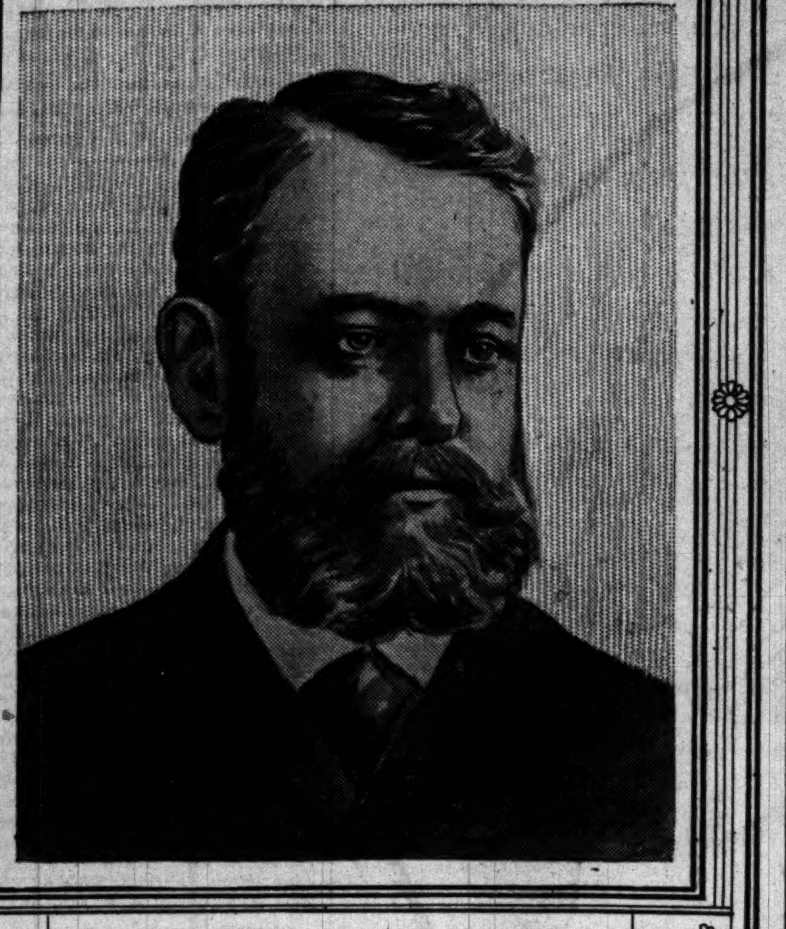

Mrs. Caroline Frances Blatchford, widow of Samuel Blatchford, associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, who has been living in comparative retirement in this city since the death of her husband at Newport on July 7, 1893, died at her residence, 165 West Fifty-eighth street, today, of old age. She was born in 1817.

Tammany Sets Date for Holding Its Convention.

The Tammany city convention will be held on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 3, in the Grand Central Palace, Forty-third street and Lexington avenue, and will nominate the candidates for Mayor, Controller, and President of the Board of Aldermen, who will run on the regular Tammany ticket in the five boroughs of the city. The election will be held on Nov. 4, so that Tammany's campaign will last thirty-two days, including Sundays. The date and place of the convention were decided upon at a conference of committees representing the Democratic organizations in the five boroughs held this evening at the Democratic club. All of the committees are friendly to Croker except one.

The Committee of Fifteen met this afternoon at the office of George Foster Peabody, 27 Pine street. The only information given out was the statement that the committee has no idea of stopping its work, and that it will continue along the line of its original program.

AMERICAN AUTHOR HONORED BY PRUSSIA.

JAMES FORD RHODES

James Ford Rhodes, who is to receive from the Prussian Academy of Science the Loubet prize for the best American history that has appeared within the last decade, is an Ohio man by birth, having been born in Cleveland in 1848. He received his education in the public schools of Cleveland, in the University of Chicago, and in the University of New York, but was graduated from neither college. He was made an LL. D. by Adelbert College and the Western Reserve University. The history which brings him the rare honor from the Prussian Academy is on the United States from the Compromise of 1850 down to 1885, the work being in eight volumes. Mr. Rhodes has been a resident of Boston, for a number of years. He is a member of the exclusive Authors' club of Boston, and is a brother-in-law of Senator M. A. Hanna.

RELICS OF ANTIQUITY IN STREET CAR LINE.

The sensation of ocean travel which passengers obtain on the rough and billowy Milwaukee avenue cable line is only one of the adventures incident to foreign travel which Chicagoans may indulge in without leaving the city limits. One who loves the movement imparted by a prairie schooner careening along over corduroy roads should not overlook the Union Traction company's Canal and Twenty-first street electric line. All reputable guide books to the city now include within their covers the location and some description of this celebrated antiquity, said to be older than Chicago itself, and certainly less sensitive to the influence of progress.

For the guidance of strangers and the adventurously inclined citizen it may be stated that the Canal street line starts at Randolph street, runs along Fifth avenue to Madison street, where it crosses the river, and after a circuitous journey gains Canal street. At Eighteenth street the line diverges till it reaches Twenty-first street, where it continues to the vicinity of Douglas Park.

At last accounting there were three cars on this electric line which, whatever may be said of it, has no equal in the city. They are the original horse cars which were used experimentally two generations ago to solve the problem of surface transportation in Chicago. Now they are equipped with the electric current, but changed in no other particular from the days when horses dragged them over the first surface line.

Every variety of roughing it may be experienced on this line between Fifth avenue and Douglas Park. In Canal street the rails make no pretense of keeping the wheels on the track, and for blocks the cars practically travel on the cobble stones. Then, if the traveler shuts his eyes when Twenty-first street is reached, he may imagine himself in an army ambulance in the bad lands, bounding over rocky hillocks.

A cobwebbed tradition obtains in that section of the city through which the line passes similar in some respects to the tale of Henrik Hudson's crowd of bowlers in the Catskills. The conductors and motormen on the three ancient cars are said to play pinochle all the day long and eke the night on the runs between the terminals of the line. Every time an ace is turned the car is stopped and both conductor and motorman rise solmenly from the game and peer about for passengers. None being observed the car is started and the players return to the game till another ace is turned

ART PROTEST IS IGNORED.

Y. M. C. A. DELEGATES SHOW NO FEAR OF STATUARY.

Great Throng of Members of the International Convention Attends Reception in Boston Museum — Speakers Repudiate Sentiments Expressed in Appeal of Bishop Mallalieu and His Friends—Men of National Fame Address the Evening Session.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—The climax of today's events in the jubilee convention of the Y. M. C. A. was the monster reception this evening in the Museum of Fine Arts, arranged by the women's auxiliaries of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island district. It was this reception that Bishop Mallalieu and others protested against, on the ground that the many statues in the museum were too offensively nude.

The signers of the protest were rebuked today by several speakers in the convention hall. In opening the convention this morning President William E. Dodge implied repudiation on behalf of the convention of the remarkable circular issued yesterday by a few members of the association condemning the Boston Museum of Fine Arts as an improper place for the young men to meet at a reception. Although couched in moderate language, the President's words were strong and forceful, and were greeted by applause.

Addressed by Noted Men.

Great audiences filled Mechanics' Hall at the various sessions of the convention, which were devoted chiefly to the presentation by able speakers of subjects and problems bearing on the progress of the Y. M. C. A. work during the last fifty years. It was the evening meeting which most strongly appealed to the popular taste, on account of the curiosity to see and hear the military and naval heroes, who were announced as speakers, and to catch a glimpse of the other notables who were present merely as auditors.

Among the speakers were Major General Joseph Wheeler, Rear Admiral F. J. Higginson, Captain A. V. Wadhams, U. S. N., Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, and Colonel Curtis Guild Jr., who presided. The result was an immense audience that filled every nook and corner at the big hall, and one that was wildly enthusiastic in its reception of the speakers, especially of General Wheeler and Captain Hobson.

Cheers for Miss Helen Gould.

Mrs. E. A. McAlpin of Sing Sing, N. Y., in her address on "Woman's Work for the Soldiers and Sailors," incidentally mentioned the Christian work which had been done by Miss Helen Gould, and there were loud calls for a speech from that young woman, who was seated upon the platform. She acknowledged the compliment by rising and bowing to the audience, but refrained from making any remarks.

Mrs. Russell Sage also was forced to bow her acknowledgements of a similar demonstration.

There was a manifested desire to have a speech from Rear Admiral Watson, and he briefly responded.

Among the many prominent persons in the audience were Rear Admirals Sampson and Barker with their wives, and other officers of high rank of the army and navy.

After the meeting in the hall had been brought to a close Captain Hobson held an impromptu reception upon the platform, shaking the hands of hundreds who crowded around him for the purpose. The reception at the Museum of Fine Arts followed.

It was announced today that by reason of the pressure of other duties C. C. Michener of Chicago, who was elected Secretary of the convention yesterday, felt obliged to withdraw. In his place was chosen Bruno Hobbs of Cripple Creek, Colo. Mr. Hobbs is Vice President of a bank at his home, and has been an enthusiastic Y. M. C. A. worker for many years.

Permanent Committees Named.

Permanent committees were appointed today, among them being the following:

Committee on Devotional Meetings—H. E. Roseveare, Louisville, Ky.; E. E. Stacy, Indianapolis; Fred A. White, Chicago.

Committee on International Committee Report—E. W. Frost, chairman, Milwaukee; J. J. Gartshare, Toronto; Franklin W. Ganse, Chicago.

International Secretary Reports.

The biennial report of the International committee and the general secretary of the committee, Richard C. Morse, was read.

The Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler of New York, who had been announced as a speaker, was detained at home by illness, but he sent an outline of his address, which was read by the secretary of the convention. Dr. Cuyler said:

"The single and supreme aim of associations from the start was, and must be, to enthrone the Lord Jesus Christ in the hearts of young men. The best achievements are the men it has made. The association is the most splendid example of the beauty and power of loving, working unity in Christ that the age has witnessed."

Greetings from Foreign Lands.

Greetings from delegates from European national unions were presented. Several of the delegates were attired in the costumes of their native land.

"The Contribution of the Association to the Promotion of the Welfare of the Commercial Classes" was the subject of an address by Edwin L. Shuey of Dayton, O.

President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., followed with a discussion on the "Contribution of the Association to the Physical Development of Young Men."

ARTISTS HOLD Y. M. C. A. WRONG.

Nude Pictures in Boston Museum Improper to Only a Few People, They Say.

If Chicago artists are to be accepted as a tribunal in the case of the Y. M. C. A. convention against the "nude art" exhibited in the Boston Museum, Bishop Mallalieu and others will be in a disagreeable position. Oliver Dennett Grover says the man who can see indecency in the human form as represented in the best art galleries in the country is himself indecent. Charles Francis Browne says it is charging the Creator of the universe with indecency to say that the human form is indecent. W. M. R. French, director of the Chicago Art Institute, says the ultimate philosophy in the case is that a man sees what he himself is.

"This is almost utter nonsense," said Mr. Grover, "but at the same time it is serious. It is calling attention to things that become indecent only as attention is called to them. For that reason I say the man who speaks in this manner of the human form is indecent. I can say no more for him."

Director French told a story to illustrate this point. An author and a woman friend he said, were walking through an art gallery, when the woman asked if the author did not consider a certain painting indecent.

"No," he replied, "the picture is not indecent, but your remark is."

"It is the old, old question," said Mr. French, in discussing the matter. "There would never be anything to it if it were not for the way certain people look at such things. It is the uneducated in art who find objections to the nude figure. I cannot find that the study of the nude has had a bad influence on any of our pupils."

"I have just the same fault to find with the men in Boston who have raised this question," said Charles Francis Browne, "as I have with the people who discuss the question how low a woman may have her dress cut. Just as soon as the question is raised, whatever there is indecent about such a thing is created."

"I have often expressed my views on the nude in art," said Lorado Taft, "and I see nothing new in the situation. I am rather surprised that the Y. M. C. A. should take such a position in the matter."

Prescription No. 2,851, by Eimer & Amend, will not cure all complaints, but it will cure rheumatism.

ARMY OFFICERS ROBBING NATION

SUPPLIES ARE STOLEN.

Government Goods Sold Publicly in Stores; Thefts Continue More Than a Year.

TWO CIVILIANS ARRESTED.

San Francisco, Cal., June 12.—[Special.]—Wholesale frauds, the extent of which neither army nor police officials can guess, have been discovered in the Quartermaster's and Commissary departments here. Two civilians already are under arrest, and several others, including some army officers, are likely to be apprehended soon. A large supply of goods stolen from the army stores has been seized.

General Shafter, Colonel M. P. Maus, Inspector General of the Department of California, and Captain of Detectives Seymour are investigating the matter. It is stated by Seymour that collusion between prominent army officers will be proved as well as widespread swindling in the matter of selling government goods taken from the Presidio and other places of storing.

Total of Losses Enormous.

Captain Seymour said today: "The government unquestionably has been robbed for a long time past, and I believe the amount of the losses sustained by Uncle Sam through the treachery and dishonesty of some of his army officers and others will reach into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"The federal grand jury has the matter of prosecution in its hands. I believe that arrests will be made any minute now that will startle the community."

Stores Advertise the Goods.

For months past various stores about the city have been exhibiting signs bearing the words, "Government goods for sale here," and advertisements have even been printed in the daily newspapers boldly announcing the sale of goods stolen from the government and put upon the market at ridiculously low prices. These articles included everything used by soldiers. Colonel Maus began an investigation and located large stocks of goods in stores and warehouses which came from the army storehouses. In every case the merchants said they had bought the goods of Lippman Abrams, who formerly kept a supply store near the Presidio. Abrams and his son George were at once arrested, and this morning in the United States Court they were charged with selling government property. They were released on $5,000 bail each.

Great Scandal Is Certain.

Assistant United States District Attorney Banning said today that the Abrams are only minor figures in a great scandal, but that their arrests will lead to the capture of the more important criminals. He said other arrests were to be made soon, but he would give no names.

Colonel Maus has seized three wagon loads of goods and his search is not yet ended. Most of the articles were found in second-hand stores in the lower end of the city.

It was stated by an officer that upon an investigation of the supplies furnished forty houses it was found that the "rake off" some people secured amounted to 200,000 pounds. The army officials now are making every effort to learn who profited by this extensive fraud.

Begun Over a Year Ago.

The traffic in supplies has been going on for a year or more. General Shafter said today: "Yes, we have discovered that government goods have been sold, but it is no great scandal, only a series of petty thefts."

Colonel Maus and the United States court officers declare that they are on the track of a great scandal.

FIX THE PHILIPPINE DISTRICTS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MANILA, June 12.—The Philippine commission today passed an act defining the court districts and the salaries to be paid to Judges and other employés. There was no discussion of the measure, which places the number of districts at fourteen and supplants the former provincial divisions.

The Chief Quartermaster is making arrangements for Governor General MacArthur's departure for the United States. He will sail on the transport Meade on July 1 for Nagasaki, and after spending two weeks in Japan will reëmbark on the transport Sheridan about July 20.

A Spanish merchant named Calvo has sued for $152,000 for his plantations and haciendas, which were confiscated by the insurrectos. In a similar case which was appealed recently by Benito Fecid the claimant received an award of $32,000.

Cailles Poses as Dictator.

General Sumner has received a notification from Cailles, the insurgent leader in Laguna Province, that unless the General agrees to the Filipinos' terms, which include the granting of amnesty to the insurgents, Cailles will not surrender and the negotiations on the subject are to be considered at an end.

Captain William H. Wilhelm of the Twenty-first Infantry, who was recently wounded in the shoulder in an engagement with insurgents at Lipa, Batangas Province, died today.

Discuss Friar Problem.

PARIS, June 12.—The Rome correspondent of the Temps says the Pope, in private audience which he accorded to Cardinal Gibbons yesterday, discussing the question of the religious orders in Cuba and the Philippines, referred to regularizing the position of the friars and creating a native priesthood who would not be slavish adherents of Spanish traditions. The Pope and Cardinal Gibbons, the correspondent adds, do not deceive themselves regarding the difficulties of the problems they have before them.

Oak Park Man Hurt in Runaway.

Joseph Hawker, a grocery clerk of Oak Park, was severely injured yesterday afternoon in a runaway while returning from Turner Park in a buggy. Hawker was dragged several yards, he was bruised about the head and shoulders, injured internally, and three of his ribs were broken. He probably will recover.

SUMMER BABIES

If you take it in time many a baby will live this summer to be thankful for Liquozone.

For delicate, puny little creatures who take food enough but do not retain it or thrive on it; you try one artificial food after another, and the baby thrives on none; try Liquozone with the food.

The milk of one good cow is best; add a teaspoonful of Liquozone to a pint of milk. It will sterilize the milk perfectly, the baby will take it, keep it, get fat on it. Deal with the artificial foods in the same way; add a few drops of Liquozone to the dose of cod liver oil if you are giving that; a few drops of Liquozone in a little water after feeding has been enough to correct all a baby's stomach troubles.

The same treatment is for any sensitive stomach, infant or adult. Liquozone has cured many cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. Its value in such cases is quite as marked and definite as in tuberculosis, kidney troubles, rheumatism, and others.

The Liquozone method is a new method of cure; it will pay you to try it. One dollar a bottle; if your druggist hasn't it, we have. Booklet free.

FREE TEXT BOOKS FOR FOUR GRADES.

VOTE, 13 FOR; 3 AGAINST.

Trustees Keating and Gallagher Deny Right to Use Money for This Purpose.

BOTH SIDES QUOTE THE LAW

Free text books for the first four grades in the Chicago schools were adopted by the Board of Education last night after one of the most bitterly fought contests that has divided the trustees. The vote was 13 to 3 in favor of adoption, a majority greater than had been expected. During the discussion of the question the repartee became extremely pointed, and Trustee Thomas Gallagher rose to such eloquence that he rumpled his hair, pounded his desk, and called on other members of the board to remember their sacred oath that they would carry out the laws of the State.

"Here we propose to spend $90,000 for free text books," he said, "when children of the public schools are spending their hours in places that are a disgrace to the School board. We are spending this money instead of treating the graduates of the Normal School fairly and honorably by giving them positions as we had promised."

"What is our position in relation to the schools which are caring for 70,000 of our children outside the public schools?" asked Trustee Keating. "Do we owe them nothing for caring for this number of children whom we could not accommodate? We would be a by word and a mockery in Chicago if it were not for the Catholics and Lutherans, who have gone into their pockets and helped to provide for the children."

Proposes No Added Burden.

"No, that's not the situation," replied Trustee Meier. "These schools are afraid the public schools will be made too attractive for the children, and that they will lose their patronage. The taxes have been taken from the parochial schools, and they are paid for tuition. It proposes no added burden to them."

Trustee Keating carried out his implied intention of asking for free text books for private schools after the motion had carried. His resolution created considerable amusement. It provided that the Superintendent of Schools be instructed to supply all private schools of over 100 pupils with free text books upon application.

Mr. Keating denied the purpose was sectarian. His resolution was deferred for two weeks.

The motion which was passed was not the original one from the Committee on School Management, but a substitute offered by Mr. Loesch. Its provisions were the same except that it stated in a long series of whereases the reasons for the action.

The vote on the resolution was as follows:

AFFIRMATIVE.

D. R. Cameron, Cayton Mark, Mrs. C. K. Sherman, Dr. C. S. Dudley, Christian Meier, C. R. Walleck, F. J. Loesch, John F. Wolff, Joseph Stolz, E. F. Rowland, Geo. W. Clausenius, Austin O. Sexton, Graham H. Harris.

NEGATIVE.

John T. Keating, Thos. Gallagher, Jas. A. Paterson.

When the question first came up under unfinished business it was deferred for two weeks. Later Mrs. Sherman and Mr. Wolff came in, and when it was apparent the resolution could be carried Mr. Loesch moved that it be taken up. Eleven votes were necessary to carry it, as that is the rule in all matters involving the expenditure of money. D. R. Cameron and Dr. Dudley had expressed themselves as opposed to free text books at previous meetings, and it was thought until the vote was taken that the resolution would barely squeeze through. As it was it had two votes to spare.

Trustee Loesch started the discussion with this excuse for immediate action:

"I understand there are some people who are waiting to bring a lawsuit. Now, I believe when people want a chance to go to law they should have it."

Mr. Loesch is a lawyer and Trustee Gallagher could not resist the opportunity to get back at him.

"I am not a lawyer," he said, "and I fail to see the profit in giving people lawsuits just because they want them."

The question of the legality of spending public money for free text books was then raised. The Illinois statutes were quoted on both sides of the case. Mr. Loesch alleged that the constitutional provision empowering the board to maintain free public schools and to see that each child under 14 years of age in the State is given a common school education gave it perfect right to furnish free text books. Trustee Gallagher quoted a passage in which the specific power was given to purchase text books for pupils whose parents were unable to afford them.

Cannot Aid Private Schools.

The entire free text book question, with nearly every argument that has been used on either side, was revived before the discussion was over. Rabbi Joseph Stolz said he admired the self-sacrifice of the people who send their children to parochial schools out of loyalty to their convictions. He said it must continue to be a matter of sacrifice to them, as the State could not help to put private schools on the same basis as public schools. Mr. Stolz called attention to the fact that free text books would be much cheaper and that the chief enemies were the book companies.

Superintendent Cooley was much pleased with the outcome of the struggle. "I am much interested in seeing free books tried in the Chicago schools," he said. "I have taken no part in the discussion of the matter with the board, feeling sure the members would consider the matter carefully. A careful consideration means conviction. I was at one time strongly opposed to free text books. I am glad the whole subject was discussed with the arguments on both sides, for the conclusion will be more satisfactory and permanent."

May Seek an Injunction.

The way is now paved, as Mr. Loesch suggested, for the injunction suit which the United Catholic Societies will bring. The petition is ready, and if the intention of those who have it in charge is carried out it will be filed today.

A few minor matters were passed on by the board last night. Trustee Keating's resolution making the appointment of certain delinquent principals provisional on their improvement appeared in a new form. It included teachers and cadets as well. Superintendent Cooley was instructed to notify all principals, teachers, and cadets whose work is not satisfactory that if at the end of four months in the next term it has not improved they will be dropped from the pay roll. The special teachers and assistant principals lost their rank, and with the exception of those in schools of over 1,200 pupils will be reduced to the class of eighth grade teachers.

RABBI HIRSCH AT GRINNELL.

Forty-six Students Are Graduated from the Iowa Institution—Gift of $1,000 Announced.

Grinnell, Ia., June 12.—[Special.]—Commencement exercises were closed here today by the graduation of the senior class of forty-six members. Diplomas were given by Acting President Main. The commencement address was delivered by Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago. Dr. Hirsch spoke for the small college, saying that the small college could not be spared from the educational system. He urged the college men to take the scholarship out into life. President Main announced the gift of $1,000 to the college, to be used for library purposes. The gift is from Professor L. F. Parker.

STUDENTS GIVE FULL DRESS REHEARSAL OF "AS YOU LIKE IT."

The forest of Arden was deluged with water last night, and fair Rosalind, the melancholy Jaques, and all the other woodland dwellers at the University of Chicago were forced to gather up their gaudy raiment and flee to the friendly shelter of Kent Theater, where the first full dress rehearsal was held, with only the bare, unromantic brick walls for background and scenery. Instead of finding Orlando's verses in the hollow of an oak tree, Rosalind was forced to seek them under the piano lid. The merry foresters carried prosaic chairs in lieu of bundles of wood.

In the meantime, Professor Clark and several assistants were laboring with shovels to make a trench sufficiently large and deep to carry off the lake which formed around the center pole of the big tent. After an hour's effort the water was led off into a sewer. Professor Clark gives assurance of absolute dryness and comfort when the performance takes place tomorrow night.

The picture represents the closing scene of the first act, after Orlando has thrown the wrestler. The characters, beginning at the left, are: E. G. Frazier as Touchstone, Agnes Wayman as Audrey, C. C. Nuckols as Oliver, Lorena King as Celia, B. G. Nelson as Orlando, Grace Baird as Rosalind, W. L. McCaskill as Sylvius, and Frances Donovan as Phœbe.

ADIEU TO LAKE FOREST.

FOURTEEN GRADUATES RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS.

Announcement of Purchase of Dr. Hopkins' "Evidences of Christianity," in Fulfillment of Governor William Bross' Will, Made at Commencement —Gifts of Scholarship and to Ferry Hall—Banker Displaces Usual Clergyman in Making Address.

Presentation of diplomas to fourteen graduates was only a part of the interest attached to the annual commencement at Lake Forest University yesterday. Announcement was made that in fulfillment of the will made by the late Governor William Bross, the university had purchased from the heirs of Dr. Mark Hopkins, former President of Williams College, the right to publish his "Evidences of Christianity." Official announcement of the acceptance by Dr. Richard D. Harlan of the Presidency of the university and Dr. McClure's resignation also was made. The gift of $1,500 by Mrs. William H. McClure of Albany, N. Y., to establish a memorial scholarship in honor of her daughter, was made public, as also were gifts of $500 from Granger Farwell to Ferry Hall and of $1,500 from "a friend" to the building fund of Ferry Hall. And, further, the usual rule to have a clergyman address the graduating class was changed, and the speaker yesterday was a banker.

Governor William Bross on Nov. 5, 1879, provided a fund of $40,000 for Lake Forest University, the interest from which was to be offered as a premium for the best book "on the connection, relation, and mutual bearing of any practical science, the history of our race, or the facts in any department of knowledge with and upon the Christian religion." His purpose, as set forth in his will, was to show that "science and revelation coincide, and prove the existence, the providence, or any or all of the attributes of the only living and true God. As furthering this purpose he directed the trustees of the university to purchase the rights to "Evidences of Christianity," Dr. Mark M. Hopkins having been a friend and teacher of the testator. The bequest was made in memory of Mr. Bross' son Mattie, who died in 1856.

After making the purchase the trustees have a balance of $12,000, and from this sum will continue to offer premiums for works showing harmony between science and the Christian religion as outlined in Mr. Bross' will. The publication of Dr. Hopkins' writings is to be the first volume of a series called "Bridgewater Treatises," all to be premium works.

Banker Speaks to Graduates.

David R. Forgan of the First National Bank was commencement day orator. The exercises were held in Lake Forest Presbyterian Church, President James G. K. McClure presiding. Mr. Forgan said in part:

"I suppose there is an atmosphere about university life different from what we business-men breathe. You have mathematics instead of manufactures, philosophy instead of finance. Dead language gives you as much trouble as dead assets give us. Your quotations are from the classics, not from the markets. Your speculations are only scientific; your notes are merely foot notes; and your checks are the college rules. Bookkeeping is not unknown among you, for you sometimes borrow and forget to return, but, generally speaking, I suppose there is little in common between college and commercial life.

"The life of a successful business-man, though devoted mainly to making money, need not be sordid. He, too, may have his ideal. Let me suggest one. To be honest, making money honestly or not at all; to be fair, refusing to injure a competitor; to be just, remembering that all must live; to be kind, regarding employés as something more than an investment; to be charitable, giving liberally for the upraising of humanity; to be sociable, having a side to friends not known to all; to be lovable, being more to wife and family than a means of support; to be sympathetic, fearing littleness of soul more than littleness of fortune; above all to be true to one's self, condoning nothing in self which is to be condemned in others."

These Awarded Diplomas.

Elizabeth Andrews, Maud Anthony, D. F. Biggs, C. F. Carstens, F. A. Crippen, An-Miriam Douglass, G. W. Dowrie, H. N. Howland, R. J. L. Matthews, E. R. Ray, J. F. Scouller, Florence L. Stuart, R. C. Schwank, Margaret Wight.

Luncheon in the Art Institute ended the commencement exercises. There were about 250 people in attendance, made up of alumni, faculty, trustees, students, and guests of the university. The guests were served by the lower classmen of the college. The college Mandolin club furnished several selections during the luncheon.

DAY MARKED BY CLASS RIOT.

Commencement Exercises at the Illinois Normal University Enlivened by Rivalry Between Students.

Carbondale, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Commencement exercises today were marred greatly by an episode bordering on a class riot between the two higher classes of the Illinois Normal University.

The class day exercises were of a high literary order, eliminating the intense excitement at the time. Dr. Parkinson, President of the school, said: "I regret the incident today and every effort hereafter will be made to eliminate such proceedings."

IOWA SELECTS A CHICAGO MAN.

Dr. H. W. Stuart, Ph. D., Chosen as Assistant Instructor of Philosophy at the State University.

Iowa City, Ia., June 12.—[Special.]—Dr. H. W. Stuart, Ph. D., University of Chicago, was elected assistant instructor of philosophy by the Board of Regents of the State University of Iowa today. He will succeed Dr. H. H. Bawden, who goes to Vassar.

R. D. George, instructor in geology, resigned to go to Chicago University.

H. L. Bush, M. A., B. M., of Harvard was elected instructor in French.

Miss Hazel Beardshear, daughter of President Beardshear of Ames, was named a scholar in English.

Professor F. E. Bolton of Iowa City was placed in charge of the department of pedagogy.

PLANS FOR GALA EVENT.

Corner Stones of New Buildings to Be Laid and Honorary Degrees Awarded.

ROCKEFELLER TO BE HERE.

Celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of the University of Chicago will begin tomorrow and continue for five days and nights. The time will be taken up with speechmaking, corner-stone laying, dramatic performances, and athletics, and the students and professors will be aided by scores of distinguished visitors from colleges of America and Europe. The presence of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller will be a feature of special interest.

Tomorrow has been set apart for the students of the junior college, who will begin the festivities with an interfraternity athletic meet at Marshall Field in the forenoon. In the afternoon will be the annual ivy planting, with Claude C. Nuckols as the ivy orator. Following this the dramatic club will give "A Night Off" at Rosalie Hall. A band concert and baseball game between Chicago and Wisconsin will conclude the afternoon program. At 8 o'clock the first performance of "As You Like It" will be given in the tent east of Cobb Hall. At the same time the junior promenade will take place at the Chicago Beach Hotel.

Saturday will be marked by the arrival of John D. Rockefeller, who will reach the city over the Lake Shore railroad at 7 o'clock a. m., accompanied by Mrs. Rockefeller. Dr. Harper will meet them at the station and conduct them to the campus, where the founder's flag will be raised for the first time and be kept flying during the subsequent days of decennial week. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller will be the guests of President Harper until after the convocation on Tuesday.

First Corner-Stone to Be Laid.

The first of the corner-stones will be laid on Saturday morning. This will be at Hitchcock Hall, the new dormitory for men. Nancy Foster Hall, which has just been completed by the addition of a $20,000 annex, will be dedicated formally with a speech by Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer. The senior class will occupy the campus during the afternoon, and the chief feature of their exercises will be the presentation of the memorial tablet to Stephen A. Douglas, which will adorn the walls of one of the new buildings. Class reunions, the alumni dinner, and another baseball game will fill out the remainder of Saturday afternoon, and the evening will be taken up with a repetition of "As You Like It."

Monday will be Educational day, and will be marked by educational conferences at which men of worldwide reputation for scholarship will lecture on literature, science, and history. The University School of Education, formerly the Chicago Institute, will be opened formally on the ground donated by Mrs. Scammon. President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California will deliver the address before the Phi Beta Kappa society.

Closes with the Convocation.

The exercises of the week will culminate with the convocation on Tuesday, at which John D. Rockefeller will deliver the principal address. This will take place in the convocation tent, which is being erected in the center of the campus. Besides granting the usual bachelor and doctor's degrees to 200 graduates, honorary degrees will be given to twelve men eminent in different fields of learning. In the forenoon prior to the convocation exercises the corner-stones will be laid of the University Press Building, the commons, the tower, the clubhouse, and the Leon Mandel Assembly Hall. A similar initiation of the new gymnasium will be deferred for a month because of inability to complete the plans for the building. The concluding event of the decennial festivities will be the congregation dinner at the Quadrangle club, where Mr. Rockefeller and other guests will respond to toasts.

Two thousand five hundred friends of the institution arose and remained standing while the members of the faculty took seats on the platform, the graduates being seated in front. Prayer was offered by Rector Wilkinson of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, after which the address of the day was delivered by Luther Laflin Mills of Chicago.

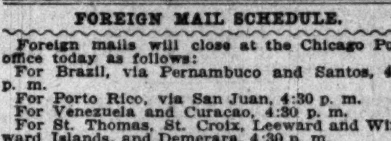

Mr. Mills spoke on "The Obligations of the Individual to the Community," and at the outset of his address paid a high tribute to the achievements of the people of Illinois during the last 100 years, referring to its growth, the development of its material resources, its devotion to the unity of the nation, its patriotism toward flag and country, its wise legislation, and its magnificent system of free schools and institutions of higher learning.

After many days of trial, tribulation, affliction, persecution, contumely, and despair Loftus' Remnants turned yesterday and revenged themselves by inflicting a stinging defeat to Brooklyn, making Hanlon's perennial champions look cheap, even as they themselves have looked cheap many times. The score at the end was 8 to 1, and the champions got the one only by a scratch hit in the ninth inning.

Terrible Thomas Hughes, the outlaw of Logan Square, turned the tide by his magnificent pitching. With a dime novel in his trouser's pocket and his trusty right arm oiled up, Terrible Thomas wound the ball around the heads of his enemies, pitched corkscrew curves which encircled the bats of the men from Gowanus Bay, without touching them, and, aided by some clever fielding, he held the champions easily in check through the entire game, pitching desperately in the few times that danger threatened.

Hanlon's men were wild to win. They rowed, wrangled, and howled over decisions until Cunningham drove two of them, McGuire and Dahlen, to the bench, and then, seeing their efforts were being wasted, they succumbed meekly to the inevitable and played out the string with a hope of victory.

Kitson started to pitch and lasted two innings, being driven to shelter by a torrent of base hits which yielded Chicago six runs and practically ended the game. Then Roaring Bill Kennedy essayed to stop the slaughter and succeeded, for Loftus' men could not hit him when they needed hits to make runs materialize, although gifts and errors presented the Remnants with two more tallies.

Chance's Debut as Outfielder.

Chance débuted in right and did well, getting everything hit out that way, drawing a base, making a hit, and stealing twice, so altogether it was a merry occasion for the home team, to whom merry occasions are rare as yacht races in the Sahara.

Chicago got after Kitson in the first inning, when Hartsel tripled, scored on an out, and after two were out Chance singled, stole, and scored on Childs' hit.

The third brought confidence of victory to the crowd. Raymer and McCormick started the inning with hits, and both pegged another hole on McGuire's wild throw. McCormick, however, came near ending the rally by getting nipped off second when Daly dashed back, grabbed McGuire's quick throw, and caught him off the bag. Kahoe struck out and the crowd groaned, but Terrible Thomas Hughes cracked a single to right and another redskin bit the dust. Hartsel drew a base, and Green lifted a long triple to right center, scoring a moment later on Dexter's two-bagger.

That was all for Mr. Kitson, and in his place appeared Roaring Bill Kennedy, whose hair has faded in the suns of a score of league seasons. Mr. Kennedy made it exceedingly hard for the Remnants to make runs. They had plenty of chances, but not a score was registered until the sixth, when Kahoe walked, and was saved when Daley made a most egregious muff. Kennedy's fumble of Hartsel's bunt filled the bases, and Kahoe scored on an out. In the eighth questionable hits by Hughes and Hartsel and an out scored Hughes.

Hughes Pitches Great Games.

During all this time Terrible Tom had been weaving a network of queer curves around the plate which the Brooklynites could not hit. He gave some bases, but most of the deadheads were nipped at second by Kahoe's nice throws. Trouble threatened in the fourth when Kelley made Brooklyn's first hit, and Raymer made an excusable fumble of Keeler's hard bounder. Sheckard flied to Green, and Daly struck out. Dahlen drew a questionable pass, filling the bases, but Childs gobbled McCreery's line drive, ending the danger. In the fifth Brooklyn had a chance, but, with Gatins on first, Dexter grabbed McGuire's hot bounder, touched the bag, and chased Gatins to death down the line. McGuire argued the ball was foul, and was put on the bench, and, a few minutes later, Dahlen, who was getting weary, anyhow, was exiled for expressing disapproval of Cunningham.

Up to the ninth Brooklyn had made but two hits of Hughes and nary a run. Daly started the ninth with a short fly to right and Davis hit to center. McCreey hit a bounder half way to third and beat it, filling the bases, and, after Gatins flied out to Childs, Farrell lifted a fly to Chance and Daly trotted home, saving the champions from a shutout. HART BOWS TO A. FREEDMAN.

Chicago Club President Declares There Is Nothing to Prevent New York from Voting Itself Pennant.

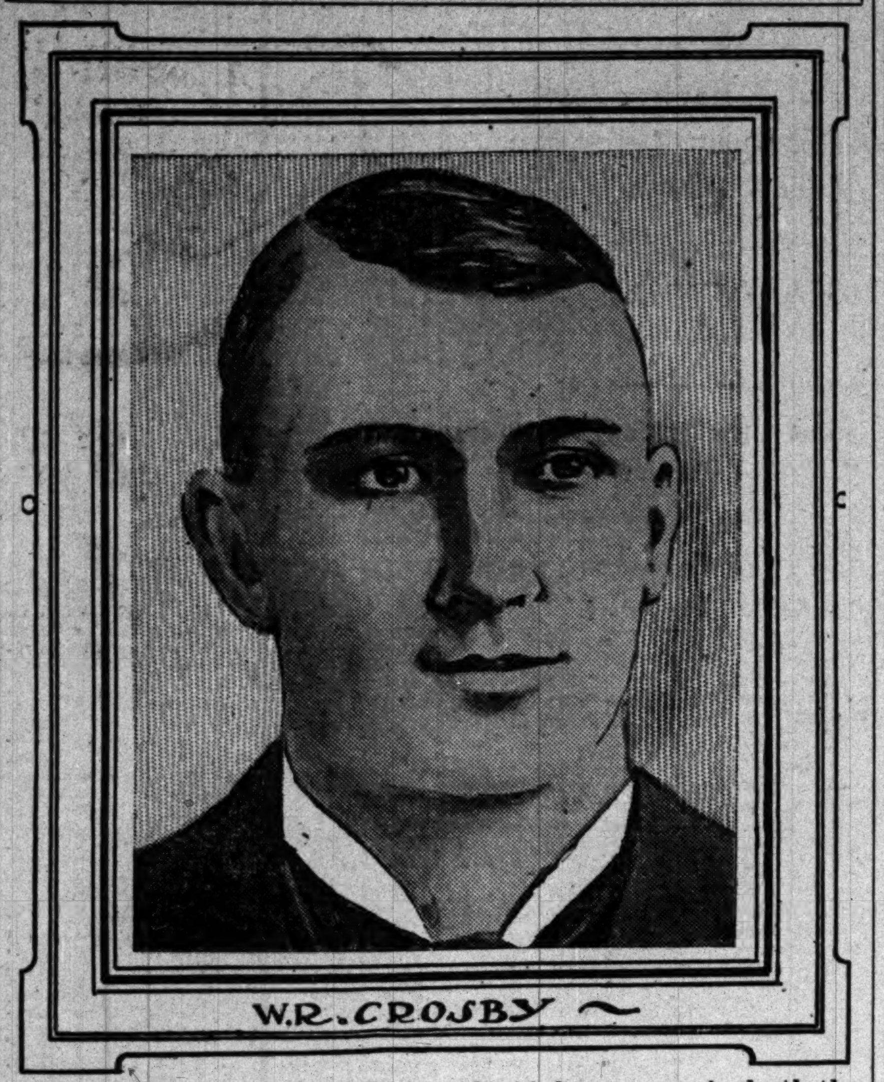

James A. Hart, beaten in his attempt to prevent A. Freedman from installing himself as dictator to the National league, broke loose yesterday and gave out one of the choicest interviews of his baseball career. Apropos of the failure of six league magnates to support him in his attempt to fight Freedman in the Nash case, Hart said:

"It is sacrilege to say anything against Nick Young. It is mutiny to say anything against Freedman. So I am constrained to say nothing.

"I take off my hat to A. Freedman. He is it. He can get six votes on any proposition. I can't see anything under the heavens to prevent New York from winning the championship. New York can try all four umpires, and then take any one it wants and object to all the rest. If New York can do that with one umpire I can see nothing to prevent it going through the list. I'm in a hopeless minority. All that is left is to shut my eyes and hold my nose. I said before the season started I hoped everything would be bunched this year. I guess we are getting everything that is coming."

The New York club will open a series against Chicago this afternoon. George Davis, Freedman's right-hand man, notified President Hart that Matthewson will pitch on Saturday, so Rube Waddell has been chosen to oppose him.

Cincinnati and Boston Tie.

Cincinnati, O., June 12.—Crolius' drive to left was lost in a pile of lumber in the ninth inning, and this hit went for a home run and tied the score, Nichols also scoring on it. After that neither side could score, and the game was called at the end of the twelfth on account of darkness. Nichols' wildness was responsible for the Cincinnatis' runs, while poor fielding gave the visitors most of theirs. Kittridge was put out of the game for kicking. Attendance, 1,500. Score:

First Match Play Round in Women's Spring Tournament at Skokie This Afternoon.

The first match play round in the woman's spring tournament of the Skokie club will be played this afternoon. Those who qualified were Mrs. F. W. Copeland, Miss Edythe Parker, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Hankey, Miss Landon, Mrs. F. G. Howell, Miss V. K. Spicer, Mrs. Morse, Mrs. A. G. Bennett.

At the Homewood Country club the first of a series of nine-hole medal play matches for women is scheduled.

Notes of the Golfers.

The annual open tournament of the Allegheny Country club will commence this morning.

During the storm of last week lightning struck the sand box at the first tee of the Riverside Golf club, knocking a hole in the bottom.

A drive through the Desplaines River is now a feature of the journey to the Riverside course. The bridge is labeled unsafe, and as the water in the river is low the teams go through without any trouble.

In the City league match at Riverside on Tuesday Craig of the home team gave De Wolf, his opponent, permission to wipe some mud off his ball. De Wolf reciprocated by laying him a stymie, and both laughed.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Baltimore, Md., June 12.—[Special.]—Muggsy McGraw's Orioles scored a victory over the Champions today. Sheridan drove Griffith to the bench, then, not satisfied, ordered the pitcher off the field. The score was 8 to 1.

Griffith on several occasions had called Sheridan's attention to strikes the umpire had missed, and Sheridan had warned him, but the climax came in the eighth inning, when Griffith came to bat. The first ball up Sheridan called a strike. The ball cut the corner of the plate, but Griffith did not strike at it. Griffith then stepped out of the batter's box, and, as he did so, Foreman again delivered the ball. It was away off to one side and Sheridan refused to call it a ball as Griffith was not in the box. After arguing for several minutes Sheridan finally ordered Griffith out of the game. The Chicago manager went to the bench, but still continued talking to Sheridan, who came over to the bench and told him to get off the field. Griffith went into the grand stand and sat down in a box, but Sheridan persisted, and Griffith left the grounds. As he was going out the crowd arose and cheered him. After Griffith was exiled Isbell went in to pitch the closing inning and Sugden covered the initial bag.

The game was devoid of important features unless it was the pitching of Frank Foreman, who allowed the visitors only three hits. "Old Man" Foreman, for the pitcher has been resurrected and is now serving his second time on earth, used to pitch for Baltimore in the other league years ago, and in those days could do a few stunts at twirling. He pitched magnificently today, and although he did not use many curves or fancy work, was nevertheless effective.

Jackson, the Oriole's centerfielder last year, a youngster in Philadelphia, and Brodie played fine ball. Brodie distinguished himself by cracking out four hits in five times at bat, and it was his batting that started the Orioles on the road to victory.

The Champions did not play with the vim displayed in the Washington series. Perhaps it was the torrid atmosphere that caused their listless state. The Orioles started off in the lead in the first inning, when McGraw hit down to Shugart. Brodie then hit to center, but Hoy could not pick up the ball. McGraw went to third and Brodie to second. A moment later McGraw scored on Williams' fly to Jones. Dunn hit to right and stole second, where he was safe because Mertes dropped Sullivan's throw. Seymour ended the inning by flying to Mertes.

Four more runs were accumulated in the third inning when Brodie opened with a hit to right and went to second on McFarland's misjudge of the bound. Williams flied out to Jones, Dunn sacrificed, and Brodie scored. Seymour hit to right and Dunn scored on Jackson's out from Griffith to Isbell. Then Hart singled to right and went to second when Jones let the ball roll through him, Seymour scoring. Robinson hit to left and Hart scored. This ended the trouble.

Chicago scored its only run in the fifth. Hartman started with a single to left and stole second. Shugart got a pass, and Hartman scored a moment later on McFarland's hit to right. Sullivan flied out to Jackson and Shugart was doubled at second on Griffith's line drive straight into Williams' hands.

The Orioles scored one in the fifth on a hit by Foreman and an error of Mertes, who allowed an infield fly to land safely. Brodie started the sixth with a slashing three-baser to the clubhouse, which should have been a home run, and scored on Williams' grounder to Shugart. Still another was added in the ninth, when hits by McGraw and Williams scored "Muggsy." Score:

Notes of the Game.

Isbell had Sullivan jumping all over after his wide curves and "Sully" was glad when the inning came to an end. Isbell is going to pitch in an exhibition game to be played at Newark next Sunday.

Jackson made a beautiful catch of Mertes' line drive in the fourth inning, catching the ball off his shoe strings.

Foreman received his first trial today. Last year he was released by Buffalo and was turned loose by Boston early this season.

The ground in the outfield at Oriole Park is so rough it is almost impossible to judge the ball on the bound. The Oriole fielders come in after the ball and take it on the fly.

Lewis Ties Morgan Park 5 to 5.

Lewis Institute tied Morgan Park Academy at Morgan Park yesterday in one of the most exciting games of the season. The score was 5 to 5 at the end of the ninth inning, when the storm came and prevented another inning. Both Houghton and Woods pitched star games, but Woods led with thirteen strikeouts for Lewis, against nine to Houghton's credit.

Unless South Side plays Morgan Park to settle the championship on Saturday Lewis will play off the tie with Morgan Park on city grounds. Score:

Chicago Cadets Successful.

Delafield, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—In the field day sports at the St. John's Military Academy today Cadet Clarence Steinhardt of Chicago won the Jackson B. Kemper gold medal as the best athlete in school, taking first in all the long and short runs and scoring thirty-two points for the first class. Cadets William Lander, Arthur Becker, and Espy of Chicago also scored many points.

New Haven, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—William H. Murphy, captain of the Yale baseball nine in 1892, shortstop for New York in 1894, and later coach at the University of Pennsylvania, arrived today to take charge of the Yale baseball nine for the remainder of the season.

KENOSHA BIDS FOR YACHT RACE.

Citizens of Wisconsin Town Offer Prizes for Chicago Boats to Win on July 6.

Citizens of Kenosha have offered to donate $300 worth of prizes to be raced for by the boats of the Chicago Yacht club on July 6 if the owners are willing, and there is little doubt that they are.

According to the present schedule, the club fleet will leave Chicago on July 2 for Kenosha, and from there will sail to Milwaukee to take part in the Fourth of July regatta. The boats will return to Kenosha and the citizens of that place are anxious for them to race there on Saturday, July 6. As several of the cup defenders will be in the fleet good racing is insured.

Prairie, which has been in winter quarters at Kenosha, arrived in the harbor last night, dropping anchor shortly after the storm broke. It will compete in the regatta of the Chicago Yacht club on Saturday, and as Illinois is in trim a race between the thirty-five-footers is sure to take place.

Adverse winds have delayed Minota, but it is hoped it will arrive before Saturday and take part in the race. George R. Pearce has arranged to stay over and sail Siren in its race with Vencedor.

Cripples Wisconsin Crew.

Madison, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—Faculty Director of Athletics Professor C. S. Slighter received word today that the rules of the Intercollegiate Rowing association would debar Jordan from rowing on the varsity this year. There is also some question as to McComb and Hobbins of the freshmen crew, who are entered as specials in their respective courses. Jordan rowed with the varsity this afternoon, but tomorrow Coach O'Dea will have to start upon the work of fitting a new man for No. 4, the place Jordan has filled all through the season. The varsity and freshmen crews pulled up to the mile mark this afternoon and took a lively spurt down to the finish line, the regulars winning out by nearly two lengths. The varsity was given several short races with the second crew, covering eight miles in all.

AMERICANS LEAD BRITISH SHOTS.

Score on Second Day of International Shoot Is 83 Targets in Their Favor.

WILL BE SETTLED TODAY

Final Result a Foregone Conclusion—Sweepstakes and a Live Bird Contest Arranged.

CROSBY STILL THE LEADER.

LONDON, June 12.—The international clay bird trap shooting match, which was begun yesterday on the grounds of the Middlesex Gun club, Hendon, was resumed under entirely different weather conditions today. Rain, with varying winds, fell during the early afternoon, making shooting extremely difficulty. The Americans gathered confidence, however, from their work of yesterday and their growing familiarity with their surroundings.

At the end of the sixtieth round, when each side had shot at 600 targets, the British gunners had broken 476 and the Americans 524.

Out of the first sixty targets W. R. Crosby broke 58; Fred Gilbert, 56; John S. Fanning, 55; and R. O. Heikes, 54.

The match closed for the day in a driving rain, with the following totals: Americans, 877; British, 794.

When the contest closed this afternoon it was believed tomorrow's shoot would surely end the match in favor of the Americans. Their average today was decidedly better than that of yesterday, but the team will be disappointed if tomorrow's average, under anything like favorable conditions, does not exceed 90 per cent.

Crosby led today's score with 95 per cent of kills, Heikes and Gilbert with 93 per cent each, and Tripp with 90 per cent. No member of the American team secured less than 87, whereas the highest British score was 87 per cent. In view of the fact that tomorrow's match will decide the contest, a number of sweepstakes have been arranged for Friday and Saturday, and a live bird contest for Monday, after which the American team will go to Glasgow, proceeding from that city to Germany and France.

STAR BRIGHT WINS GOOD RACE.

Five Suburban Aspirants Meet at Gravesend and Have Hard Struggle—Five Fall on Hurdles.

New York, June 12.—With the track lightning fast and good-sized fields in all the six events on the program at the Gravesend race course today, 8,000 patrons had all the sport and excitement that could be desired.

The handicap at one mile and a quarter, aside from its excellent promise as a contest, was interesting in that of the seven horses that ran five are entries for the Suburban Handicap to be run on Saturday. Standing, who ran third in the Brooklyn Handicap, was the top-weight and favorite throughout the betting. Star Bright was looked at questioningly by the shrewd bettors. Kamara, Kilogram, and All Gold were backed; but Terminus in the end was made the second choice. Kilogram went out and made the running, with All Gold second, and Star Bright third, to the far turn, when Star Bright went to the front, Standing, at the same time, moving forward from fourth place, followed by Kamara. Standing faltered, and, although he continued to move forward until the stretch was reached, there began to swerve, and was pulled up, hobbling on three legs. Star Bright went on, hotly pursued by Kamara and Terminus. Star Bright, hanging on to the end, won hard ridden by three parts of a length from Kamara, with Terminus a length farther away, in the remarkable fast time of 2:06⅘, or within three-fifths of a second of the track record, made by Banastar in the Brooklyn Handicap two years before.

He has now a good Suburban prospect. Kamara ran a phenomenal race. He broke slowly and was interfered with and came with a rattling burst of speed in the stretch. Terminus was poorly handled and ran a high-class race. Standing broke down.

Third race, ⅝ mile, $700 added, 2-year-olds:

Hewitt]; Brahmin, 108 [Brennan]; Marothen, 84 [Goodyear]; Oliver Mc., 106 [Landry]; and Manchuria, 91 [Gannon], finished as named. Winner, br. g., by Friar Tuck—Keepsake. Start poor. Won driving; second the same. Lucky Star's victory was due to superb handling, although he ran a good race. Tinge finished strong. Knight of the Garter was nearly left, worked a rough passage, and was going fastest at the finish.

Fifth race, about 2½ miles, handicap, the Greater New York Steeplechase, value $1,600:
Bet. Horse, weight, jockey. St. 8 16 Str. Fn.
4-1 P. Partout, 157 [Hueston] 4 3[1] 1[1] 1[1] 1[2]

Winner, ch. g., by St. Florian—Everywhere. Start good. Won ridden out; second easily. Passe Partout won through superior jockeyship and roughed it several times. George Keene was poorly handled and should have won. He was bumped when a half from the finish, nearly fell to his knees, and afterward was shut off in the stretch. Perion was a close contender throughout.

Sixth race, 5½ furlongs, $700 added, 2-year-olds, maidens:

Winner, ch. c., by Goldfinch—La Belle Juive. Start straggling. Won in a canter; second driving. Gold Seeker galloped along under a big pull throughout and was much the best. BOTH CREWS AT NEW LONDON.

Harvard Oarsmen Arrive on the Thames—Send to Yale for a Case of Ale.

New London, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Yale and Harvard crews dipped companion oars this evening into the surface of the Thames. The Harvard varsity squad arrived at 6 and had unloaded their shells from the baggage cars and towed them up the river behind the launch John Harvard to Red Top by 7 o'clock. Before the Harvard oarsmen had been here fifteen minutes Head Coach E. C. Starrow had the varsity four and the varsity eight out on the Thames. They were just starting for a spin down the course when the Yale eight came paddling down in an attempt to cover the course. The Yale oarsmen had expected to finish their spin before the Harvard crews arrived. They were astounded when they ran into Harvard squad, and turned back up the river. They only work this evening consisted of a mile and a half in short stretches up stream.

Head Coach Starrow figured in an incident which attracted some attention. He turned the nose of the launch John Harvard up stream, when the Yale crew paddled away from the Harvard eight and followed the Yale men in their evening row. Later this evening the Harvard men snowed their neighborly feeling by sending up to Yale quarters for a case of ale for the use of the oarsmen.

The Harvard freshmen did not accompany the varsity eight and four. The 1904 lads will be detained in Cambridge till Friday evening by examinations. Coach Starrow said his varsity squad came here in first-class condition. He brought only three shells, a new and an old eight-oared and a four-oared boat.

In the Yale freshman eight two cases of overtraining were reported tonight. They are Adams, stroke, and Cross, No. 2. The freshmen have been prevented since their arrival from going over the course by a series of accidents. Stubbs' sprained ankle, Captain Wrymouth's absence, and the overtraining of Adams and Cross have kept the eight from taking any time rows.

Captain Blagdon of Yale varsity said this evening his men still had difficulty in getting smooth recovery. They rush their slides badly. He said he was pleased at the improvement in securing a firm, quick catch.

Plans for the Race.

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Yale and Harvard crew managers met today on the arrival of the Cambridge oarsmen and decided upon the boats of the officials for the races between the two universities here on June 27. August Belmont's yacht Scout will be the official's boat. Colonel A. Hart McKee's yacht Parthenia, a Pittsburg craft, will be the judges' boat at the finish, and Nuska, owned by Cyrus Field Judson of New York, will be the referee's boat.

Penn Crew at Poughkeepsie.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12.—[Special.]—"Come, boys, get out and limber up a little," was Josh Ward's first salutation to the brawny Quaker athletes when they arrived at Highland this afternoon. The varsity and the freshmen eights got into their shells and took a pull along the lee shore in the shade, while Ward coached them with a megaphone, sitting on a rocky bluff north of the boathouse. The Quaker colony numbers twenty-seven men. During their stay on the Hudson the men will take practice every morning and evening for ten days, letting up a little the last week of training. Coach Ward is said to be confident the freshmen will not be found in the ruck on July 2.

LAWSON TO RACE AT NEWPORT.

Boston Boat to Compete Against Constitution and Columbia—Mainsail to Be Reduced.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—Thomas W. Lawson has entered Independence in the series of races arranged by the Newport Yacht Racing association, to be sailed off Newport by the cup defenders on July 6, 8, 10, and 12.

He was invited to enter his boat in this class some weeks ago, but while he acknowledged the invitation nothing definite was heard from him whether he would race.

Yachtsmen are delighted at his action, for it makes it certain that Independence will meet Constitution.

The several trials given the Lawson yacht Independence have proved conclusively that it is a bit too tender. It was designed for a light weather boat, but there are conditions which every boat must meet, hence the decision this afternoon to reduce the total sail area 200 square feet. Four feet will be cut off the heel of the mast and six feet off the topmast. This will reduce the total mast length ten feet. Two feet will be cut off the mainsail from the leech to the luff; also some few square feet from the headsails.

Mr. Crowninshield, the designer, and Captain Haff feel that the change will make Independence faster, as it will give the stiffness requisite for hard usage if it becomes necessary to call upon the boat for every unit of power.

Independence will be taken to the Atlantic works tomorrow for the taking out of its mast, and on Friday it will be docked at the navy yard to make the changes found necessary by the refusal of the balance rudder to work properly. It will not be ready to sail again in less than a week. There was little air stirring when the big yacht was taken outside the Light for today's trial, no more than sufficient to test the set of the club topsail, which was good.

New-Yorkers May Buy Independence.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—There was a rumor in yachting circles today that a yacht broker was trying to induce some New York yachtsmen to purchase Independence and that some wealthy members of the New York Yacht club were favorably considering the proposition. It was said Thomas Lawson, realizing he could not take part in the races and squadron runs of the New York Yacht club without transferring the yacht to some member of that organization, had decided he would sell. He is sure he has a wonderfully fast boat, and to satisfy the public it is a good one he would sell.

Cadillac Launched at Boston.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—Cadillac, the center-board yacht built for Detroit persons by C. C. Hanley at Quincy, was launched this morning. There was no ceremony, the boat being allowed to slide slowly into the water, fastened in a cradle, which was lowered on the marine railway. The dimensions of the boat are as follows: Forty-nine feet over all, 27 feet 6 inches water line, 12 feet beam, 10 feet 6 inches forward overhang, 11 feet after overhang, 2 feet draft. The boat will carry about 1,500 feet of canvas. Captain Joe Taylor, who sailed Harbinger for many years, will sail Cadillac. After the boat has had a series of trials here it will be shipped to Detroit on a flat car.

General Sporting Notes.

The Associated Cycling Clubs will meet at the Sherman House on June 17 at 8 p. m.

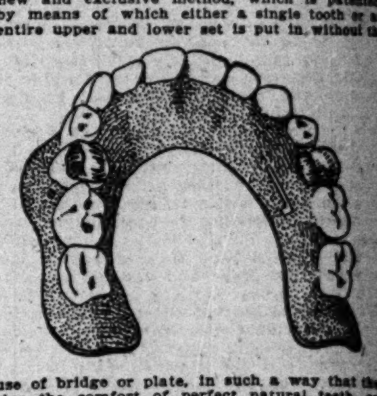

The Oakland Tennis club, Fortieth street and Lake avenue, will open for the season next Saturday with a tournament. All prospective members are invited to be present.

HARLEM BOOKS ARE HIT HARD.

Parnassus, Backed from 100 to 1 Down to 15 to 1, Wins First Race.

LONG SHOTS IN STYLE.

Schorr Filly, Endurance by Right, Captures the Petite Stakes Easily.

RESULTS ON OTHER TRACKS.

Putting 100 to 1 shots over the plate in maiden races seems to be a fad at Harlem. On Tuesday C. B. Campbell sent Belle of Minco over after she was backed down from 100 to 1 to 60 to 1. Yesterday, just to be in fashion, Ezell & Lazarus sent Parnassus over the line after systematically backing him down from 100 to 15 to 1, and thereby made a big killing.

The race, in which the innocent bookmakers were slaughtered, was the first on the card, and, like the Belle of Minco race, was for maiden 2-year-olds, classified events in which the unexpected invariably happens.

Parnassus, who was the medium of yesterday's wholesale monetary slaughter, has started a number of times, generally with a good class of youngsters, with the result his name always appeared among the also rans. The bookmakers were, of course, aware of his unsuccessful attempts to get a glance at a purse, and had no hesitancy in laying 100 to 1 against his chances. This was really a better price than Ezell & Lazarus expected, but it did not prevent them from slipping on several hundreds of dollars, until Parnassus' price, by easy stages, dwindled down to 15.

The good thing won, but it was a lucky victory, as all the luck in the race was crowded upon him. Lord Quex, the favorite, and Dougherty, both conceded an excellent chance to win, were interfered with at the start by Knight on Gray Fox, which deprived them of whatever chance they might have had of winning. Luck, however, is a strong factor in "hoss" racing. Parnassus was overloaded with it, brought home the persimmons, and, incidentally, assisted his owners in depleting the bookmakers' tin boxes.

It was a grand race from the E. & L. viewpoint. Best Man, who finished second, ran by far the best race, as he came from fifth place at the head of the stretch and was catching the winner with every jump.

Schorr Filly Wins Stake.

The Petite Stakes, a stake for 2-year-old fillies at 4½ furlongs, with $1,250 added, was the feature race of the day, and was won by John F. Schorr's crack filly Endurance by Right. She opened at 3 to 2, but the play on a number of others was so heavy her price receded to 11 to 5. Endurance broke running and quickly opened up a gap of a length. Mabel Winn, who was third when Dwyer slipped the barrier, shot to the front with a wonderful burst of speed after passing the half-mile pole, which made matters look dubious for the favorite. The scare, for such it really was, was only momentary, as Woods let out a wrap on Endurance, sending her into the straight with a lead of nearly a length. This, as it proved, ended the race, as the Schorr crack, under her heavy impost of 120 pounds, galloped home an easy winner. Throstle, at 40 to 1, came with a rush on the end and captured second money. Mabel Winn was third.

The steeplechase resulted in an easy victory for Filon d'Or. He was within striking distance throughout the journey, led over the eleventh jump, and finished first, a length in front of Dick Furber. Olinthus and Becky Rolfe engaged in a warm tilt through the stretch for third money, which the first named captured by a half length. Coronatus, the other starter, fell at the fifth jump.

Vincennes repeated his performance of the last day at Hawthorne by winning the second race, beating out Blue Lick and Trebor. Bangle, well handled by Winkfield, won from Vulcain, the favorite, in the fifth race, and Sam McKeever was easily the best in the last.

Notes of the Track.

The gross value of the Petite Stakes was $2,650, of which $2,250 went to the winner.

Jockey Knight was fined $50 by the judges for cutting across and interfering with Dougherty and Lord Quex in the first race.

Jockey Bullman arrived in Chicago yesterday morning. Bullman is under contract to Charley Ellison and not John W. Schorr as reported.

Louis Ezell said Parnassus worked a half mile at Hawthorne in :48¼, which he considered good enough to beat a bunch of maidens. Hence the killing.

Alex Shields of Carruthers & Shields arrived at Harlem yesterday with Advance Guard and seven other horses. Jockey Jack Martin came with Shields.

Jockey Tanner, who rode Filon d'Or in Monday's steeplechase at Harlem, was indefinitely suspended by Judge Hamilton after Ellison won the steeplechase with Filon d'Or yesterday.

Johnny Schorr says Endurance by Right is by long odds the best filly they ever had in their stable. The filly carried 120 pounds yesterday, conceded from 5 to 15 pounds to every filly in the race and won quite handily.

Tom Williams, President of the new California Jockey club, arrived in Chicago yesterday morning, and left for New York in the evening. Williams sails for Europe on June 19, and will return in September. Speaking of the racing situation on the coast Williams said he intended to keep his track open until July 4, but just before leaving San Francisco concluded to close the gates next Saturday.

Serious Illness of W. R. Letcher.

PROBABLE PASTOR OF ST. JAMES' M. E. CHURCH

If the Rev. Camden McCormick Cobern of Denver accepts the call to St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church in Chicago and escapes threatened contempt of court proceedings on the part of Judge Peter L. Palmer of the Colorado capital he probably will begin his pastoral work in this city about Sept. 1. In that event a peculiar coincidence will have occurred. When the Rev. Robert McIntyre resigned the pulpit of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church in Denver five years ago to come to St. James' in Chicago he was succeeded in the former city by the Rev. Mr. Cobern. Mr. McIntyre recently resigned his pulpit here on account of ill health, and his congregation again has gone to Denver, and to the same church there, for his successor.

REV. CAMDEN M. COBERN

A few weeks ago, however, Judge Palmer, during a reform movement, issued an injunction restraining the Chief of Police and members of the fire and police board from enforcing the Sunday closing law. This action the Rev. Mr. Cobern denounced from his pulpit in his Memorial day sermon, and he also criticised the court. Judge Palmer now declares he will have the minister's attitude investigated and hints he may cite Mr. Cobern to answer for contempt of court. As the pastor is in the East Judge Palmer is forced to reserve his wrath until he returns.

In the West the Rev. Mr. Cobern has the reputation of speaking out freely on all subjects which engage his attention. A recent commentary on the book of Daniel is cited as an example of his fearlessness in discussion, it being expected that this work will precipitate a lively discussion among the old school churchmen on account of its radical opinions and interpretations. Dr. Cobern also is said to favor institutional church work as more comprehensive in its power for good. It is reported that he has had substantial offers from Chicago friends to take up this work on a large scale.

Dr. Cobern is a native of Pennsylvania. He was born in Uniontown on April 19, 1855. He joined the Methodist church in 1872 and entered the ministry at Erie in 1876. Before going to Denver he held the pastorate of the church at Ann Arbor, Mich. He is a great student of the lore of ancient races and has extended fame as an Egyptologist, his discoveries in Egyptian ruins three years ago calling for world wide comment. He recently resigned his pastorate in Denver, expecting to be elected to the editorship of the Methodist church organ of the West. In this he was disappointed, and was preparing to continue his studies in Egyptology when he received the call to St. James' Church in this city.

RUSH FOR DERBY BEGINS.

T. P. HAYES AND MANY OTHERS ORDER STABLE ROOM.

Man Who Is in Rebellion Against Western Jockey Club Will Bring Royal Victor and Lady Southmore—Clarence Mackay to See His Eminence Run — $10,000 Commission on The Parader Comes from New York—Report Commando Has Broken Down.

T. P. Hayes, the leader of the rebellion against the authority of the Western Jockey club, yesterday applied for stable room at the Washington Park track. In a telegram from St. Louis he asked for ten stalls. These undoubtedly will be assigned to him within a day or two. Hayes will bring two American Derby candidates to the South Side track—Royal Victor and Lady Strathmore. The former of these is regarded as an excellent colt, with an outside chance in the big race. Talbot Bros and Turney Bros. have already been awarded stalls.

A letter was received yesterday from Clarence Mackay's agent in New York announcing that young Mackay would come to Chicago with a party of friends to see his colt, His Eminence, run in the big race. Through C. H. Pettingill Secretary Howard was also asked whether Garry Hermann had been scratched from the race in order that Jockey McCue might be at liberty to ride His Eminence. Mr. Pettingill was informed Garry Hermann was out of the race, so that it may be regarded as settled McCue will ride His Eminence.

Charles Littlefield, who has four candidates in the Derby—Watercolor, Sweet Lavender, St. Elias, aud Aurous, has applied for sixteen stalls.

F. Brown, Richard Croker's trainer, has applied for three stalls, which is thought to indicate that Beau Gallant is sure to be sent on for the Derby.

W. T. Shafer, owner of Terminus, now racing in the East, has asked for stable room. E. F. Hughes, who trains for Senator P. H. McCarren, has asked for fifteen stalls at Washington Park. In this string will be McGovern & Harris' filly, Sadie S.

Nothing has been heard from R. T. Wilson Jr. regarding The Parader, but as a commission of $10,000 was received in Chicago yesterday to bet on the son of Longstreet it is regarded as certain that he will come. This big commission is also thought to indicate that the New York backers of Wilson's colt have received information which leads them to believe Commando will not come.

Preparations for the Derby are rife at Washington Park track. Yesterday 240 tickets were sold in one bunch to a man who intends to take a big tallyho party.

SAY COMMANDO HAS GONE LAME.

Report Coming from Sheepshead Bay Declares Keene Colt Has Broken Down and Will Not Run Today.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—It is reported from the Sheepshead Bay track that Commando, James R. Keene's great 3-year-old, has broken down.

The colt is reported tonight to be so seriously lame after working out that he will not be started in the $10,000 Brooklyn Derby at Gravesend tomorrow.

The rumor was industriously circulated at Gravesend this afternoon, but no one connected with the Keene stable would confirm it.

Commando is favorite for the Brooklyn Derby tomorrow, and, if shipped West, he would be the favorite for the American Derby at Washington Park.

The Trial Derby was won by Richard Loud's Pontiac filly, Petra II. GRAIN MEN END SESSION.

ILLINOIS ASSOCIATION CLOSES WORK AT DECATUR.

Paper on Corn by George H. Phillips of Chicago Read by Director Baxter—Rules Governing Trade Relations Arouse Much Discussion Between City and Rural Contingents—Grading Scale Is Recommended—Visitors Are Entertained.

Decatur, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—The annual convention of the Illinois Grain Dealers' association adjourned this evening, after a day of addresses and discussions of resolution. The paper by George H. Phillips, the corn corner king, was read by Director Baxter, and was followed with interest. Mr. Phillips is under the care of a doctor in Chicago and could not attend. The paper was on the condition of crops generally and how and when to buy and sell.

Thornton S. K. Prime, the statistican, read a paper on crop conditions in general, predicting shortage in oats, low average in wheat, and nothing as to corn, as it is too early to speculate on that cereal.

The St. Louis and Chicago contingents were pitted against the country members as to the rules presented for adoption governing trade relations, holding that local associations should not dictate to dealers in the large cities, for the reasons that many things come up about which the country dealers know nothing and on which they would lose if arbitrary rules were to be followed.

Various rules were adopted, one that a difference of not more than 10 per cent be charged between No. 2 and No. 3 grain in time of corners, and that in new territory names of reputable grain dealers be made up and reported to the State Secretary, and bids be limited to the dealers on the list. Nearly all of the visitors left for home tonight. Many remained late in the evening to be entertained at the Decatur Wheelmen and Elks' club parlors and in the houses of citizens.

WOODMEN BAR BIG CITIES.

Plan to Admit Those of Over 200,000 Population to Order Is Voted Down.

St. Paul, Minn., June 12.—Election of officers and a protracted contest over the admission of cities of over 200,000 to the jurisdiction of the order, filled the business day for the Modern Woodmen of America today. The proposition to take city members into the order came up on the report from the Law committee. An amendment was proposed to this report to dispense with the present limit, which keeps cities of over 200,000 from joining the order, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, San Francisco, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, and Pittsburg being named in several motions and then taken up one at a time and voted on. On Chicago the vote was 260 to 328, and the others were more quickly disposed of, all being voted down. This leaves paragraph 4 of the Law committee's report, with the single recommendation that Utah be admitted to the jurisdiction of the order, and this amendment will doubtless be carried on Friday. The action taken this afternoon is considered as settling for some years to come the membership limitations of the Modern Woodmen.

Head Consul—W. A. Northcott of Illinois.
Head Clerk—C. W. Hawes of Illinois.
Head Adviser—Dan B. Herd of Iowa.
Head Banker—R. R. Smith of Brookfield, Mo.
Head Chaplain—The Rev. James L. Churm of Waupun, Wis.
Head Escort—C. D. Elliott of Washington.
Head Sentry—A. E. Bates of Minnesota.

Chaplain Churm today went outside of the chaplain's accustomed lines in the order and especially prayed for the recovery to health of Mrs. McKinley.

This afternoon there was a grand review of the uniformed camps by the officers and delegates at Camp Northcott. Tonight secret work of the order was exemplified by Unity camp of St. Paul.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS ADJOURN.

Illinois State Board Closes Its Annual Session at Delavan Lake—New Officers Chosen.

Delavan, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—The Illinois State Board of Fire Underwriters closed a two days' session this afternoon at Highland Park, Delavan Lake. About seventy-five members were in attendance and the meeting was an especially pleasant and profitable one. The events of the session were the President's address, read by Vice President J. George Stauffer of Decatur, Ill., the President being unable to be present, and the secretary's report. These two documents were most comprehensive and valuable, from a technical standpoint, and were regarded by the insurance men present as a most complete résumé of the work. The leading address was made by J. Montgomery Hare, who came from New York to address the meeting. Others who made addresses were George M. Lovejoy of Hartford, J. H. Lenehan of Brooklyn, and John P. Hubble. The following officers were elected: President, J. George Stauffer, Decatur, Ill.; Vice President, H. H. Rasswieler, Chicago; Secretary and Treasurer, C. F. Persch, Chicago. Many of the members were accompanied by their wives.

CONDEMNS INSANE ASYLUMS.

Dr. Runge of St. Louis at Milwaukee Convention Calls Them Slaughter-Houses.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—"Every State institution for the care of the insane in this country is nothing more than a slaughter-house," was the statement made before the American Medico-Psychological association by Dr. Runge, medical expert in charge of 700 deranged human beings in St. Louis.

Having made this statement, the doctor went on for an hour to tell of the innumerable means he used for bringing back the reason to minds to which it had been lost. The point of the statement lay in the inability of the hospital superintendent to look after each individual patient and lack of skilled attendants to help him. Individual treatment is the latest development in hospital methods. Salaries are not high enough to secure medical attendants.

GIRL STUDENT IS A THIEF.

Young Woman Convicted of Stealing at Nebraska State University Sent Home in Disgrace.

Lincoln, Neb., June 12.—[Special.]—One member of the freshman class of the University of Nebraska, a girl, bright, attractive, and a good student, will not be present at the college commencement tomorrow. In disgrace she was taken by her father to her home near Columbus today, dismissed from the university after being convicted of theft from fellow-students.

Physicians gave it as their opinion that the girl is a kleptomaniac and morally irresponsible. University authorities and civil officers took this charitable view of the case, and there will be no prosecution.

In a trunk in the girl's room were found a large number of missing articles of wearing apparel and books, which she admitted stealing. She has been a member of the university a year.

HOLDS UP THE ANTIQUITIES.

Mexican Government Asserts That Professor Saville of New York Has Exceeded Limits of His Concession.

Mexico City, June 12. — The government has ordered the detention of twenty cases containing Mexican antiquities gathered by Professor Marshall K. Saville of New York. Under the concession granted Professor Saville he was to be allowed to take out of this country one out of every two objects found at Mita, but the authorities claim that he has exceeded his limit. Professor Saville is in New York and his boxes are here.

TRIES MAGIC ON TRACTION PLAN.

George F. Harding Solves the Whole Problem in Ten Minutes.

SKILLED IN OTHER LINES.

HIS TALK TO ALDERMEN.

George F. Harding, who is making a record in resisting the payment of taxes, played the magician yesterday in another direction. He appeared before the Committee on Local Transportation and solved all the traction problems in ten minutes. Under the warmth of his eloquence the Union Traction company became a nonentity. The Chicago City railway company dwindled away. Problems of grooved rails, graded fares, compensation, etc., vanished.

Fifty-six suits to recover $60,000 in back taxes and penalties are pending against Harding. It is said his property has paid no taxes since 1892, the owner fighting the holders of tax deeds in the courts instead of paying. Chief Clerk John Becker of the County Treasurer's office asserts that it has become almost impossible to dispose of Harding property at tax sales, because of the fights he makes on tax deeds.

The Aldermen are still under the spell of Mr. Harding's persuasiveness, however. After his speech they left for a junket over the Milwaukee avenue "sea line" of the Union Traction company, which was enough to jolt them into an awakened state, but they still put faith in Mr. Harding's plan and arranged to give him an afternoon's hearing.

Based on Ordinance of 1858.

Mr. Harding's proposition is based on the ordinance of 1858 which gives the companies the right to operate their principal lines. Section 10 of this ordinance is as follows:

"The right to operate said railways shall extend to the full time of twenty-five years from the passage hereof, and at the expiration of said time the parties operating the said railways shall be entitled to enjoy all of said privileges until the Common Council shall elect by order for that purpose to purchase the tracks, cars, carriages, etc., and pay for the same in the manner hereinafter mentioned."

The proposal made the city by Mr. Harding is as follows:

"To pay the cost of court proceedings necessary to secure a decision upon the ordinance, to secure an appraisement of the property of the companies, and to settle upon the amount needed to take over the lines.

"To assume direction of the lines himself, advancing the money necessary and securing the funds for the acquisition of the property by placing mortgages upon it.

"To hold this property by an indefinite grant as long as the city wishes him to operate the cars, and to turn the property over to the city, with its mortgages, whenever the city wishes to take control.

"To give three-cent fares, which he claims will be a gift of $5,000,000 to the people directly, or to turn this money into the City Treasury as compensation to the municipality."

Says Companies Must Yield.

Mr. Harding was asked if the ordinance upon which he based his proposition did not apply merely to some of the main lines of the companies, leaving the majority outside its provisions.

"The provisions of the companies where they do not rest on this ordinance is even worse," he said.

"When my proposition offers three-cent fares, it offers to the people of this city at least 40 per cent of the $12,000,000 of gross receipts of the companies," said Mr. Harding. "Stated roughly, it is an offer to the people of $5,000,000 cash. Have the people really become so downtrodden that they do not completely appreciate a saving to themselves of $5,000,000?"

After giving Mr. Harding ten minutes to explain his propostion, the committee left for an inspection of the Milwaukee avenue cable line. It is probable that the committee will insist upon entire relaying of the tracks. The company wishes to relay only the worst portion of the line, using the flange rail.

Chairman Bennett announced the three subcommittees which are to handle phases of the traction situation. They are:

Service—Foreman, Herrmann, and Minwegen.
Franchises and Ordinances—Jackson, Mavor, and Goldzier.
Subways and Engineering—W. F. Brennan, Connery, and Herrmann.

COURT RULES OUT EVIDENCE FAVORING MRS. KENNEDY.

Sensational Statement Made by Friend of Woman's Husband Will Not Be Accepted Without Corroboration.

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—Judge Wofford today ruled out the testimony of one of the strongest witnesses presented so far by the defense in the case of Lulu Prince Kennedy, on trial for the murder of her husband. The defense evidently had counted much on being able to present this testimony, and the court's order to strike out was considered a blow. The witness was Edward W. Lewis, an inspector for the Western Railway Association Inspection bureau, and a personal friend of the dead man.

Through Lewis the defense hoped to prove the theory that Kennedy had compromised Lulu Prince under promise of marriage and then refused either to marry her or to live with her after marriage had been forced upon him.

The testimony of Lewis was ordered taken down by the court stenographer, but the court refused to let it be given to the jury until corroborated. The statement, as made by Lewis, related to conversations with Kennedy. In one, the day after the forced marriage, Kennedy, he said, had admitted the justice of marrying the girl, but declared he had lost respect for her and would not live with her. Lewis attempted to induce him to acknowledge his wife publicly, and he refused, but later said he had changed his mind. Lewis related the details of the marriage as told him by Kennedy, the latter saying Miss Prince had told him the compulsion was against her wish.

The day before the killing Kennedy told him he would not live with the girl and threatened to commit suicide.

The defense had not closed when court adjourned for the day.

DELAY GRAND RAPIDS VERDICT.

Jurors Read Over All the Evidence and Adjourn—At Least Four Indictments Expected.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 12.—[Special.]—The grand jury was even more leisurely than usual in its proceedings today. It heard the last witness in the water supply contract case at 10 o'clock this morning, and then listened to a reading of all the evidence which had been brought out during the five weeks of its investigations. There was no debate and no ballot, and when the jury adjourned at 5 o'clock this evening it was announced that perhaps it might get to voting tomorrow morning, and perhaps it might not.

It is understood generally that at least four indictments will be found, and probably more, and the latest story which is out is that Harry A. Taylor of Milford, Conn., and New York City, the young man who furnished the $100,000 to secure the water supply contract, may find his name in the list. Taylor testified that he got $17,500 of the first $25,000 he sent on here back again, but the distribution of the $75,000, which followed, is the matter in dispute, and Cashier Hollister of the Old National Bank was called on this morning to testify that it remained in Grand Rapids.

The theory of the prosecution is that this $75,000 was put in a safety deposit box, as was the $50,000 which the Bartons of Omaha intrusted to City Attorney Salsbury in Chicago, and when the box was looked into later it was empty.

IDENTIFY BEHEADED WOMAN.

Proves to Be Mrs. Margaret Blondin of Boston, Married Recently to a Mill Operative.

Lowell, Mass., June 12.—The woman whose headless body was found in Chelmsford Woods last Sunday, and whose head was found yesterday, was identified today as Mrs. Margaret Blondin of Boston by Mrs. Margaret Casey of Lawrence, sister of Mrs. Blondin. The dead woman married Blondin, a French-Canadian mill operative, last February. It is not known where the man is at present.

Mrs. Blondin had been missing since April. She met Blondin in Chelmsford while working in a mill there, and their courtship covered only a few months. The couple lived in Boston for a time. About two months ago Mrs. Blondin returned to Lawrence and visited her sister for a few days. Then her sisters learned that she went to Boston, where she rejoined her husband, and they lived in a Green street lodging-house. She was last seen at this place late in April. The next day Blondin said that she had gone to Canada. He disappeared shortly after.

FIGHT OVER MINING CLAIMS.

Moscow, Idaho, June 12.—The suit of Patrick Clark, Benjamin G. Kingsbury, James Clark, and James P. Harvey against the Buffalo Hump Mining company and the Empire State Idaho Mining and Developing company was filed in the United States Circuit Court here. Clark and his associates charge Sweeney and Culbertson with unlawfully securing two mining claims in the Cœur d'Alenes, valued at $1,000,000.

The disputed claims adjoin the Tiger-Poorman mine at Burke, Idaho. Clark and the other complainants allege that Sweeney & Culbertson unlawfully explored the disputed ground by means of diamond drills, operated at a depth of 1,600 feet; that they located a great ore vein, broke into it, extracted ore and paid dividends, and then bought the claims for $4,000.

YATES SPARING OF HIS PARDONS.

Governor Considers Many Appeals, but Acts on Only a Few of Them.

OPENS DOORS TO A WOMAN

Mary A. Railton May Quit Cook Jail if She Pays Contempt Case Costs.

SOME GIVEN SHORTER TERMS

Governor Yates was sparing with his clemency yesterday. Out of sixty-two applications for pardons he gave one woman immunity from serving a short sentence in the Cook County Jail, on condition that she pay costs in contempt proceedings.

Not a man nor a woman was pardoned from the penitentiary, although something like seven sentences were commuted. So far as can be calculated, sentences in the aggregate were shortened something like fifty-six years. This much has been done by some preceding Illinois Governors with a single sweep of the pen.

Cook County offenders fared as well as any, although sixteen of nineteen who made application for pardon were given no relief. In all, twenty-four years were lopped from the sentences of Cook County men who now are in the penitentiary.

The one conditional pardon was in the case of Mary A. Railton of Chicago, whose property was in the hands of a receiver. She collected certain rents which should have been paid to the receiver and was fined for this, a jail sentence also being imposed. The sentence is commuted to the payment of the costs in the contempt proceedings.

Another Cook County case was that of Joseph Dwyer, who was convicted of murder and sentenced to fourteen years in the penitentiary. One Lacy, the night before the homicide, had attacked Dwyer's wife and the following day he assaulted Dwyer, who had but just recovered from a severe illness. The trial Judge offered to set aside the verdict and accept a plea of manslaughter and give the defendant a lighter sentence, but believing he was justified in the act Dwyer refused to plead guilty. His sentence is commuted to ten years.

The last of the Cook County cases is that of Henry Theis, who was convicted in the Criminal Court of manslaughter and sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. The State's Attorney is on record as saying that "the killing was the result of a drunken quarrel, and the deceased by his own conduct brought about his own death." The sentence is commuted to five years.

Leniency for Others.

Other cases in which Governor Yates saw fit to extend clemency were as follows:

Elias McJunkins and Charles Smoot, in company with two others, Pate and Starr, started out to rob a house in Vermilion County. On the highway, they saw the owner of the house approaching, and the other two directed McJunkins and Smoot to catch and hold the horses. This was attempted, and during a scuffle the other two shot and killed the farmer. Pate and Starr were sentenced to death and paid the penalty. McJunkins and Smoot were ignorant country boys. In view of their youth the sentence is commuted to fourteen years.

Wade Hampton and a number of other negroes were engaged in loading railroad ties on a barge at Cairo, when a difficulty arose over the division of the pay for the work, and a fight followed, in which a man was killed. Hampton pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to forty years. The trial Judge stated that the sentence would have been less severe had he been furnished with the evidence placed before the Board of Pardons. The sentence is commuted to twenty years.

Charles Walker was convicted in Logan County of horse stealing, and sentenced to the penitentiary for twenty years. It appears the man was mentally weak, and has spent a portion of his time since his sentence in the insane asylum. The trial Judge and State's Attorney recommended a pardon. The sentence is commuted to thirteen years.

Thomas Francis was convicted, in the Circuit Court of Macon County of burglary and larceny and having burglars' tools in his possession. He was sentenced to twenty years. While the trial Judge and State's Attorney recommended a pardon, the sentence is commuted to fifteen years.

These Get No Relief.

The men in whose case clemency was denied are:

Adams County—Sym Johnson, murder.
Alexander County—Fred Douglas, murder; Harvey Rumage, murder.
Carroll County—John H. Schlenke, burglary.
Coles County—George Allen, burglary.
Edgar County—William H. Thomas, larceny.
Franklin County—Harry Hubbard, murder; Emery Adams, manslaughter.
Fulton County—George Callender, manslaughter.

ARREST DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

Melville Chester Findlay, Charged with Many Forgeries, Thus Explains His Capture—Held Under Bonds.

"I got careless," was the sole lament of Melville Chester Findlay, who up to date has thirty-eight charges of forgery against him. He was taken before Justice Prindiville yesterday, and, waiving examination, was held to the Criminal Court in $2,400 bonds.

"A man can get away with the game against the police any time," he said. "He can't beat himself. He'll get careless some time and then it will all be over. I got careless."

Findlay is considerable of a puzzle to the police. His education and polished manners have presented a new proposition to them. He makes no denial of the charges against him. He says he doesn't drink and doesn't gamble.

"My only fault," he said, "is taking people's money and giving them nothing back."

Former acquaintances of the prisoner while he was a student at college said his conduct there was good. Attorney Wade said yesterday he expected his client's father to settle some of his son's accounts. Findlay is a great reader, his favorite books being late novels. Since his arrest he said some of his friends have been sending him Bibles, but admitted he was not much interested in the work. The prospect of a term in the penitentiary seems to have no terrors for him. "It may do me good," he said.

JOINS HUSBAND IN PRISON

SULTANA PIZZI, WHO DETAINED A GIRL, IS FOUND GUILTY.

Augusta Brunhke, 13 Years Old, Tells Jury How She Was Held a Prisoner in the South Clark Street House and Her Story Is Believed—Police Censured for Not Taking a More Active Part in the Case—Prosecutor Accuses Them of Perjury.

Sultana Pizzi, accused of abducting 13-year-old Augusta Brunhke and forcibly detaining her in her house at 392 Clark street, was found guilty by a jury in Judge Smith's court yesterday and sentenced to the penitentiary. Her husband, Baptiste Pizzi, already had been sent to Joliet for being a party to the same offense.

The Brunke girl lives with her parents at 342 Warsaw avenue. Two girls, Lulu Coons and Tillie Walters, suggested that she go to Mrs. Pizzi and apply for work. Once inside the Pizzi house, she was locked in a room by Mrs. Pizzi and her husband.

The girl's testimony was corroborated largely by two attachés of the Protective Agency for Women and Children. After the child's disappearance was reported to the police by her parents and the levee resorts had been searched and Augusta found imprisoned, the two agents, Miss Maud Parcells and Miss Jennie Rattcliff, took the case up and secured the arrest of the Pizzis.

In prosecuting the woman and her husband, the two women received little aid from the police, and individual members of that department came in for a vigorous scoring yesterday by the prosecution. Assistant State's Attorney Crowe, in his argument, flatly accused some of the policemen who testified in the case with perjuring themselves.

Joseph R. Burres, the attorney for the defense, drew a tearful picture of the Pizzi woman as a beautiful child, "pure and free as the sunbeams themselves," wandering about under the "sunny skies of Italy." This was several years before she came to Chicago.

Throughout the trial the Pizzi woman sat sullen and defiant. She said that she was 27 years old and had lived in America for ten years.

"This girl come to Pizzi's house herself," she said. "I hava nothing to do with her. She bad girl, like me. She smoke cigaret and eat chop suey. She no cry to go home. I no ask her to stay."

The Brunhke girl denied practically everything with which the Pizzi woman charged her. She did not know what chop suey was, she said, and never had smoked a cigaret.

James Davat, an Italian boy, said he had seen the Brunhke girl eating chop suey and smoking a cigaret in a Chinese restaurant. The child said she never had seen Davat.

The jury, with little hesitation, accepted the story of the Brunhke girl and sent Mrs. Pizzi to prison.

$500,000 IN PARK BONDS SOLD.

Merchants' Loan and Trust Company Awarded the South Side Issues at $26,405 Premium.

South Park improvement bonds of $500,000 were sold yesterday by the Park Commissioners to the Merchants' Loan and Trust company at a premium of $26,405, which was the highest of the eleven bids offered. The price at which the sale was made was but $105 in excess of the bid of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank. The bonds were voted at the election last spring, after being authorized by the Legislature. They draw 4 per cent interest.

The Park Commissioners denied the request of the Jackson Park Yacht club for possession of one of the caravels brought over from Spain during the World's Fair.

"If the Field Columbian Museum trustees, to whom these curiosities were turned over, do not see fit to take proper care of the boats," said Commissioner Crilly, "the board itself will take the work in hand. I understand these boats—the Santa Maria, Nina, and Pinta—have been sadly neglected."

Commissioners Hodgkins and Crilly were appointed to confer with the museum officials and request that they repair the caravels. If the request is not complied with the commissioners may take the cost of repairs out of the $15,000 which is allowed the museum trustees annually.

President Harper of the University of Chicago requested permits to allow private canoes in the Jackson Park lagoon, to be used by delicate students of the university, and the commissioners granted it.

The attorney for the Western Indiana railroad company submitted an ordinance for the elevation of the company's tracks at Garfield boulevard, near Wallace street, which was found acceptable except as to the time given the company for the erection of the proposed elevation. This was for a period of five years, and the commissioners announced that this time would have to be modified. Action was then deferred.

LAST OF PACIFIC AVENUE; NOW IS LA SALLE STREET.

Name Changed in Order That Business Houses May Not Suffer from Associations—Kenna Favors the Idea.

Because several business houses and a bank which propose to move into Pacific avenue did not want their stationery headed "No. —, Pacific avenue," the name of the street has been changed to La Salle street. The Council took the necessary action on Monday night, and what was Pacific avenue is now part of the financial street of the city.

This change has given new illustration to the theory, "to change the character of a street, change its name." Alderman Kenna, the most recent convert to the idea, declares that there is a time coming when Custom-House place and Plymouth place will come into the Council for a clean bill of health.

It is not claimed that the power of a changed name will accomplish everything. It even is admitted that the change may be the indication of a reform and not the cause, but the new name is given a part of the credit for the reformation. There have been a number of instances in the past. Market street, which was the home of the "Market street gang," was changed to Orleans street, and little has been heard of the Market street gang since.

It is argued that business-men and residents will not try to live down the character of a street until the name has lost its old associations and begins to represent new ideas. It is easier to change the name. This is recognized as being especially the case where the street is a small jog on the map which has attained an abnormal reputation. Where a part of the street has come into bad repute and the remainder is untarnished there would be little disposition to attempt reform by changing the name. This would be the case with Clark street.

"Changing the name of a street is the biggest kind of a reforming measure," said Alderman Kenna. "You have to change the name of a bad street if you want to change it in other ways. I had the name of Pacific avenue changed because some business houses and a bank wanted to come in."

Pacific avenue already has worn out two names. Before the fire it was Griswold street. When that got too bad it was changed to Pacific avenue, and now it starts again as La Salle street.

FRAUD CHARGE BRINGS ANOTHER

Mrs. Minnie Brown Reads of Frank L. Mitchell's Trouble and Has Him Arrested.

Frank L. Mitchell, a broker with offices in the Chemical National Bank Building, 85 Washington street, was arrested yesterday on charges of fraud made by Mrs. Minnie Brown, who recently traded her furniture and leasehold of the Troy Hotel at Clark and Madison streets to Mitchell for two lots in Hinsdale.

The arrest was brought about through Mitchell's connection in a deal disposing of the Mecca buffet, 3358 State street, to Daniel Brett, a Wisconsin farmer. Mrs. Brown read about this affair and at once looked up her deeds to the Hinsdale lots. She found they were in "Hinsdale Heights," two miles southwest, and worth little if anything. Then she had Mitchell arrested together with Frank Howard and Thomas McNally.

Defendants will have a hearing before Justice Rhoade. The lease was transferred to Mitchell and Howard jointly. McNally enters the case as Howard's attorney.

The case involving the purchase of the Mecca saloon by the Green Bay farmer still hangs fire. A custodian is in possession and efforts are being made by the opposing parties to obtain possession. After Frank Van Dusen, who sold the saloon to Brett, and F. L. Mitchell, who represented Brett in a legal capacity, were exonorated from the charges of fraud lodged against them, the Wisconsin man concluded he was not at home in the saloon business, and gave Mitchell a power of attorney over the property and returned to Green Bay, leaving Mitchell in charge. Van Dusen still holds a mortgage of $200 on the saloon fixtures, and a custodian is in possession.

Indianian May Get Administration's Aid to Win Presidential Nomination.

OHIO MEN ARE BARRED.

Strength of Senator in Home State Expected to Attract Other Support.

PRESIDENT IS COMMENDED.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE
Washington, D. C., June 12.

President McKinley's prompt repudiation of the third term idea has struck an evidently responsive cord in the political heart. Many men continue to comment upon it as a remarkable exhibition of the President's fondness for throwing himself upon the people, and they say almost unanimously that if there were anything which could induce the American people to forego their opposition to the third term it would be this prompt and manly proclamation by Mr. McKinley. As to the general effect upon other candidates, there is a general sense of relief, coupled with considerable uncertainty as to who will get the most benefit out of it.

There naturally has been, of course, some little jealousy against what is termed the Ohio crowd, and when the third term proposition was first broached it was generally said it was started in the interest of certain Ohio politicians, who hated to give up their front seats at the pie counter. This feeling of resentment was fomented by the discovery that General Grosvenor was talking of a third term for an Ohio President.

Now that the President has officially rebuked his friends for their attempt to put him in a false position the feeling seems to be gradually drifting in the direction of Senator Fairbanks of Indiana as the probable beneficiary of the administration influence. Since 1896 Senator Fairbanks has possessed the confidence of the President to an extraordinary degree. Fairbanks never failed and never faltered. He helped the President to formulate the Spanish policy before the war was thought of, and ever since then he has represented the administration to a degree not exceeded by any one, even Senator Hanna himself.

Next to the third term bugbear is the general opposition to taking Presidents from the same State for successive terms. The feeling is expected to bar out Senator Foraker, and hence it is assumed that the tendency of the delegates from the great States of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois will be for Fairbanks rather than toward Roosevelt. According to the political ideas as expressed about the departments today by practical party managers, the early declaration of the President, by which he has headed off all third term talk, renders it possible for any candidate to press his claims without the suspicion of disloyalty to the administration. Hence it is said that Fairbanks will be the greatest gainer, not because he is necessarily in the lead in the race, but rather because he could not openly become a candidate so long as there was the remotest chance that the President himself should be in the same boat.

Foraker Seems to Be Barred Out.

"President McKinley has too much sense, judgment, tact, and patriotism to become a candidate for a third term," said Representative Landis of Indiana today. "No one who is acquainted with the President was surprised at the announcement of his position. The President has won his place in history, and no matter who succeeds him, if William McKinley lives from 1905 to 1909 he will be the leading citizen of the republic. It is my firm conviction that Senator Fairbanks of Indiana will be the next President of the United States. While it is rather early to talk about the prospective candidates, everybody is greatly interested in the subject, especially in view of the President's action in eliminating himself from the next race.

Too Patriotic to Stand for Third Term.

"Senator Fairbanks will go into the next Republican National convention with a solid Indiana delegation behind him. While Senator Beveridge has been mentioned in connection with the Presidency, I am sure he will be a hearty supporter of his colleague. Senator Fairbanks will have considerable following outside his own State. Although he has served but four years in the Senate and was comparatively unknown when he became a member of that body, he has made an indelible impression on the country by his statesmanlike attributes. He has come in contact with the leading politicians, and he is popular with them. He possesses rare executive ability, and is just the man for the Presidency.

"He is a self-made man in the fullest sense of the word. He has cooked his own meals and made his own bed. He has the stuff in him that wins. For the first time since the civil war he will be the only candidate from Indiana who will go to the convention with the united support of his State. It will be remembered that Morton and Harrison could not command such support."

Controller Dawes today authorized the First National Bank of Roseville, Ill., to begin business with a capital of $25,000.

"It was characteristic of President McKinley's good sense to have declared he would not accept a third nomination," said Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania. "Instead of standing in awe of an offense against the dignity of the Presidential office and remaining silent, he has, in accord with his habitual practice, taken the American people into his confidence. The question of a third term for a President is one of tremendous importance to the American people, and it was due to them that they should be advised as to Mr. McKinley's attitude. This was apparently the standpoint from which the President viewed the matter, and he has done a wise thing in putting at rest the discussion about a third term.

Dalzell Commends McKinley's Good Sense.

"Never for one moment have I believed Mr. McKinley would indorse any action looking toward his nomination the third time. Arguments of all kinds may be advanced as to differing conditions and the lack of force of unwritten law, but there is undoubtedly a deep-seated opposition in the popular mind to a third term, and President McKinley himself shares in this feeling. It shows the American spirit to do so, and the President is nothing if he is not intensely American. His declaration is timely, wise, manly, sensible, and patriotic. It will add, if possible, to the high esteem in which he is held by his countrymen."

Esther Bartlett Clarke, known as the "Violet bride," was today granted a divorce from James King Clarke of Pittsburg on the grounds of desertion. This closes a famous case which attracted considerable attention several months ago. The former husband of the plaintiff endeavored to secure a divorce from his wife in Pittsburg after they had been married about ten days. The jury disagreed, and the matter was thrown out of court.

Flagler Wedding Is Not Interrupted.

Extraordinary interest attached to the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Moore Flagler, who was married at 11 o'clock today to Dr. George Wilbert Mackean at St. Margaret's, a fashionable Episcopal chapel, on Connecticut avenue. The ceremony took place without the anticipated interruption in the presence of about twenty informally invited friends. The Rev. Herbert S. Smith officiated. The only decorations were a few bouquets of flowers on the altar, before which Captain Clement A. Flagler, brother of the bride, who came on from Porto Rico for the purpose of attending the wedding, gave her away.

The bride wore a soft silk net dress over white silk, profusely trimmed in lace, and a large white hat. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridal party was five minutes late in arriving and the ceremony was simple and brief. The mother of the bride did not attend the service at the church, but received several hundred of her friends at their handsome residence just off Connecticut avenue, among them being many of the representative people in army and navy circles as well as from official life.

Mrs. Mackean is the daughter of Brigadier General Daniel W. Flagler, who before his death about eighteen months ago was Chief of Ordnance of the United States army, and she is one of the best known young women of army and navy circles. Dr. Mackean is a prominent physician of Braddock, Cape Breton, and after a brief journey to various places of interest, will take his bride to his Nova Scotian home for the future.

Feared Trouble from Colored Persons.

It was fully expected by the friends of the bride that there would be a demonstration against her at the church from the negroes of Washington, who still feel the greatest animosity toward her for shooting a negro boy, Ernest Green, on Aug. 2, 1895, while he was taking pears from one of the fruit trees at the back of her father's place. The father of the boy, who is a quiet, intelligent man of the better class of negroes, and holds the position of messenger to Secretary Gage, showed the greatest possible dissatisfaction over the rumor, and said he hoped no one would attempt to awaken the old sorrow.

All during the week there were inquiries by the colored people at the little church as to when the ceremony would take place, but the janitor had been coached by Miss Flagler, who herself seemed to fear trouble, and only evasive answers were given. Fortunately, therefore, when the bridal party arrived at the church today only about a half-dozen negroes were in sight, and they confined themselves to low mutterings.

At the time of the unhappy and ill-fated shooting Miss Flagler was standing near one of the upper windows of the Flagler residence, and, seeing the boys trespassing, seized a revolver and fired two shots. They both struck young Green, but after the first one he was able to run a few steps, when the second shot cut him down. He was borne into the Flagler house and tenderly cared for, but died a few moments later. The Coroner acquitted Miss Flagler, now Mrs. Mackean, of intentionally killing the boy, but as this acquittal aroused much indignation, later Miss Flagler was indicted by the grand jury and held in $10,000 bail for trial.

The trial was postponed until February, 1896, and the proceedings were conducted with great secrecy. A plea of "guilty of involuntary manslaughter" was accepted, and Miss Flagler was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and the shortest term of imprisonment ever imposed in the District, it being but three hours in length. Feeling was so strong against her and threats so numerous and dangerous that she left Washington for Cape Breton. It is said that sorrow at the accident drove her to devote her life to the care of the sick and poor, in which beautiful work she met the man she married today.

In his report to the State department, under date of May 17, Consul Listoe of Rotterdam says: "Chicago as a seaport commences to attract the attention of Europe. A Rotterdam ship broker firm advertises in the local papers, for the first time in maritime history, that it will accept freight to go through with bulk unbroken to Chicago."

Soldiers Anxious to Stay in Philippines.

It is apparent from a telegram received at the War department from Major General MacArthur at Manila that life in the Philippines is relished and not abhorred by a great many Americans. There have been complaints that life in the Philippines was disagreeable, and statements have been made that few soldiers would remain there after their time of enlistment had expired. According to Adjutant General Corbin few of these complaints have come from soldiers, and the dispatch from General MacArthur confirms General Corbin's statement. The dispatch follows:

"A large number of men, regular regiments, ordered to United States, wish to remain here. Authority requested to transfer those desirable to regiments remaining."

The War department recently made a rule that men attached to regiments on foreign service ordered to the United States should return with these regiments, and transfers of these men to other regiments to remain in the Philippines was forbidden. This rule was made in the supposition that it would prevent dissatisfaction among the men. General MacArthur's dispatch shows that the rule is not satisfactory. Adjutant General Corbin telegraphed the desired authority to General MacArthur today.

Postoffices of the middle West that will be advanced from the third to the second class on July 1 on account of the increase in the receipts are as follows: Illinois, Effingham, Hinsdale, Lake Forest, Normal, Olney, Tuscola, and Wilmette. In Indiana those advanced are: Columbia City, Decatur, Rochester, and Carroll. In Iowa, Estherville, Jefferson, Spencer, Vinton, Waverley. In Kansas, Holton. In Michigan, Upton Works. In Minnesota, Lake City.

SENDS THE SENATOR $100.

W. E. Chandler Pays Promised Reward to Henry Cabot Lodge for Work on Party Platform.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Ex-Senator Chandler today sent a check for $100 to Senator Lodge. The transaction is somewhat unique and is accounted for as follows:

Last summer ex-Senator Chandler, who is an ardent bimetallist, offered to pay $100 to the person who placed in the financial plank of the Republican platform of 1896, after the reference to international bimetallism, the words "which we pledge ourselves to promote."

Several persons claimed credit for that declaration, but when Senator Foraker found the final draft of the platform it appears the words in question were interlined in the handwriting of Senator Lodge.

The former New Hampshire Senator yesterday sent the Massachusetts man a letter inclosing a check for $100. The letter is interesting chiefly on account of the sarcasm contained in the concluding sentence, which says:

"That immortal declaration, twice made Mr. McKinley President, and the fidelity with which the pledge has been fulfilled the world knows."

The letter is as follows:

"By reason of the premises you should without hesitancy accept the $100 as rightfully your money. All wise men know that McKinley and Hobart would not have been elected if the platform had not, while declaring opposition to the free coinage of silver except as the result of an international agreement, also declared that the Republican party favored such an international agreement if it could be secured. If McKinley and Hobart had not been elected in 1896, Mr. McKinley would not have been re-elected in 1900.

"Therefore, those six words were of priceless value, and I trust that when all the facts are known my humble offering of $100 will be supplemented by such generous donations not only from many members of the Republican party but as well from Democrats who have so much trembled at every prospect of the election of Mr. Bryan as to adequately recognize the sagacity and courage which led you not merely to conceive but to actually insert into the platform of 1896 concerning bimetallism the words, 'which we pledge ourselves to promote.'

"That immortal declaration twice made Mr. McKinley President, and the fidelity with which the pledge has been fulfilled the world knows."

OIL STUDY BY MABEL PACKARD

MODELLED FROM LIFE BY LENA MALLEY.

Geraldine Wyman - Juvenile Class

Simultaneously with the graduating exercises of the Art Institute on Friday the annual exhibit of students' work will be opened. Director French believes the exhibit this year will excel any of the past. Many of the works shown are illustrative of technique, but the finished oils and crayons will be of most interest to the public. Among them are studies in oil by Walter Rowe, who won the scholarship abroad.

The programs for graduation exercises have been issued. The graduating class numbers forty-nine members, distributed among the departments of drawing and painting, sculpture, decorative designing, and architecture. Henry Van Dyke will deliver the address in Fullerton Memorial Hall on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. Edward S. Williams is to deliver the invocation, and Director French will make his annual statement. President Charles Hutchinson will present the diplomas.

The exhibit of students' work is hung in the south wing of the institute. It will be opened as a part of the commencement exercises, and will be opened to the general public on Saturday. The examples of clay modeling are one of the strong features.

Director French believes the annual exhibit of the work of students in the school will sooner or later influence some one to come to its assistance. "The school has struggled on without help," he said, "and I hope that within the next year we may have the donation of a number of scholarships. The school gives Mr. Rowe his scholarship and pays the expense out of its earnings. Other objects of art have received gifts of this kind, and the school should have more scholarships."

CHICAGO BOARD FILES A SUIT.

Injunction Is Asked to Prevent Distribution of Quotations to Cincinnati Bucket Shops.

Cincinnati, O., June 12.—[Special.]—The Chicago Board of Trade today filed a sensational suit in the United States Court against the Odell Commission company, W. J. Odell, George H. Stapley, John Maxwell, the Western Union Telegraph company, the Postal Telegraph company, and the Gold and Stock Telegraph company, alleging that they have surreptitiously obtained and distributed quotations from the Chicago Board of Trade, and that by distributing them to the bucket shops they are not only injuring the Board of Trade but increasing the "bucket shop evil" and creating the impression that the Board of Trade is connected with the gambling operations in the bucket shops. They claim the quotations are valuable and a source of considerable revenue to the Board of Trade by selling them to customers. A temporary injunction against further furnishing these quotations is asked. John Maxwell, Treasurer of the Odell Commission company, said today that the suit was a surprise to him and his firm. He said his firm got the Chicago quotations. Superintendent Collins of the Postal Telegraph company said: "If we are enjoined it will only be for something we are not doing."

RAILWAY PASSES ARE STOLEN.

The mysterious disappearance of a block of nine signed passes from the general passenger agent's office of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad company in the Old Colony Building is puzzling the officials of that corporation.

Detectives were put to work on the case, and it was learned that some of the tickets had been disposed of in a ticket broker's office in Clark street. The broker said they were sold to him by a stranger. The tickets were taken up between Chicago and St. Paul. They had been sold to the holders by the ticket broker, who refunded the money and also gave up another ticket on a search warrant issued by Justice Blume.

Officers of Justice Blume's court believe the tickets were stolen by sneak thieves, but the employés in the railroad office declared it would be impossible for strangers to enter the office. A report that several thousand dollars' worth of tickets had been stolen was denied by the railroad officials.

WED IN AFTERNOON AT LANSING.

George Moseley Chandler of Chicago and Miss Fannie Cooley Married at Bride's Home.

Lansing, Mich., June 12.—[Special.]—Miss Fannie Cooley and George Moseley Chandler of Chicago were united in marriage today at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Cooley, by the Rev. W. H. Pound of Plymouth Church. The bride was attended by Miss Alice Chandler, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and four bridemaids, Misses Margaret Knowlton of Ann Arbor and Grace Hagadorn, Deborah Whitehead, and Elizabeth Cooley of this city. The best man was Charles P. Davis of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler will take a lake trip and return in November to 2512 Indiana avenue, Chicago. The bride is a granddaughter of the late Chief Justice Thomas M. Cooley of the Michigan Supreme Court.

HANNA-JOHNSON FEUD GROWS.

Mayor of Cleveland Refuses to Allow His Daughter to Act with Senator's at Launching.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—[Special.]—The social rivalry here between Senator Hanna's family and Mayor Johnson's family was evident again today. The crusier Cleveland, named after this city, will be launched some time this summer from the shipyards at Bath, Me. It was supposed that the Mayor of the city would have the naming of the girl who was to do the christening.

Today Mayor Johnson received a letter from Senator Hanna in which the Mayor was notified that the Secretary of the Navy has designated Miss Ruth Hanna to christen the cruiser, and Mr. Hanna suggested that the Mayor invite his own daughter, Miss Bessie Johnson, to push the button which will release the warship from its place on the stocks. The invitation was promptly and curtly declined.

Asked why, Miss Johnson decided to reject the honor, Mayor Johnson said that she had another engagement.

CONSUMPTION RULE APPROVED.

President of Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis Indorses Powderly's Act.

Ottawa, Ont., June 12.—[Special.]—Sir James Grant, President of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, approves of the action of Mr. Powderly, the United States Superintendent of Immigration, in refusing to allow into the United States immigrants affected with consumption. Sir James says similar action should be recommended to the Canadian government by the Canadian Tuberculosis association. He also says that now all good hospitals that have not a special department for this disease have adopted the policy of refusing patients who are suffering from it. It is thought that Mr. Powderly's action will prevent many consumptives from leaving Canadian homes for milder climates in the Southern States, notably Colorado and California. While the consumptives from Canada bound for the Southern States are not usually regarded as immigrants, it is said they could be classed so under the order issued by Mr. Powderly.

PLACES FOR BERZ AND MATSON.

Both Are to Be Reinstated in the Chicago Postoffice Under Civil Service Law.

Former Coroner George Berz and former Sheriff Canute R. Matson are to be appointed to positions in the Chicago Postoffice. Both men were in the postoffice under Postmaster James A. Sexton and resigned at the end of his term, Mr. Matson to take up the practice of law and George Berz to assume the office of Coroner. Both are old soldiers, and, under the provisions of the civil service law, any veteran who retired from the postal service with an honorable record is entitled to reinstatement. Mr. Matson was formerly a clerk in the registry division at a salary of $1,200. Mr. Berz was superintendent of the Halsted street postal station with a salary of $2,000. Both men are now on the senior substitute list of their respective grades.

OBJECT TO A BASCULE BRIDGE.

Property-Owners on West Side Propose to Fight Project of the Drainage Board.

Drainage Trustees learned yesterday that property-owners intend to apply to the courts for an injunction to prevent the erection of a bascule bridge across the river at Randolph street. Owners on the West Side believe a bascule bridge will damage their property, and propose to use every means at their command to block the improvement planned. This attitude may delay the construction for several months. The board at its meeting yesterday opened bids for the lift bridge. The bid of the American Bridge company of $107,000 for the superstructure and of Jackson & Corbett for the substructure of $81,628.34 were the lowest.

HUMAN LADDER RESCUES WOMAN FROM THE LAKE.

Mrs. Nora Popke Falls In at Foot of Waveland Avenue and by Rare Good Fortune Is Saved from Drowning.

By means of a human ladder, formed by two policemen and a cabman, Mrs. Nora Popke, 1982 North Halsted street, was saved from drowning early yesterday morning in the lake at the foot of Waveland avenue, where she had fallen. A pair of knotted reins taken from the harness of a passing carriage were used as a life line to draw the struggling woman close to the sea wall.

Mrs. Popke had been walking along the lake front accompanied by her 10-year-old daughter Lillie and a large mastiff dog. She had been unable to sleep on account of the heat and went out for a stroll, reaching the lake at the foot of Waveland avenue at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. According to the story her daughter tells Mrs. Popke became dizzy watching the waves and fell forward into the water.

As the child saw her mother fall she began to scream, and Policemen Peter Berg and Herman Nehls, who were only a block away, ran to the spot. They saw the figure of the woman floating close to the wall, buoyed up by her skirts. The water was supposed to be deep and neither policeman thought he could swim well enough to justify jumping in.

At this a carriage was seen approaching. The driver, John McCall, at first thought the policemen intended to hold him up, but was reassured in a moment and helped unbuckle the reins. The three men then flung out the knotted reins and the woman grasped them and was pulled in to the sea wall.

Then the human ladder was formed and Mrs. Popke was drawn up from the water.

By another piece of rare good fortune the occupant of the carriage was a physician, Dr. Gilbert L. Fitzpatrick, 1776 Washington boulevard, and he revived the woman, and she was taken to the German-American Hospital.

TAKES HIS LIFE IN AN ALLEY.

Man Supposed to Have Been John W. Anderson Puts a Bullet in His Breast.

A man, supposed to have been John W. Anderson, entered the alley at Harrison street, between Pacific avenue and Clark street, yesterday morning, pressed a revolver to his breast near the heart, and fired one shot. He died within a few minutes. The man was poorly dressed and apparently had been in ill-health. A book found in his pocket bore the name of John W. Anderson, Iron Molders' Union No. 233.

Mrs. Addie M. Doherty, 2101 Indiana avenue, who locked herself in a room at the Tremont House on Tuesday and then turned on the gas, died at the Samaritan Hospital. The woman had been married only a few weeks, but was tired of life, according to a note which she left.

Arthur Douglas, 32 years old, died at the County Hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by himself on June 7 while in the saloon of J. McAvoy, 255 West Adams street.

TAKES A WIFE AT 84 YEARS.

Michael Hennessy, who has rounded out fourscore years, with four years added for good measure, and who has four grown children, one of them Policeman William Hennessy of the Attrill Street Station, was one of the contracting parties in a wedding celebrated on Tuesday. His bride was Mary A. Martin, 54 years old, 42 Bingham street. The marriage is said to have been kept a secret from the groom's relatives, their first information coming through the published list of licenses. Policeman Hennessy yesterday doubted if the marriage had taken place, and indicated the children would protest. At the house of the bride, however, the new Mrs. Hennessy said the ceremony had been performed.

POLICE CHIEF A PREACHER

O'NEILL POURS OUT HIS HEART TO COUNCIL COMMITTEE.

Tells Aldermen, Among Other Things, Why His Men Are Seldom at the Right Place at the Right Time—Has Some Sharp Things to Say of Certain Buildings the Force Is Obliged to Use and Derides Furloughs with No Money—Some of His Logic.

Chicago's new Chief of Police appeared before the Council Committee on Police yesterday with a few distinct ideas on police duties. The committee, which hasn't been acquainted with the science and practice of thief catching as long as Superintendent O'Neill, had just taken seriously to the proposition that there was a good deal in the department which needed "reforming," and that a few "frills" might be added to the system.

The Aldermen were on the point of converting the police stations into something like Mills hotels, of adding mounted policemen to the force for picturesque effect, and of organizing bicycle squads so that the Chicago department might not be behind a good military establishment in its equipment.

The Chief gave his ideas on these propositions, and added, without request, what he thought of Aldermen who in their good nature voted a furlough for every policeman without providing the head of the department with the money to make the vacations possible.

Some Wisdom by O'Neill.

Incidentally the Chief gave reasons for a popular saying which has almost become an adage.

"You know the old saying, 'The policeman is never where he is wanted,'" he said. "The fact is the policeman is never wanted where he is. The reason why crimes are never committed where the policeman is, is that if he is there the crime will not be committed."

With that little explanation the Chief expressed his opinion about things in the Police department in general. Among other things he said:

"Mounted policemen would be picturesque and look well, but the horseman would be terribly perplexed if a thief should take to dodging between buildings and fences. We had mounted police in Englewood once.

"There are 3,333 persons on the police pay roll, but only 2,436 actual policemen are doing work.

As to Gold Brick Men.

"Policemen are not wanted around railroad stations. One was told last year to get out and keep out of a certain station. It is feared that they might tell farmers and other strangers of the existence of confidence men.

"It takes a guide to show the way from the Thirty-fifth and Halsted street police court to the police station.

"The Jones School would make a good police station. It is detrimental to children to send them to school in such a locality where they will be contaminated.

"The Twenty-second Street Police Station is antediluvian. It cannot be told whether the Deering Street Police Station is a police station, a powder magazine, a church, or a barn, for it has been all four.

"The policeman is everybody's man. He is used by the Health department, the Building department, the Public Works department, the City Collector, the Juvenile Court, and every church that has a fair and every foreign society which gives a parade.

"Beginners in the Police department should receive $75 a month for a year or two until they learn the business. Veterans should get more than $1,000 a year as an incentive to good work."

The committee next week will take up the question of locating new police stations and of inspecting underground cells in policehouses.

COLLECT BOGUS LICENSE FEES.

James R. Marooney Identified as One Who Represented Himself a Policeman to Secure $5.

James R. Marooney, said to be one of two men who have been representing themselves as license policemen on the West Side, is under arrest at the West Lake Street Station. He has been identified by Mrs. E. Anderson, owner of a meat market at 286 North Harding avenue, as the man who collected $5 from her on account of license fee. Many other victims have been reported.

BRIDEGROOM OF TWO DAYS NOW A SMALLPOX PATIENT.

Honeymoon of Leonard Kranze Interrupted by Trip to Isolation Hospital —In Contagious State When Married.

A happy bridegroom on Sunday morning and an inmate of the Isolation Hospital a couple days later was the unusual but interesting experience, of Leonard Kranze, a sailor. Health department officials say the man has been in a highly contagious state since last Thursday, since which date he was married, and has been living with his bride at a large North Side boarding-house.

Kranze and his bride live at Marine City, Mich. They came to Chicago on Sunday on the ship Kalkaska. They were married during the morning by one of the priests attached to the Holy Name Cathedral in one of the buildings connected with the church. It is believed Kranze was ignorant of his condition. Fellow-boarders had their suspicions aroused by the appearance of the man, and the Health department was notified. Investigation revealed that Kranze had a well-developed case of the disease, though not a dangerous one, and he was removed to the hospital.

The bride was shocked at the unexpected development in their honeymoon, but was encouraged when told her husband probably would be at liberty again in a few weeks. Kranze is 22 years old and his wife a few years younger. He never had been vaccinated.

GIVES UP EATING TO BUY LAND.

Joseph Marobec Arrested Because He Made His Family Live on Three Cents a Day.

Joseph Marobec, according to evidence submitted before Justice Sabath, tried to support himself, wife, and two children on three cents a day, two dozen eggs a week, and a small piece of meat. Marobec was satisfied with the experiment, but his wife was not. The children cried for food, and to prevent their starving the wife caused the arrest of Marobec. He lives with his family at 721 West Eighteenth place.

His thrift has been such that he owns two farms, one in Wisconsin and one in Minnesota, worth $1,200, and his desire to accumulate more land resulted, it is said, in his cutting down the supply of food.

The couple have been married six years. They lived formerly in Minnesota and came to Chicago a year ago. The prisoner wept like a child during the proceedings. He denied having starved his family, but said it took nearly all his money to pay for the land he had purchased. Justice Sabath reprimanded the prisoner severely and ordered him to pay his wife at least $5 a week.

URGE ASSESSORS TO RAISE VALUES

SOME ASSURANCE GIVEN.

Session Held in Board of Review Rooms and Much Sharp Talk Is Heard.

PLEA MADE BY THE MAYOR.

INCREASES IN VALUATIONS ASKED.

By the City	$ 69,000,000
By the county	194,000,000
Practically agreed upon	69,000,000

Without the increase in property valuations in Chicago, as indicated by the foregoing, the city will be unable to keep up its Fire and Police departments. With the increase asked by the city, as Mayor Harrison told the Board of Assessors and the Board of Review yesterday, the taxes "will pay the police and firemen, and dog licenses and saloon licenses will run the rest of the city."

While the Board of Review made no positive statement to the city officials it is understood that it has agreed to return the valuations to the figures of 1899—$345,000,000—from which the reductions were made last year on account of the removal of the 5 per cent limitation clause from the revenue act. This will save the city from extreme embarrassment, but will leave it with revenue far short of absolute needs.

"We will do the best we can for the city," was the official statement of President Roy O. West of the Board of Review.

Meet in Review Board's Rooms.

The city and county officials met with the two boards in the afternoon in the rooms of the Board of Review. It was discovered as soon as preliminary statements had been made that the new revenue law is not interpreted alike by the different officials. County Clerk Knopf announced his intention of getting a Supreme Court decision upon it before he proceeded in his duties. A friendly suit will be instituted to discover whether the portion of taxes for interest on bonded indebtedness is deducted from the tax rate before it is scaled. The city holds that the fixed charges are excepted. The County Clerk affirms that he does not know. Another point in dispute is whether the town having the largest tax rate is to be used as a basis for the scaling.

It was not all harmony at the meeting. County Clerk Knopf asked questions concerning the assessment of personal property.

"We find it impossible to secure proper personal property valuations," said A. W. Miller of the assessing board. "Citizens will not make honest schedules."

"Why don't you assess them yourself, then?" asked the County Clerk. "Why don't you give them a fair and honest assessment? That's what you are elected for."

"There will be some surprises and a large increase in the assessment this year," said the Assessor.

Mayor Argues for the City.

Mayor Harrison presented the case of the city. He was accompanied by Controller McGann, Deputy Controller Frost, and Aldermen Mayor, Eidmann, Bennett, and Maypole.

"When the Legislature passed the 5 per cent limitation act it was promised that valuations would be restored to what they were before the reduction," he said. "All we ask is that this be done. If it is the city will be able to get along with strict economy. You have some idea of the condition of the city now. You know that our bridges are falling to pieces and that our viaducts are going to ruin.

"You know that the city gets only $18 out of every $100 which is paid in taxes by citizens of Chicago. There are too many taxing bodies and the distribution is all wrong."

"Unless the valuations are increased to $400,000,000 both the city and county will be in a bad way," said County Clerk Knopf.

The city has figured on a total valuation of $345,000,000 and a tax rate of $1.40. With these figures the tax receipts of the city will amount to about $4,600,000. To this amount will be added the city's receipts from other sources—$4,800,000—making a total of $9,400,000. With this revenue appropriations will have to be reduced, but the current expenses of the city government can be met.

Because of the reduced tax rate the increase in valuations will not put an additional burden on the taxpayers.

Increase in Value of Buildings.

In further presenting the claims of the city Alderman Mayor said that there had been $40,000,000 increase in buildings since the valuations of 1899 were made.

"You believed that those were fair and honest values then," he said. "Why are they not fair and honest values now, with the increase in buildings?"

"We do not consider ourselves revenue raisers for the city," said Adam Wolf of the Board of Assessors. "Our duty is to give a fair assessment to property."

Mayor Harrison took exception to that statement.

"We do not ask you to raise revenue for the city," he said. "We are not begging for higher taxes. We want the valuations put back where they were."

Personal	69,909,403	56,327,571
Capital stock	1,871,138	2,703,060
Railroads	13,650,820	13,641,247
Total	$345,196,419	$276,656,830

Members of the Board of Assessors advised an attack on the State Board of Equalization to compel the assessment of capital stock. The Assessors were asked if they could not list the capital stock on the decision of the lower courts and then take it off if the Supreme Court reversed the decision. The reply was that the listing already had been made and that the State board had refused to act upon it.

Chorus Girls to Visit Packingtown.

"The Casino Girl" company will be taken out to the Stock-Yards this morning. Manager Marcus Mayer will direct the expedition, which he said last night was organized at the wish of the chorus girls. The company will leave the Illinois Theater at 9:30 o'clock and will go by street car.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

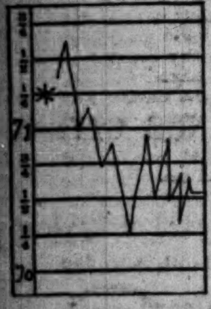

Entries in THE TRIBUNE'S amateur garden competition will be received only two days longer, the books closing on June 15.

MORE JULY LIQUIDATION.

Events of the Last Few Days Indicate That Many of the Larger Holders in This and Other Markets Have Let Go Their Long Lines of Wheat—Duluth Swamped with Offerings—Near Delivery of Corn Also Heavy and Lower.

Wheat continued its downward course yesterday, the close finding July ⅝c lower, while the September delivery was about ¼c higher. In July it was largely a repetition of Monday's liquidation, which was continued pretty much throughout the session. The Northwestern markets had a good deal to do with it, the July delivery in Duluth breaking at one time a fraction over 2c, owing also to a general desire to get out of this delivery. On all sides the weather was fine enough to make holders extremely nervous, and they were wise enough not to stay in the market to a point where profits were likely to go glimmering. So they threw the stuff overboard at quite a sacrifice of values. The big Duluth seller was said to be Peavey, who has a substantial following. The market there was not entirely one-sided, as 50,000 bu were worked for export.

July Wheat Range.

The day started out with wheat subject to quite a lot of contradictory influences. The heavy rains reported in Manitoba, the Dakotas, Nebraska, and Iowa, and the light rains in Kansas and Missouri exercised a weakening effect, while cables, particularly Paris, were decidedly strong and up 20@25 centimes, the equivalent of 1¼@1½c. This was said to be due to bad crop reports, with which the foreign markets have been liberally supplied of late. All other influences were largely local. The decline on July was not checked until the price dropped to 70¼c, and all the way down to this point the selling pressure was something heavy. Then there appeared to come a realization on the part of the scalping element that it was oversold, and the usual buying followed. Weare was a heavy buyer of the September delivery, taking about 1,000,000 bu and selling July. The heavy selling pressure on the July narrowed the July-September difference to generally 2c, though at times it was a little under that. Armour was reported one of the July buyers, though, with the exceptions noted, the aggregate trade was made up of comparatively small lots. Local receipts were 164,000 bu (72 cars), against 190,300 bu a week ago and 72,200 bu a year ago, making the three days' local receipts 432,300 bu, against 190,300 bu the previous week. All primary points received 559,800 bu, against 675,000 bu the previous week and 649,000 bu a year ago. Primary shipments were 388,800 bu, compared with 359,700 bu a week ago and 157,400 bu last year. Local public and private stocks increased 4,000 bu, and are 8,843,000 bu. The seaboard had 78,400 bu and cleared 381,000 bu, making clearances of 1,793,600 bu for the three days. At the close New York reported 8 loads for export. Local sales were 50,000 bu of No. 2 red for shipment.

Corn Conditions Still Heavy.

Both deliveries of corn lost a little ground, July closing ⅛c off and September ⅜@½c. Early in the session July got up to 43-⅛c and September to 44c, but failed to stay at these points long. They proved top for the day. As in wheat, the feature was in July liquidation on a scale which carried the price before it. The slight upturn early had for its basis a reported better shipping inquiry. This crystallized into takings of 150,000 bu of No. 3. At the seaboard 12 loads were reported for export. Trading was confined mainly to room specialists, the "country" appearing to take but scant interest in the deal. Cable advices showed few, if any, changes in the situation on the other side. After noon both deliveries reached their lowest points, July dropping to 42¼c and September to 43⅛c. The close was only fractionally better. There was little encouragement for the bulls in the showing of primary receipts, which were lighter, all points reporting 578,000 bu, as compared with 844,000 bu the previous week and 897,700 bu a year ago. Primary shipments were larger, at 973,100 bu, compared with 582,300 bu a week ago and 490,000 bu last year. For the last three days primary receipts aggregate 1,865,-800 bu, against shipments of 2,117,700 bu. On the previous week, for the same period, the movement was entirely reversed, receipts being 2,923,200 bu and shipments 1,987,900 bu. The feeling in the cash market was slightly easier, but prices were without special change.

Oats Show Weakness.

Oats were fairly active with spasmodic trading. Quotations at the close showed a falling off of ⅛c on July and ½c on September from Tuesday's closing. Bear interests were prominent in local selling of shorts on September, while there was considerable liquidation and realizing on July. The opening was steady and quiet with little demand. Few September oats seemed to be wanted at the beginning and there apparently was no desire on the part of the traders to see the price go over 26⅛-¼c. Trading was medium at these figures. Selling of July was a feature, but the demand came principally from shorts. Elevator interests were credited with buying July and selling September. Crop reports were favorable except from Missouri, where the rain came too late to do much good. Cash business was slow. Clearances at the seaboard were 62,000 bu. Receipts were 108 cars, with 110 cars estimated to arrive today.

Provisions were steady and higher with good demand. There was considerable business in a speculative way, with a range of 2½c to 12½c. There were offerings at top figures only. There seems to be a prevailing opinion that packers would like to see a decline in the market, in order to become liberal buyers. There was a fair buying of ribs on fluctuations of from 2½c to 7½c. Packing-house interests were credited with buying lard through commission houses from longs who were taking profits. Hogs were higher and in fair supply at the opening, but the advance was not supported at the close. Local receipts were 28,000 for the day, against 38,000 last week and 26,000 a year ago. Receipts at eight of the principal Western packing-houses were 85,000, against 101,500 last week and 96,500 a year ago. Shipments of cut meats were 2,981,461 lbs, against 3,134,211 a year ago; lard, 1,160,306 lbs, against 1,651,122 a year ago. The Liverpool market was 6d higher on hams, with other foreign quotations firm.

Rye was weak and dull, principally owing to the lack of speculative demand. No receipts were reported and the cash inquiry was slack.

Barley was quiet and the trade limited to a few buyers at former quotations. Sales were made at 48c to 51c for fair to good qualities. Screenings were quoted at 37@39c.

The timothy market was quiet and weak. September sold at $3.70, and was the only business transacted in this line of seeds. Receipts were 26,000 lbs.

Flaxseed was slightly active for cash and futures at former prices. Receipts in Chicago were 9 cars, of which three out of four inspected were contract, and 8 cars in Minneapolis. Cash No. 1 Northwestern sold at $1.71. September was $1.28 bid and $1.30 asked. October sold at $1.26 and closed at that figure.

Clover seed is quiet, demand limited, and with quotations ranging from $6.00 to $9.00 for poor to choice.

Figures for the Day.

Grain and provision futures ranged as follows:

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

The unusually wide spread between June and July corn, which has been a condition of the market for several days, attracted considerable attention yesterday and gave rise to more or less speculation as to "What's the matter with June?" A normal difference at this time of the month, and with all trade conditions named, would be a spread of only about ½c, with the premium on June. The prevailing difference has been about 1¼c, which would, on the face of things, make June purchases and July sales a profitable procedure, as the difference figures out nearly $100, from which the only deduction would be carrying charges of less than $30, including warehouse insurance and interest. Yesterday the spread narrowed to ⅛@⅝c. But the probabilities have not been taken advantage of, and the explanation is found in the expressed fears that when delivery day comes around there will be trouble with the corn. This fear may grow out of the usual summer "hot corn" scare, for at the present time no trouble of any kind is hinted at. The July-September spread narrowed from 2⅛c to 1⅝c. On the other hand, the July-September corn spread widened to 1⅛c from ⅛c the day before. The reason was the selling pressure on July while there was a good local demand for September.

Recent figures compiled by Statistician Hyde on the cost of production of wheat and corn have been published by the Secretary of Agriculture. They show that between 1855 and 1894 the following changes took place in the cultivation of corn: The time of human labor required to produce 1 bu of corn on an average declined from 4 hours and 34 minutes to 41 minues, and the cost of human labor to produce this bushel declined from 35⅝c to 10½c. The use of steam as a substitute for horse-power in plowing, in harvesting, and in thrashing wheat has not materially contributed to economy except from the saving due to the elimination of animal power.

Elevator "B" at Galveston is now under Chicago control, and will be so operated this season. It has a capacity of 750,000 bu.

A traffic official of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad says that each day makes more cerain a wheat crop in Kansas of not less than 90,000,000 bu, which means another year of great prosperity not only for the agricultural class, but for railroads as well, and also that should they come the State will be able to stand a series of "lean" years without appreciable distress to any interest, as the surplus of the people as a whole is steadily increasing. Officials of the Rock Island road talk much the same way.

YOUNG BUT LEADING BOARD OF TRADE MAN.

JOSEPH G. SNYDACKER.

Joseph G. Snydacker is one of the "younger element" on the Board of Trade, but in years only. He is old enough to have been elected to the directory in 1899, and he served his three years with credit both to himself and his constituency. One position in which his services were of marked value to the board was that of chairman of the Weighing committee. He worked a reform in this important branch which has been of lasting benefit to the trade. Prior to Mr. Snydacker's identification with the committee the office of weighmaster was conducted on the basis of the greatest profit to the smallest number, the weighmaster being the principal beneficiary. It is now well established under direct Board of Trade control.

Mr. Snydacker was born in this city in 1865, a son of Godfrey Snydacker, an old-time banker, and is a Yale man, class of '85. In that year he began work for the Weare Commission company, and was identified with this firm until 1893. Then, with other junior partners, John L. and W. J. Fyffe, he founded the commission firm of Snydacker, Fyffe & Co.

This partnership was dissolved in 1897, and Mr. Snydacker joined Richardson & Co., of which corporation he is now Vice President.

LEMONS ARE IN GOOD DEMAND.

Red Raspberries Are in Market—Prices of New Potatoes Lower with Heavy Receipts.

Lemons have taken a spurt with the warm weather, and the demand is on the increase. Prices are slightly higher for both California and Mediterranean varieties. Receipts are fairly large and the quality all that can be desired. Red raspberries are in the market and quoted at $3.00@4.00 for 24-qt cases. Strawberries are in large supply, with the Michigan stock a feature and prices easier. Liberal arrivals of the second crop of new potatoes from Texas and Arkansas have caused a further slump in prices and quotations are much easier. The general trade in South Water street is quiet owing principally to the warm spell. Creamery butter is firm with prices ½c higher and the demand good. Eggs are steady.

Range of Cotton Prices.

Cotton—Summer months passed through another trying ordeal in cotton speculative markets today. Locally the situation appeared to have grown decidedly stronger over night. On the first call the market was quiet, with prices unchanged to three points lower, the latter resulting from light profit-taking. Outside buying then made its appearance and turned the market upward. Active room covering set in, and through the rest of the morning session the market displayed pronounced strength. July worked up to 8.28c and August to 7.68c, after which selling for profit taking and a turn caused a slight reaction. Late cables portrayed a readiness on Liverpool's part to respond to anything in the way of bull developments here, and at the close that market was steady at nearly the best figures of the day. Under selling for outside account and a withdrawal of early buyers the local market worked off to 8.18c for July and 7.60c for August soon after midday, but soon turned strong on a fresh scare of shorts and the appearance of big buying orders from the South and the West. Trading became active, and for the rest of the day the market exhibited emphatic strength. The new crop positions did not follow the advance in near months fully, owing to the improved character of crop news. Receipts at the ports were heavy but had been discounted. The close was steady, with prices net unchanged to 8 points higher. Spot closed steady, 1-16c higher; middling upland, 8⅝c; middling gulf, 8⅝c; sales, 900 bales. Futures closed steady; June, 8.22c; July, 8.25c; August, 7.69c; September, 7.26c; October, 7.20c; November, 7.10c; December, 7.18c; January, 7.21c; February, 7.21c; March, 7.24c.

Current and Closing Quotations on Dry Goods, Coffee, Poultry, Butter, and Metals.

Brown sheetings and drills are firmer on export makes. Bleached cottons unchanged. Coarse colored cottons quiet. Men's wear woolens and worsteds firm on staple lines. Dress goods quiet and still irregular.

WEEKLY WOOL MARKET REVIEW.

Report of Trade Conditions and Comparative Statement of Situation at Leading Centers.

BOSTON, Mass., June 12.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow of the wool trade:

There is a slightly better feeling in the trade as the result of the improved conditions noted in the goods market. The demand has been more general this week than it has been for some time, both the large and small mills being represented in the market. The purchasing, however, has been in small lots, which in the aggregate make a fair average volume of business. The feeling in the trade is that business is going to grow broader steadily, although perhaps slowly. For fine goods there is a good inquiry, and the statistical position of such stock is strong. Prices, therefore, are firmly held. Coarse and low wools also are rather steadier if anything. That is, there has been no decline as far as can be learned. As to South American and Australian cross breds, some of these goods have worked down to such a low point that the foreign carpet mills are coming in and taking them in great quantities, which demand appears to have steadied the market, temporarily at any rate. There are many who believe that the lowest prices on these goods have been seen. At any rate, it would seem that they cannot drop much further. The early shorn wools in Wyoming have been pretty well cleaned up, and many of the buyers have left there. Montana will be the next scene of operations. Holders of wool are firm there and are reported as not likely to yield much in price.

The sales of the week in Boston amounted to 2,990,000 lbs domestic and 315,000 lbs foreign, making a total of 3,305,000 lbs, against a total of 3,785,000 lbs for the previous week and a total of 2,053,000 lbs for the corresponding week last year. The sales since Jan. 1 amount to 98,217,900 lbs, against 65,-247,000 lbs for the corresponding time last year.

FEATURE DAY IN STOCKS.

MARKET ONE OF SPECIALTIES IN PROFESSIONAL LINES.

Railroads and Industrials About Which Combine or Extension Rumors Were Current Traded In to Some Extent—Missouri Pacific, American Car and Foundry, and Others in Process of Change Were the Favorites—Pennsylvania Purchases Denied.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, June 12.—[Special.]—The stock market today was one largely of specialties, though throughout there was a strong undertone and a fair demand for good stocks. The day, however, was distinctively one of "features," in which the independent steel and iron stocks were most prominent. Colorado Fuel and Iron, for instance, rose at one time over 15 points, while Tennessee Coal and Iron advanced 4½, American Car and Foundry 2, and Republic Iron and Steel 1½. Next in point of interest were the Southwestern railroad group, Missouri Pacific advancing 1⅝, while Denver and Rio Grande rose a point, the preferred 7⅞, and the preferred certificates 3⅝. Other features were National Lead stocks, the preferred of which advanced 4¾ points, American Cotton Oil with an advance of 2½ points, the local railway shares with a net advance of 2⅞ in Manhattan, 2⅛ in Metropolitan, and 1⅞ in Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Pennsylvania and Consolidated Gas with an advance each of 2 points.

Outside of these issues there may be said to have been little or no market. All told, less than 650,000 shares were traded in during the day, with only seventeen stocks being dealt in to the extent of 1,000 shares or more. As has been said, however, the market undertone was good and it was pointed to as perhaps suggestive of coming developments that whenever activity showed in any particular stock it was always along the line of advancing prices. The market, in other words, became dull at the low level of prices, proving clearly what has been evident now for some days, that there is little or no stock pressing for sale.

The continued heavy buying of American Car and Foundry stocks has been followed by various reports regarding the property. The insiders in the company are not buying the stocks for speculative purposes, but they are taking the preferred in large amounts for investment. It is reported that the big locomotive combination interests are buying the common stock, and it is also reported that Pullman interests are picking up this issue. The company continues to make enormous earnings, and the preferred stock in particular appeals to conservative investors. Interests identified with the company have recently been active buyers of Pressed Steel Car stocks. The two concerns will not be consolidated at present, but they will work in absolute harmony.

Missouri Pacific railway shares advanced to 123⅞ on rumors that a 5 per cent dividend was to be declared on the stock, and that plans had been completed for an Eastern outlet for the Gould southwestern system. The volume of trading in Missouri Pacific stock was unusually large. From an official source it was learned that the $12,000,000 of 4 per cent convertible bonds purchased last year by the Goulds and the Rockefellers had been put in the hands of the Missouri Pacific officers for conversion into common stock.

A story was current today that arrangements have been made for the exchange of Texas and Pacific railroad stock for Missouri Pacific shares. Officers of the last named company would neither affirm nor deny this report.

The remarkable advance of 15 points in Colorado Fuel and the subsequent drop of 7 points from the high figure were not unnaturally attended by many rumors, none of them, however, possible of authentication. A suggestion that the company was to be taken into the United States Steel corporation was heard in some parts of the street, but in well informed circles was not only not credited, but was ridiculed. What actually seemed to be the principal cause for the price movement was manipulation by a pool in the stock, the issue being the more easily moved because of the scarcity of the floating supply of stock.

As for a rumor today that all these steel concerns and the Republican Iron and Steel are to be consolidated into one company as a matter of protection against the United States Steel corporation it may be said that this is but a revival of a story heard some time ago and at the same time denied. On the face it is considered absurd. If there are any combination developments best opinion in the street is that they will be toward closer relations with the steel trust rather than in an opposite direction. The purchases of Pennsylvania were based on the belief that the company had materially strengthened its position by the purchase of an independent steel manufacturing company, being able thereby to provide its own needs in steel rails and other equipment. In the financial district the step is looked upon as at once interesting and farreaching, and as perhaps foreshadowing further progress in that direction by other railroad systems until such time as the larger railway companies may each have plants from which to turn out all needed rolling stock and equipment.

American Locomotive common sold on the curb for the first time. Only two transactions were made, one at 36 and one at 36½. At the close 36 was bid, which was one point above Tuesday's quotation. The preferred stock was not traded in at all, but advanced to 90 bid. American Can was fairly active and somewhat weak. The common stock ended the day with a net loss of ½ point, but the preferred closed unchanged at 76 bid.

In regard to the recent developments in American Linseed Homer Wise, President of the Union Lead and Oil company, said today: "Mr. Rockefeller and his associates having acquired the control of the American Linseed company, and having taken over the control of the company by substitution of directors representing his interests, the Union Lead and Oil company has declared the proposed agreement of merger nonoperative and has instructed the various depositories to return the stock which has been deposited under such agreement. The Union Lead and Oil company owns a large interest in the stock of the American Linseed Oil and will coöperate with Mr. Rockefeller in every way."

It is stated that the final payment for the Cooke locomotive works at Paterson, N. J., by the International Power company, acting for the American Locomotive company, was made today. The price paid is said to be about $1,000,000. The new owners are expected to take formal possession the latter part of this week.

Important changes will occur in the international banking house of Lazard Frères on July 1. Eugene Arnstein and Eugene Meyer will retire, and Charles Altschul, now manager of the London, Paris, and California Bank of San Francisco, and E. L. Rieser, at present connected with the banking house of Heidelback, Ickelheimer & Co., will enter the firm.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Railway Shares and Other Securities in Wall Street.

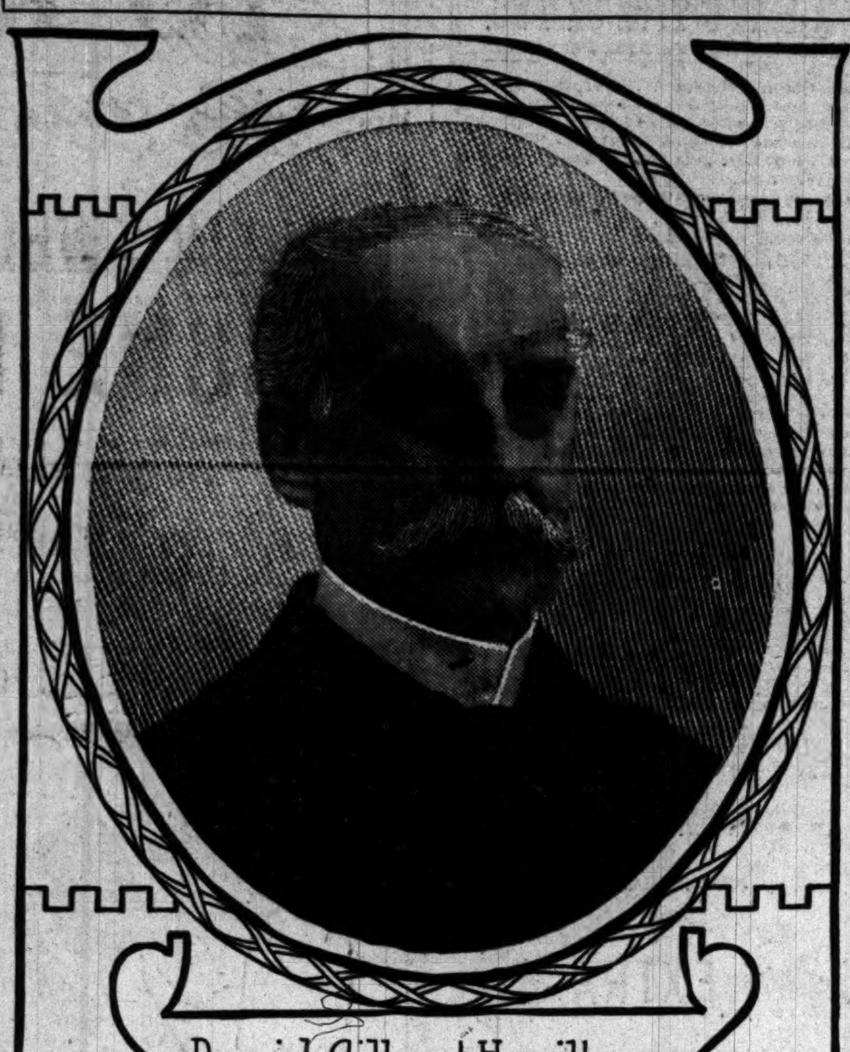

New York, June 12.—The stock market fell into semi-stagnation during the latter part of the day and the gains which were established in the morning were pretty generally wiped out under the dribble of selling orders which came up on a market almost bare of demand. Various points of strength made their appearance during the day, but they lost their influence in sustaining prices. The more cheerful feeling in London this morning was quite a noticeable influence in the opening dealings. Rumors have been persistent for several days, now that peace is approaching in south Africa.

Mexican Central income bonds were heavily bought, but the general bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, $3,965,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

Close—Money on call steady at 2½@3 per cent; last loan, 3. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at 488⅝ for demand and at 485⅝ for 60 days; posted rates, 486@486½ and 489; commercial bills, 484⅝@485¼. Silver certificates, nominally 60c; bar silver, 59⅝; Mexican dollars, 47½c; State bonds inactive; government bonds steady; railroad bonds irregular.

LEADER IN THE WORLD OF FINANCE.

David Gilbert Hamilton

In the management of many important interests David Gilbert Hamilton, President of the Chicago City railway company, has shown himself to be one of the ablest financiers in the country. Mr. Hamilton is active in the management of leading public institutions apart from his business interests. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Chicago and of De Pauw University, resident director of the Union Mutual Life Insurance company of Maine, director of the Chicago Title and Trust company, and director of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank of Fort Worth, Tex.

Mr. Hamilton was born in Chicago on Jan. 10, 1842, and began his education in private schools. He attended the Chicago High School, graduating in July, 1862. Then he entered Asbury University, now De Pauw, of Greencastle, Ind., and after graduation returned to Chicago to study law at the law department of the Chicago University. Upon graduating Mr. Hamilton opened a law office at 126 Clark street, the place where he was born twenty-five years before.

For the last sixteen years Mr. Hamilton has been active in the financial management and operation of street railways. In 1885 he was made a director of the Chicago City company, and remained on the board for five years. He formed a syndicate in 1890, which organized the National railway company, for the purpose of acquiring street railway systems in St. Louis. Mr. Hamilton was made President of that company after one year as a director. When the company disposed of its holdings in St. Louis in 1899 Mr. Hamilton retired. The company revolutionized the street railway business in St. Louis.

Several years ago Mr. Hamilton again was made a director of the City railway company, and in 1899 he was elected Second Vice President. Upon the death of M. K. Bowen in April, 1899, he was elected President. Under Mr. Hamilton's management the company has made substantial gains in earnings and useful extensions of its service.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, Mining Shares, and Other Securities at the Hub.

BOSTON, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—Boston's market was quiet today, but it had several features. Talk of reducing the United Fruit company dividend, on account of earnings having been disappointing, caused free selling of the stock and decline from 123½ to 114. Massachusetts Electric shares held firm and in strong demand, common rising 1 to 38 and preferred ⅝ to 95⅞. Agricultural Chemical was up 3 to 33. The change to animation in home specialties other than mining stocks was a marked feature of the market. In the mining group the decision against the intended injunction in the Amalgamated-Montana-Butte deal caused an advance of 20 to 460 in Montana and another of 4½ to 118 in Butte, with recession later to 458¼ and 115 respectively. The market held firm through the afternoon, with few changes in prices beyond those indicated, save that Trinity eased 1 to 33½, Copper Range ½ to 57½, and Parrot ½ to 54. Osceola rose ¾ to 87¾. Amalgamated itself fluctuated narrowly. American Telephone closed at 153 ex-rights, equivalent to a loss of 2¼.

Call loans, 3@3½ per cent; time loans, collateral, 3½@3¾ per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 3½@4 per cent. Clearing-house loans, 2 per cent.

Advance on Colorado Fuel.

The advance in Colorado Fuel and Iron stock yesterday was accompanied by reports that the company had been offered to the United States Steel corporation. It was also said that the rise was based on heavy business, the company's output of iron and steel being the largest on record, and its output of coal the greatest for this time of the year. It was stated that the coal mines will be kept in operation through the summer. They have been shut down always heretofore. The advance indicated that the stock is held closely.

Central Union Telephone Up.

Central Union Telephone stock made a jump of 3½ just before the close of the Chicago market yesterday, which advanced it to 39½. That the stock did not decline further was attributed to growing confidence in President Sabin's plans for the regeneration of the property.

Traction issues became active, North Chicago selling in an unusually large way at 200 and just above. Union Traction common was active on buying by Wrenn.

Diamond Match was inactive. Dispatches from Akron, O., where one of the largest plants of the Match company is located, say that a consolidation of the Diamond Match company of Liverpool with Bryant & May will be made. No application has been made yet to the New York Stock Exchange to admit Match stock to the regular listed department. It is expected that application will be made to have it placed in the unlisted department.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash, Bonds, and Other Securities in London, Paris, and Berlin.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram: The stock market today was quiet, but the tone was decidedly cheerful. Consols continue to harden. The possibility that the bank rate will be reduced to 3 per cent tomorrow was discussed, but it is not generally thought that a reduction will be made.

London started off by buying a fair amount of American stocks. Then New York, which started a selling movement, especially in Atchison, checked the advance. Pennsylvania, however, spurted later, and on the curb after the market closed prices improved.

The account proved considerably larger than a fortnight ago, the general contango being 4¾ and Denver preferred 1.

Money on call crept down to ⅛ per cent, with bills steady. The Bank of England has bought £5,000 gold in bars.

LONDON, June 12.—Consols, for money, 93⅝; do for the account, 93 11-16. Atchison, 89⅛; Canadian Pacific, 107½; St. Paul, 171⅝; Illinois Central, 145½; Louisville, 112; Union Pacific preferred, 92¼; New York Central, 159; Erie, 44¼; Pennsylvania, 77; Reading, 23; Erie first preferred, 72; Northern Pacific preferred, 100; Grand Trunk, 11⅝; Anaconda, 9⅞; Rand mines, 42⅞; United States Steel, 51; do preferred, 101.

Bar silver steady, 27 7-16d per ounce. Money, 1@2 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 2⅝@3 per cent; do, three months' bills, 2⅝@3 per cent.

Money on the Continent.

PARIS, June 12.—Although prices were irregular on the bourse today the tone was generally firmer. The closing was quiet. Spanish 4s were the feature. They gained strength on the assurance from Madrid of their non-taxation. Rentes were easier. Rio Tintos were firmer. Kaffirs were in good demand for London account. Three per cent rentes, 101 francs, 2½ centimes for the account. Exchanges on London, 25 francs, 22½ centimes, for checks. Spanish 4s, 71.95.

BERLIN, June 12.—Prices on the boerse today opened weak, in consequence of a sharp relapse in Transvaal rails and dynamite, owing to the publication of the blue book in London giving the report of the Transvaal Concessions committee. Banks were particularly affected. Later business was somewhat more reassuring. The close was irregular. Exchange on London, 20 marks, 43¼ pfennings for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 3 per cent; three months' bills, 3¼ per cent.

An Old Friend

S. S. S. has been before the public for many years; from a small beginning, it has steadily worked its way to the front, and is now known in every city, town and hamlet in the country. Its staunchest friends are those who have known it longest and have witnessed its wonderful curative powers in their own families or among their friends and acquaintances. Grateful patients in all parts of the country tell of their restoration to health and happiness, and the testimony of these is the highest evidence of the medicine's worth. S. S. S. is more popular today than ever in its history—no other remedy stands so high, has ever given such perfect satisfaction or is so reliable in the cure of Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Acne, or any disease that originates in the blood. Being strictly a vegetable preparation, you will find it agrees with you much better than a drug store concoction or any of the widely advertised potash and mercury remedies, which affect the bones, muscles and stomach, causing Rheumatism or Dyspepsia. If you have never tried S. S. S., you will be surprised at the immediate good effects, for no sooner does it get into the circulation than the appetite increases; you grow stronger, and gradually but surely it drives out the poisons and restores the blood to a healthy condition. If there is a sore or ulcer on the body, it begins to heal around the edges, the discharge finally ceases and the place gets well; muscular and bone pains vanish, and the skin is relieved of all itching, irritating eruptions. Nervous, run down and anaemic people will find S. S. S. just the medicine they need, for blood poverty and illy nourished nerves are responsible for their condition. For old people and children S. S. S. has no equal; being free from all minerals, it does not nauseate or have any injurious effect whatever, and keeps the blood in good condition, thus fortifying against disease. Experience teaches what is good and what is not good; this applies particularly to medicine, and S. S. S., a remedy that has retained the confidence of the people for nearly 50 years, must have merit—IT CURES, is the secret of its success. When you call for S. S. S. don't be persuaded to accept something else—there is no substitute for S. S. S. It is the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier, and the safest and best for all blood and skin troubles. Do not let them force an inferior mineral remedy on you because there is a larger profit in it. If you have any blood or skin disease, don't hesitate to write us about it; our physicians will carefully consider your case and advise you without charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

Don't Experiment—Take S. S. S.

No Excuse for Crime.

A good deal of maudlin sympathy seems to be wasted on the postoffice clerk, who, when caught in the act of stealing mail, pleaded that his salary was only $50 a month and that he had a large family. It is true that $50 a month is not a large salary, but it is also true that a great many people in the United States get no more and manage to live, at least honestly, and occasionally to save money. It is also true that there are many other positions in the postal service which pay much better, and that a clerk who does his work well and faithfully is, under the operation of the civil service law, reasonably certain to win promotion. If the fact that what a man earns is not sufficient to support his family in the style which he would like to maintain is to be accepted as an excuse for dishonesty, then few dishonest people will be punished. Moreover, any man who attempts to rob the mails shows himself to be not only a knave but a fool as well. Under no circumstances can he expect to get more than a few dollars, while his detection and punishment are as certain as anything can well be. The people who sympathize with the man whose weakness has led him into crime should be careful to put their sympathy on right grounds.

A JUDGE ON "COMMON CIVILITY."

Judges are supposed to know the law better than laymen. When a New Jersey Vice Chancellor says from the bench that "common civility is the law of this land" common people, unlearned in the laws, will not venture to take issue with him, but they will express their regret that the law of the land is not better enforced. There is often a painful lack of the cheapest kind of civility in public offices, at bargain counters, and on street cars. The victims do not seem to have that legal redress which they expect where the law of the land has been violated.

The Vice Chancellor went on to define "common civility," saying that "one person has no right to speak to another person unless he first gets his consent." People who are bubbling over with questions or views and who wish to open conversations with strangers will please bear this in mind. They should begin operations not by remarking that it is a pleasant day, but by saying, "Have I your consent to talk to you?"

At this point "organized labor" and the Vice Chancellor part company. These remarks of his were made apropos of a strike in a Paterson silk mill. Non-unionists have taken the place of union workers and the latter have been reasoning with the former, sometimes quite violently, to induce them to quit work. In such a case the Vice Chancellor deems it only civil for the man who wishes to do the reasoning to get the consent of the party of the other part.

The lawyer for the strikers asked the court how this consent was to be obtained and was told that his clients could write a letter to the mill-hands asking for leave to argue with them the question of stopping work. This is a delightful suggestion. Nothing could be more dignified than for strikers to write polite notes to those who have taken their jobs, saying to them, "Come, let us reason together." Perhaps the non-unionists would accept the invitation if they had police protection.

It is indeed unfortunate that "organized labor" does not agree with the Judge on this question of "common civility." If all walking delegates and pickets thought about this matter as he does, controversies between union and non-union labor would be conducted with a degree of politeness and decorum not always found in courts and Congresses.

BUSINESS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Consul General Stowe at Cape Town predicts a business revival in south Africa after the close of the Boer war and advises American exporters to be on the lookout for their share of the new trade. He argues that the losses of the war must be replaced and that these losses cover almost everything men buy and sell, from farm implements and household necessities to mining machinery and railway supplies. To corroborate his argument he cites the fact that American manufacturers of mining machinery have already received orders aggregating $5,000,000.

Mr. Stowe's roseate predictions should be accepted with some reservations. As regards one class of imports his view is correct, while as regards another class he probably is in error. It is true that the need for goods and commodities of all kinds will be widespread and urgent, but the cash with which to buy them will be lacking in many cases. Theoretically, the Southern States after the close of the civil war afforded an ideal market. There never was a people more urgently in need of things, but there could be no great traffic where there was almost no money. The Boers are fighting desperately and have become impoverished. They will be sorely in need of clothes, food, implements, and all the necessaries of life, but they are now too poor to do any large amount of buying for some years to come.

In the industries carried on by British capital, however, such as the gold mines, there will be both the demand and the cash to pay for new machinery and supplies. Much of the mining machinery has rusted out or suffered injury. Much of the railway equipment in the war district has been destroyed and must be replaced. So American manufacturers and exporters will do well to heed Consul General Stowe's suggestion and be ready for business in south Africa, but they need not expect any great trade demand from the unhappy Boers.

SENATOR LODGE'S SIX WORDS.

William E. Chandler has found the maker of Presidents. His "patient search and vigil long" have unearthed the fact that it is to Senator Lodge that Mr. McKinley owed his election in 1896 and his consequent reëlection in 1900. There are several millions of Americans, each of whom cast a vote for Mr. McKinley, who will be inclined to dispute this on the ground that Senator Lodge's ballot counted for no more than that of any other supporter of the successful candidate. But if Mr. Chandler's major premise be conceded he is evidently in the right. His contention is that Republican victory in 1896 was not secured, as most people believe it was, by the pledge to maintain the gold standard, but by the insertion in the national platform of the words "which we pledge ourselves to promote" immediately after the statement in reference to international bimetallism. An examination of the last revised draft of the manuscript of the platform shows these fateful words interpolated in the handwriting of Senator Lodge.

Mr. Chandler became convinced some time ago that the six words above quoted had been of "priceless value" to the party and to President McKinley. Therefore he offered to pay $100 to the person who could prove that he put them in the platform. There were several claimants. The fact that there were so many does not prove an unbecoming eagerness to get Mr. Chandler's $100. It simply shows what poor memories men have. This is not the first case of disputed authorship in connection with a party platform.

Happily in this case there is no room for dispute. Senator Lodge's handwriting speaks for itself. The Senator has received Mr. Chandler's check for $100 and a compliment on the "sagacity and courage" which led him to conceive and to insert in the platform the words in question. He has been paid for these words at the rate of $16.66 apiece. This is good pay. If all the literary work which the Senator has done had been paid for at this rate he would be one of the millionaires of the Senate. The ordinary writer who can find a steady sale for his wares at a few cents a word counts himself fortunate.

Mr. Chandler expresses the hope that his "humble offering of $100" will be supplemented by generous donations from many Republicans, and from Democrats who dreaded the election of Bryan. This excess of love and affection will be no more to the liking of the Senator from Massachusetts than was that of Messrs. Depew and Grosvenor to the liking of President McKinley. The Senator may feel called on, like the President, to frown down a disagreeable suggestion and to give notice that he does not wish to receive contributions on account of the six words which, as Mr. Chandler firmly believes, worked such wonders.

RIGHTS OF SICK CHILDREN.

Judge Tuthill holds that an adult when ill is at liberty to resort to medicine, prayer, witchcraft, or anything else which he may believe will cure him. He is a free agent and must be allowed to exercise his freedom, though it be to his own harm. With a minor, especially one of tender years, the case is different. In the opinion of the Judge, children when sick should be given that medical care which it is the general belief will be of service to them, and if they are subjected to long-continued suffering, with no opportunity given to a doctor to endeavor to alleviate it, the courts should step in for the protection of the sufferer.

There is no question that this is the law at this time. Whether it is to remain the law will depend upon whether future generations believe that a sick person has a better chance of recovery with a doctor than without one. That is the belief of the great majority of the people of this generation. There are some who have no faith whatever in drugs or doctors, believing them useless if not harmful, but they are the minority, and minorities do not make laws. It is their duty to obey laws, no matter how absurd the laws may seem to them.

It may be in the opinion of these persons an interference with their rights as parents or an interference with their religious beliefs for a Judge to give orders that a doctor shall be allowed to care for a child of theirs who has rheumatism or fever or hip disease. Interference of this kind is legal, and from the point of view of most people is mere common humanity.

FREDERIC HARRISON ON CHICAGO.

The latest number of the Nineteenth Century contains an article by Frederic Harrison, the English author and Positivist, in which he describes his impressions during his recent visit to Chicago. Mr. Harrison has discovered America and is eager to tell his fellow-countrymen about it. He says the British press does not do justice to the vast resources and achievements of the United States. Especially does he think the intellect and culture of Chicago are underrated.

Mr. Harrison is not willing to award Chicago first prize for beauty, but he says it is the manifest destiny of the city to be the commercial heart of the American continent. He thinks it is likely, within a generation, to be the largest, richest, and most powerful city in the world. He hints that even the quality of municipal beauty may be added in time, though the skyscraper is evidently a stumbling block which he hardly can surmount. But Mr. Harrison speaks repeatedly of the marvelous quantities of marble, granite, carved stone, and mosaics used in our buildings. He says nothing since the fall of old Rome and Byzantium has equaled the lavish use of these architectural materials in the United States. He makes special mention of one Chicago bank building, describing it as "a vast marble palace, . . . the most sumptuous and one of the most beautiful commercial edifices in the world."

The talented Englishman also takes pains to refute the idea that Chicago is devoted to nothing but Mammon and pork. The impression left on his mind was that "the citizens of Chicago were bringing their extraordinary enterprise to bear quite as much on social, intellectual, and artistic interests as they confessedly do on grain, ham, steel, and lumber." He mentions the significant fact that no other city in the world can show such enormous endowments for educational, scientific, and charitable purposes lavished within ten years, and still unlimited in supply. Nor did he find that the "almighty dollar" was worshiped any more reverently in America than in Europe.

Mr. Harrison has much to say about the amazing distances, the boundless energy and resources, and the ceaseless industry of the Americans, yet it is evident that he would not care to live in the United States. He finds no literary atmosphere or inspiration here. "Life in the States," he says, "is one perpetual whirl of telephones, telesemes, phonographs, electric bells, motors, lifts, and automatic instruments. To me such a life would not be worth living, and the mere sight of it is incompatible with continuous thought." Yet he admits that business seems to thrive in this kind of turmoil and that human character seems to be none the worse for it. The article as a whole is more just and less superficial than the customary snapshot judgment of the foreigner who spends two months in the United States.

MARK THE CHANGE.

Ten years ago the City Council of Chicago was regularly held up to public scorn and contempt as one of the most corrupt and shameless legislative bodies in the country. Almost every day its members were branded in the newspapers as gangsters, boodlers, and thieves. From pulpit and platform they were denounced as representatives of "organized dishonesty" who had turned the Council Chamber into a den of thieves. The New York papers proudly said that the municipal government of Chicago was even more corrupt than that of the Eastern metropolis. In the rural districts a Chicago Alderman was looked upon as a combination highway robber and gold brick artist.

Now mark the change. A few weeks ago an ingenious young woman who had written a book which she wished to advertise offered a reward of $1,000 to any successful business-man who could prove that he had conducted his business for a month with absolute honesty. Already at least one Chicago Alderman has publicly entered the contest and there are said to be a number of others who are only prevented from following his example by their modesty. In the old days an Alderman would have been greeted with derisive shouts if he had had the effrontery to suggest that he was occasionally honest. Now he is taken seriously when he declares that he is an absolutely honest man. Only the other day the Chicago City Council was publicly declared to be the most conscientious and trustworthy legislative body of its kind in the United States. At the last election an Alderman whose honesty was unquestioned was defeated for reëlection because he had not shown sufficient enterprise and ability.

No one man nor party can justly claim the credit for this remarkable change. The chief credit must be given to a growth in public spirit and an increased interest in municipal government on the part of all the people.

THE TENEMENT AND THE BATHTUB.

The recent report of the City Homes association on tenement conditions in Chicago was, of course, something of a shock. The remarks made about Chicago tenements by the Bureau of Labor and by Mr. Jacob A. Riis had been like the buzz of an alarm-clock to a sleepy man, annoying but ineffectual. Now the City Homes association comes in and takes Chicagoans by the shoulders and tells them they really must wake up. This course of treatment is likely to be successful. In the pages of "Tenement Conditions of Chicago" one can find information that will open one's eyes so wide that sleepiness will be out of the question.

Take, for example, the matter of personal cleanliness. Without it health is doubtful and self-respect impossible. Now, in the Jewish and Italian district investigated by the City Homes association it was found that 96 per cent of the inhabitants had no facilities for bathing. Applying this average to all those parts of the city where conditions are similar, one arrives at the result that 960,000 persons in Chicago find it extremely difficult, indeed almost impossible, to keep themselves clean.

The caviler will say that the want of bathtubs is caused by an aversion to the act of bathing. This is a belief more valuable as a basis for witticisms than serviceable in an honest discussion of the case. If it be admitted that a large part of the population has a dread of water, then it becomes a duty to remove that dread. But it would be difficult to prove that the dread really exists. The four baths owned and conducted by the city have an extensive patronage. The reason is obvious. They afford the laboring man two peculiar advantages: First, that of privacy, which often he cannot get in his own home; and, second, that of cheapness, which he had never been able to find in the bathhouses conducted for private profit. With these two features of privacy and cheapness the public baths have entered upon a career of great prosperity. Many workingmen have fallen into the habit of going to the bathhouse after their day's work is done and of taking a shower and getting into clean clothes before supper. This change in personal habits must entirely alter the character of their evening life.

The vogue enjoyed by the public baths seems to show that if the inhabitants of the densely populated wards had the proper facilities they would keep themselves as clean as the inhabitants of any other part of the city.

A GREAT TRACTION STEAL.

The Pennsylvania Legislature last week passed two passenger railway bills, whose origin, progress, and purpose reveal that body as partner with a handful of concealed promoters in a gigantic scheme to exploit the needs of Pennsylvania for local transportation.

These bills, having never previously been heard of by the public, were introduced into the Senate on the afternoon before Decoration day. Within ten minutes they had been referred to a committee and favorably reported back, and on the same day they were read a first time. The Senate remained in session on Decoration day in order to advance them, and on Friday, just forty-three hours after their first appearance, they were passed by a vote of 32 to 6. On the following week the House, for the first time during the session, assembled on Monday, and through sharp practice the bills were not only received but were railroaded to first reading the same day. The next day, on second reading, there was a fruitless fight and a fire of amendments by a few "insurgents," and on Wednesday last the bills passed the House by a vote of 151 to 31, with certain "friendly" amendments which were on the same day concurred in by the Senate.

The purpose of these unprecedentedly expedited bills—which were apparently a part of a far reaching deal—was to put certain promoters and politicians in exclusive possession of the possibilities of street railway development at various important points in the State. The constitution of Pennsylvania forbids the construction of a street railway within any city, borough, or township without the consent of the local authorities. These bills provided, however, that whenever any person should have secured from the Secretary of State, on application, a "charter" for any proposed and unoccupied route—surface, elevated, or underground—he alone should have the right for two years thereafter to apply for such local consent. It was further provided that, after securing such consent, he should have two years in which to begin and three years more in which to complete construction. Important rights of eminent domain were also conferred.

Governor Stone signed the bills late last Friday night, after various persons, according to report, had been calling at his house. The State department is not usually open on Saturdays, and on other days it opens at 9 a. m. Before that hour last Saturday, however, over a hundred applications for "charters" were filed in that department, the clerks having been accommodatingly on hand from early in the morning.

Thirteen of these applications covered 120 miles of proposed car lines for Philadelphia, and were filed by a group of five persons, comprising those chiefly responsible for the Keystone telephone ordinance, the granting of which by the City Assembly provoked such public denunciation in Philadelphia a year or two ago. A lesser number of applications were filed for lines in or about Pittsburg, Allegheny, Scranton, and other towns.

The intention of these bills, with their provision for seven years' possible delay in developing proposed lines, was obviously not rapid transit development, but barter and sale of exclusive privileges for furnishing additional rapid transit in Pennsylvania. That the requisite local consent will be forthcoming in Philadelphia and other leading cities is generally presumed, and it is evident that honest local action is prejudiced and trammeled by the fact that there can be favored applicants only.

The time has arrived when American cities should refuse longer to be the prey of the State Capitol—should refuse to have their most imperative needs trafficked in by a corrupt alliance between legislator and promoter. Indeed, it is confidently believed that, whatever may happen in other States, the people of Chicago will not again permit the choice of a State Legislature which shall be the chattel and tool of local corporations, and unless local government generally is to remain at its present level or sink to a lower level the inhabitants of American cities generally must reform their State Assemblies.

Comments by other distinguished though unsuccessful polar explorers follow:

CAPTAIN BALDWIN SURPRISED.

Pipsville, Kas., June 12.—[Special.]—Captain Evelyn Baldwin was much surprised when informed tonight of Mr. Dubbe's achievement, and with difficulty suppressed his chagrin. At first he declined to express an opinion, but finally stated that he was glad the honor had come to an American. "Shall you go on with the plans for your polar dash?" was asked him. "It hardly seems necessary now," he replied. "Mr. Dubbe's achievement will, of course, have some effect upon my plans, though just what I cannot say at present."

ABRUZZI IS IRRITATED.

Rome, June 12.—[Special.]—"It is extraordinary," declared the Duke d'Abruzzi, when informed tonight that an American newspaper man had reached the long-sought goal. The Duke was plainly irritated. "All my plans are upset," he said, "and by whom? A man, you tell me, who has never even applied for admission to the Association of Polar Explorers; no scientist, but a mere blunderer." The Duke refused to say what effect the discovery would have on his plans.

DR. NANSEN CONGRATULATES AMERICA.

Christiania, June 12.—[Special.]—Dr. Nansen, who is here getting out the lithographs for his fall lecture tour, congratulated America on this its latest triumph. "I always felt," said the doctor, "that if I failed only an American could succeed. Yes; I shall proceed with my lecture tour. My route is all booked, and I have considerable money invested in stereopticon views."

An attempt was made to communicate with Lieutenant Peary via the Whale Sound Telegraph company, but the dispatch was returned.

SKETCH OF MR. DUBBE.

ANANIAS F. DUBBE was born at Northampton, Mass., March 22, 1866. His father was a lawyer, and Ananias set out to follow the legal profession; but he got no further than page 120 of "Greenleaf on Evidence." His first newspaper work was done as Northampton correspondent for the Springfield Republican, and he is remembered in that office for his excellent work on the railroad disaster at White River, Vt. Mr. Dubbe went West in the fall of '96, and joined the staff of the Line-o'-Type in January of this year. His adventures since then are familiar to readers of this column. Mr. Dubbe is a brother of Mr. Criticus Flub-Dubbe, and, as was explained some time ago, exhibited characteristic independence and democracy by dehyphenating his family name, retaining only the "F" as a middle initial.

PREVIOUS POLAR DASHES.

The best previous attempt to reach the North Pole was made by the Duke d'Abruzzi in April of 1900. The Duke reached latitude 86.33, or 239 miles from the Pole.

In April, 1895, Dr. Nansen penetrated to latitude 86.14, or 261 miles from the coveted goal.

In May, 1882, the Greely expedition reached latitude 83.24, or 460 miles shy, which in those days was regarded as quite a feat.

NOTE.

We have wired Mr. Dubbe to start south immediately, and under no considerations to venture farther north.

Elliott's Real Estate Deal.

JOHN R. ELLIOTT was a hardened commuter of six years' standing. He lived at Sea-Side-on-the-Hilltop, and his regular train to the city was the 7:47½. He had his regular seat in the smoking car with the other fellows, and every day they played hearts during the run at a cent the heart. On the average Elliott figured that he made $1.18 a week out of the game, which was half enough to pay for his ticket. He took the 5:18 back to Sea-Side-on-the-Hilltop every evening, and the same party were accustomed to resume their game of hearts just where it had been left off in the morning. Without giving the matter

"HE HAD A REGULAR SEAT IN THE SMOKING CAR."

any particular thought, Elliott had become familiar with all the regular commuters on both trains, though his acquaintance with most of them was not even a speaking one. There was the elderly man with white sideburns and a white linen tie, who got on every morning at Lake Forest and watched the gambling game from the adjoining seat with a mixture of horror and fascination in his face. There were the young messengers from a couple of big factories at Waukegan, who got on with their padlocked satchels, lit their cigarets, and talked familiarly of current sporting events with the "train butcher." There was the sharp-nosed and eye-glassed maiden lady, who always got into the smoking car by mistake and glared

Personally Elliott was a good looking young man with an immature pointed brown beard, trimmed in the prevailing North Shore style. He was in the real estate line and was "next to a couple of good things," one of which only needed the advent of a projected trolley line to make him a handsome fortune. Meanwhile he was making a good living by buying and selling North Shore real estate on commission. He was unmarried and fancy free.

One morning Elliott missed the 7:47½ at Sea-Side-on-the-Hilltop, and was forced to wait for the 8:05. He felt it was a great bore when he got on the train not to find his regular crowd in the smoking car. But when the train stopped at Summerville-by-the-Shore something happened. A pretty girl got on board. Pretty girls are plentiful enough along the North Shore, but this one seemed to appeal to Elliott in a peculiar way. She was a slender young thing in a short brown skirt and a blue striped shirt waist, with smooth brown hair and blue eyes. In one hand she carried what was apparently a little music roll. She had an appealing and modest way about her which seemed extremely charming to Elliott.

In order that he might get a better look at her he went forward into the next coach and sat down across the aisle. The trip to the city, which is scheduled to take forty-five minutes, seemed to Elliott to be over that morning in a twinkling. The divinity in the blue shirt waist got into a big bus at the city station, and was hurried away over town, leaving Elliott to walk to his office with his mind in a strange glow.

That night he deliberately missed the 5:18 to Sea-Side-on-the-Hilltop and waited for the 5:23, hoping that she might be on the train. She was missing then, but Elliott found her again next morning when he let the heart game and the 7:47½ go by and took the 8:05 for the city. He made many inquiries about her, but could find out nothing, and she was not the sort of a young woman to invite confidences. It was only after experimetning for a fortnight that he discovered that her train north was the 5:47, which, thereafter, he persistently patronized.

When Elliott's partners in the heart game reproached him for deserting them he replied that he had "a big deal on and business must come before pleasure." There happened to be some truth in the excuse, for, in addition to the affair with the mysterious maiden, which had made no progress whatever, Elliott was working on a scheme for buying up some farm lands on the lake shore in the interest of a syndicate which proposed to start a new suburb. So far his work had been comparatively easy and extremely successful. He had all the land that he wanted under contract except one farm of 160 acres, and negotiations for the purchase of that were well under way. Elliott was represented in the deal by one of the land-owning farmers, who had been paid a big price for his property on condition that he act as a stalking horse for his neighbors. The man reported one afternoon that he expected to close the deal next day, and Elliott was correspondingly happy. It meant for him a commission of several thousand dollars and a corresponding growth in importance as a real estate man.

He went to the 5:47 that evening feeling like a fighting cock, as he expressed it, and full of his project. He was young and he was successful, so it is not to be wondered at that he was perhaps foolishly self-satisfied. Since he had quit the heart game to follow the girl in the blue shirt waist he had abandoned the smoking car also, so strong was the attraction. When he walked into the regular coach this evening it took him but a glance to tell him that his fortune was indeed at the flood. Every seat in the car was taken but the one half occupied by his mysterious charmer. It was a heaven-sent opportunity and Elliott hastened to take advantage of it. He raised his hat as he asked if the vacant place was reserved and was given permission to sit down. The girl in the blue shirt waist was busy with an evening paper, and there was no opportunity to make conversation until the conductor came through. Then fortune favored Elliott again. The girl had mislaid or lost her pocketbook, containing both her commuter's ticket and her money. Elliott had a twenty-five ride ticket and he insisted that the conductor punch it a second time for his fair seat mate. The girl was greatly embarrassed, but finally consented, taking Elliott's card that she might send him the money in the morning.

That was the start. Elliott took good care not to let the conversation halt. He was young and infatuated and he was full of his real estate deal. And as there were miles of real estate passing the car windows in rapid review he talked on that subject. The girl said little, but her quiet manner seemed to invite confidence. Then as Elliott, with youthful masculine variety, wished to appear as important a personage as possible in her eyes he told her about the real estate deal he was just about to close up. Presently they came in sight of the farm for which the contract was to be signed next day. Elliott pointed it out.

"See that old white farmhouse?" he said. "The chap that lives there owns 160 acres right along the lake that he could get $500 an acre for if he only knew it. The syndicate would pay that in a minute if they had to. But he has almost agreed to let it go for $150. Of course, he thinks his neighbor wants to buy it for farming purposes. He hasn't an idea of the new suburb," said Elliott. "More fool he."

Then he laughed in conceit of his own shrewdness.

When the girl got off at Summerville-by-the-Sea, which happened to be the next station, Elliott felt that he had certainly made good progress. The ice had been broken and he looked forward to many pleasant rides to and from the city with the girl in the blue shirt waist. And then when he closed the deal next day he would have plenty of money and be in a position to think about—but that was some distance ahead.

But next morning he was disappointed. She did not get on the 8:05, and Elliott could not understand it. The matter was cleared up about 10 o'clock when a tall, smooth shaven young man walked into his office.

"I believe you were kind enough to pay Miss Gertrude Forley's fare to Summerville-by-the-Sea," he said. "Here is the money," and he laid down 60 cents on the desk. "Incidentally you put Miss Forley in an extremely embarrassing position. I happen to be the owner of the 160 acres you pointed out to her as being in the possession of a fool. Also Miss Forley and I are engaged to be married. You told her, I believe, that the syndicate would be glad to pay $500 for my land. In view of the fact that your boasting to Miss Forley, though not invited and uncalled for, was, in a sense, confidential, I am willing to compromise at $400 the acre."

Discouraging.

"You still have three unmarried daughters, haven't you?"

"Yes, and the unseasonable weather is dreadfully discouraging for them."

"In what way?"

"Why, it's too cold to hang the hammocks out."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS.

PENSION PLAN OF ST. PAUL COMPANY UNIQUE.

It Will Have a Relief Department Also, and Any Employe May Share Benefits by Paying Toward the Fund—Ten Years' Previous Service Required and Fifty Minimum Age for Retirement—Changes in the Rock Island Train Schedule.

The plan for establishing a pension and relief department for the entire system of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, recently approved by the Executive committee of the Board of Directors, will be put in operation next September, and will embrace between 30,000 and 35,000 employés.

The plan adopted differs materially from those lately put in effect by the Chicago and Northwestern and Illinois Central railroads. The premium to which the employés will be entitled depends upon the salary received and the amount they contribute to the department. The contributions have been fixed upon a sliding scale, so that men of small salaries will not contribute nearly so much in proportion as those receiving large salaries. In case of accidents or sickness, however, the men who contribute more to the department will receive benefits accordingly.

In general, the average amount of pension received will be about one-third of the salary at the time of retirement, and in all cases will be one-half of what the member would receive from the relief department. Under the system an employé must become a member of the relief department in order to be entitled to a pension. As soon as he becomes a member of the department, however, his pension rights are immediately in force, provided he has been employed by the company for a period of ten years previous. Otherwise, his relief rights will be operative at once, and his pension rights as soon as the ten-year period elapses.

Unlike other railway pension systems, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul does not prescribe any age at which retirement is made compulsory, but any employé may retire at the age of 50 if he so desires. For the purpose of relief and pensions the employés will be divided into two classes, the first class to be composed of those engaged in operating trains and the second of those otherwise employed.

Changes in Rock Island Trains.

Important changes in its train service will be put in effect by the Rock Island road on next Sunday. An entirely new train, No. 41, to be known as the "Rocky Mountain Limited, west-bound, will leave Chicago daily at 1 p. m., arriving at Colorado Springs at 4:30 p. m. the next day, and at Denver at 4:45. Returning, this train, No. 42, will be known as the "Pan-American Express," and will leave Colorado Springs at 1:30 p. m., and Denver at 1:20, and will arrive at Chicago at 6:58 p. m. the next day.

A number of new trains will be added to the suburban service and the running time of all trains in the suburban district between Chicago and Blue Island will be reduced from three to seven minutes. The new trains will be run during the rush hours, morning and evening, and will materially improve the company's service to intermediate stations. The Peru accommodation train, No. 9 and No. 10, will make only one stop between Chicago and Joliet and make the running time between those points fifty-five minutes, shortening the time twenty-one minutes. The Peru accommodation, west-bound, will leave Chicago at 5:10 p. m. instead of 5 o'clock, as at present. The express train to Brainerd, which now leaves at 5:22 p. m., will leave at 5:12.

Reduced Rates for July 4.

Western roads have agreed to make reduced rates for July 4 from all the territory east of the Missouri River. Tickets will be sold at a fare and one-third for the round trip in all territory where the local rate is three cents a mile and a rate of a fare and one-fifth for the round trip where it is over three cents a mile. These rates will be applicable within a distance of 200 miles of each other and from St. Louis to all Illinois points. The minimum rate will be 50 cents.

Transportation Notes.

By the first of the year the Missouri Pacific will be operating what is now termed "the River Route" between St. Louis and Kansas City. This will be the result of the completion of the new line between Jefferson City and Boonville. This line will give the Missouri Pacific a river grade from Labadie, in Franklin County, to Kansas City. The former is the point at which the line first touches the river, and it leaves it near Jefferson City.

A big gang of laborers is laying a second track on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Libertyville. It is claimed that only half a mile of track is to be laid for switching purposes, but it is believed to be the beginning of double tracking the new Janesville branch which was recently completed. The double track would connect with the present main line at Rondout, near Libertyville.

Earnings of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for the month of May and for the eleven months ended May 31 were as follows:

Month of May—	1901.	1900.	Increase.
Gross	$3,988,649	$3,735,010	$253,639
Eleven months, ended on May 31—

Net	14,444,458	13,798,810	653,648

Iowa Central earnings for the first week of June were $41,313, against $41,188 for the corresponding week last year, an increase of $125.

Leon A. Bell, who has represented the Plant system in the West, with headquarters in Chicago, as Commercial, Freight, and Western Passenger Agent, will take service on June 15 with the Chicago Great Western railway as General Agent, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., his jurisdiction extending over the entire Southeastern territory, both freight and passenger interests of that company.

MAY CHANGE STAFF OF B. AND O.

President L. F. Loree Expects to Modify Present Arrangement of His Assistants.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—President L. F. Loree of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is expected to make some changes in the official staff of that system within the next few days. Mechanical Engineer Barr, it is said, has resigned and will go to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road.

Negotiations are under way, it is asserted, for the purchase by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company of the Morgantown and Kingwood railroad in West Virginia. This last named railway will give the Baltimore and Ohio valuable coal feeders.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad says that the negotiations with the Hamburg-American steamship line have been discontinued because of the inability of the parties to agree upon the terms of a contract. The Atchison management, however, will not abandon its efforts to secure an ocean steamship service.

A special meeting of the directors of the Missouri Pacific has been called for next Monday. Matters other than those of a routine character are to be discussed. Wall street expects that the long delayed announcement of a dividend on the stock will be made at that time. Two days afterward a conference of Texas Pacific directors will be held.

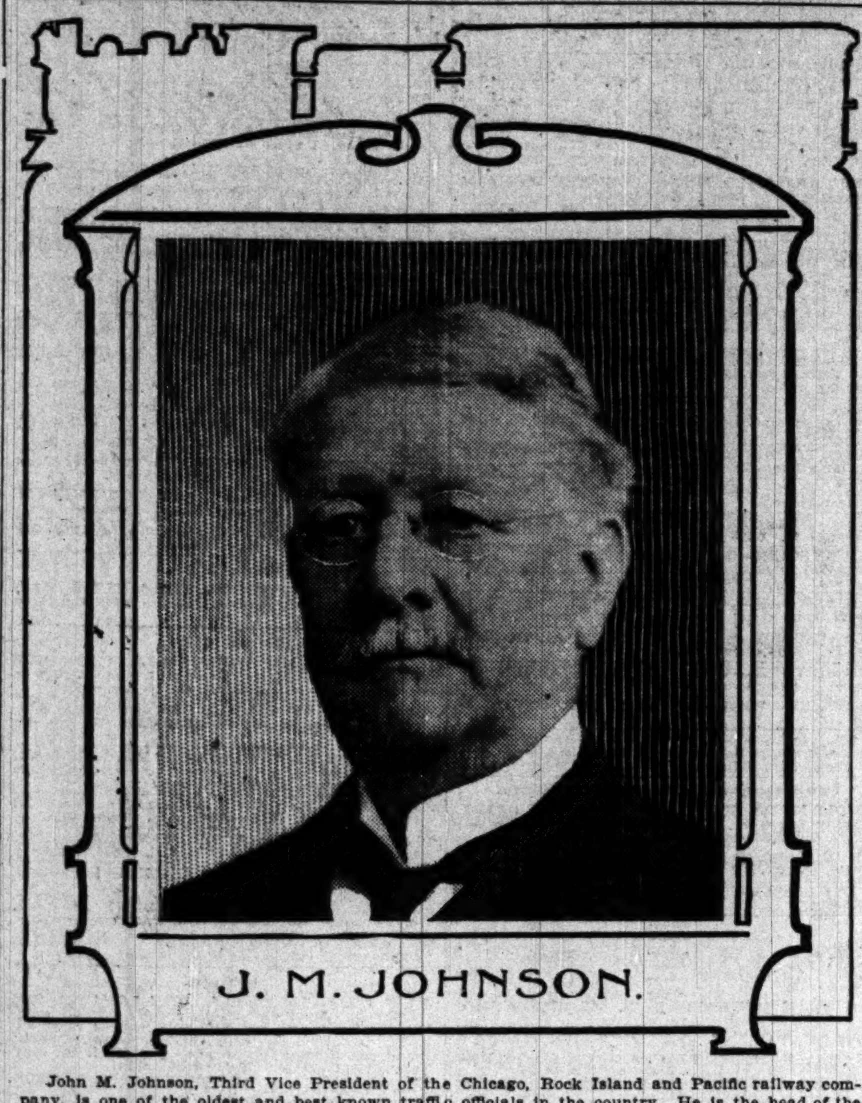

An unusually large amount of freight is moving westward for this season of the year. Some of the lines out of Buffalo are sending out four and five trains daily each composed of between forty and fifty loaded freight cars. Much of this freight simply passes through Buffalo, having started from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other Eastern points. Machinery, agricultural implements, and general merchandise constitute the larger proportion of this westbound freight.

Nathan Guilford, Traffic Manager of the New York Central, has declined to be a candidate for the position of commissioner of the Trunk Line association, successor to the late J. F. Goddard.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Entries in THE TRIBUNE's amateur garden competition will be received only two days longer, the books closing on June 15.

TRAFFIC CHIEF OF THE ROCK ISLAND ROAD.

J. M. JOHNSON.

John M. Johnson, Third Vice President of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway company, is one of the oldest and best known traffic officials in the country. He is the head of the traffic departments of the road, and the large increase in the revenues of the company during the last three years attests the efficiency of his work.

He enjoys the confidence of Chairman of the Board R. R. Cable and President W. G. Purdy in the highest degree, and stands high in the estimation of competing and connecting roads. He has been in the service of the Rock Island since March, 1884, when he left the service of the Big Four road to take the position of First Assistant General Freight Agent. On March 1, 1888, he was promoted to General Freight Agent, which position he held until 1896, when he was appointed Freight Traffic Manager. In March, 1899, he was elected Third Vice President.

Mr. Johnson also served one year as chairman of the Western Classification committee, representing the Western Freight association. He was born in 1845, and has been in railroad service since 1870, working his way up from a station agent on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette railroad at Franklin, Ind. Nearly his entire service prior to coming to the Rock Island was with the Big Four Railroad.

IN THE INSURANCE FIELD.

HEXAMER IS PRESIDENT OF THE PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

Meeting Now Being Held in Chicago Elects Officers and Devotes Much of Its Time to a Discussion of New Devices That Are Calculated to Reduce Losses by Fire—Practical Demonstration on the Program for Today—Other News of the Risk Men.

C. A. Hexamer of Philadelphia was reëlected President of the National Fire Protection association yesterday afternoon. Vice President J. W. Cochran and E. U. Crosby of New York, the secretary and treasurer, also were chosen for another year.

The day's sessions at the Grand Pacific were devoted to consideration of various propositions for improvements in fire prevention methods, as submitted by committees which have been working on their various specialties since the last meeting. Reports on wire and prism glass frames, electric fire pumps, and steam and rotary fire pumps aroused greatest discussion. Steel roll shutters, thermo electric fire alarms, and relative hazards of various methods of baling cotton also were considered. At noon the delegates were given a luncheon at the Union League club by the Western Factory Insurance association.

Incidentally it was decided to inspect the gravity tanks on the tops of buildings. A set of uniform specifications is in contemplation.

Special interest attaches to the program for today, to be devoted to demonstrations of devices and methods at the Underwriters' laboratories, 67 East Twenty-first street. The testing work for the association is being done here, and the visitors will be shown the appliances and their practical use.

Insurance men desire the insured to know that if they intend to handle fireworks they must have a permit indorsed on their policies, or they will be void in case of loss arising from them. The charge for these permits is $5 per $1,000 of insurance, and they are good for thirty days. The high rate reflects the hazard of such stocks.

R. T. Savin, manager for the Equitable Life of the Chicago Metropolitan district, has been appointed New York City manager for the Fidelity Mutual Life. Before coming to Chicago Mr. Savin was superintendent of agencies for the New York Life at Buffalo.

Alfred James, President of the Northwestern National of Milwaukee, wants the Superintendent of Insurance to take action against the Wisconsin Field club. His statement was brought out by the recent acrimonious discussion at the union meeting at Niagara of the proposition to make membership in the club mandatory. Discussing this Mr. James, one of the bitterest opponents of the union, says: "The club is an illegal one, conflicting with the laws prohibiting combinations formed for the purpose of controlling rates. It is similar to the State board once in existence here, and simply provides another way to whip the devil around the stump, as it accomplishes the same obect indirectly. The Wisconsin Field club is illegal, but the Superintendent of Insurance doesn't take any action against it, although its object is to regulate rates in the State."

The Westchester has reinsured the Pacific Fire of New York, the company being forced to retire by its heavy losses at Jacksonville, its net loss being $80,000. Other companies are expected to go soon from that cause or the general loss ratio.

Western managers are notifying their agents not to deliver July policies till after July 1, when revenue stamps will not be required, wherever this can be done without prejudice.

The higher courts in Missouri have decided adversely to the companies that had appealed the payment of city licenses, on the ground that the 2 per cent tax paid to the State was to be in lieu of all other taxes. Two test cases were carried up and both were decided against the companies. A number of Missouri towns had been intending to impose such taxes, but had been awaiting the outcome of the pending litigation before doing so, and the companies may now expect to be caught all along the line. The favorite amount is $25.

The loss on the drug store of Gardner & Robertson at West Lansing, Mich., is reported at 75 per cent on stock and 20 per cent on building. The insurance was $5,000 on stock and $6,000 on building.

Options Secured on Mining Stock.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—Capitalists, represented by Washington bankers, are engaged in securing options upon stock of the Republic Iron Mining company, which is largely owned in this city. Offers received by stockholders are for $30 per share, options to run until next February. The pool is represented by E. W. Breiling & Co., who, it is said, desire the control.

Sealed Verdict in O'Connor Case.

A sealed verdict will be returned this morning in the damage suit of Edward T. Ryan against former Alderman Maurice M. O'Connor. Ryan seeks $5,000 damages for injuries which he declares were inflicted on him by O'Connor on April 7, 1896, just after a hotly contested election.

There is an apartment building on this property, the whole carrying an incumbrance of $19,000.

JUDGE TULEY SCORES JUSTICES.

Says Practice of Continuing Cases for Bond Fees Will Continue Till Magistrates Are Indicted.

In hearing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus sought by Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, 1148 Thirteenth street, and John Kruse, 1198 Thirteenth street, Judge Tuley criticised the methods employed by some justices when he said:

"The practice of many justices of the peace to continue cases simply for the purpose of securing fees on bonds will never be stopped until some of the justices are indicted and punished for it."

After delivering this censure the court ordered the discharge of the defendants, who had, in their petition, cited the following history:

May 6, 1901, arrested on warrants secured by Albertina Elsner, 655 Leavitt street, charging Brown and Kruse with disorderly conduct, and Mrs. Brown with assault and battery. Case continued until May 8 by Justice Hoaglund. Defendants paid $1 each for bonds.

May 8 and May 17 Justice Hoaglund continued case. Defendants assessed $1 each for bonds on both days.

May 24, change of venue taken to Justice Woods. Continuance ordered until June 3. In default of bail defendants committed to jail.

The defendants claimed that Justice Woods' only excuse for not hearing the case was that he had private business and wished to take an afternoon off.

ARRAYED IN ANOTHER'S GOWN.

Mrs. Gregory Wears One of Mrs. Fernando Jones' Dresses, Leading to Hotel Clerk's Arrest.

Through the misdirected efforts of a delivery boy two dresses belonging to Mrs. Fernando Jones, 1834 Prairie avenue, and valued at $250, failed to reach their owner on their return from a cleaning establishment. The facts were communicated to the Harrison street police, and when Mrs. Eva Gregory emerged from the house at 1837 Michigan avenue on Tuesday evening arrayed in one of the missing gowns she was approached by detectives and asked the source of the raiment. She declared it was given to her by C. P. Davis, clerk at the Yorkshire Hotel, Eighteenth street and Michigan avenue. Davis was arrested, and in Justice Prindiville's court yesterday said the bundle was left at the hotel to be called for. As it was not called for he said he gave the dresses to Mrs. Gregory to keep. As the delivery boy started to return the dresses on Monday and one of them appeared on Mrs. Gregory on Tuesday the court thought Davis had not waited long, and as the clerk said he didn't know who left the bundle nor to whom it was addressed he was held to the Criminal Court in $400 bonds.

CHICAGO PRIEST OFF TO ROME.

The Rev. John Kasprzycki Leaves to Attend the Conclave of the Resurrectionists.

With a stay of four months in Rome in prospect, the Rev. John Kasprzycki, rector of the St. Stanislaus Polish Roman Catholic Church, Noble and Ingraham streets, and provincial of the Resurrectionist congregation of priests, left Chicago yesterday for New York. He will remain in Rome for about four months, during which time he will represent the interests of the Resurrectionist congregation of priests in this country before the chapter reunion of the order, which will convene next month.

CALLS RECTOR TO ACCOUNT.

J. Hamilton Farrar Disputes the Alderman's Claim to Reward as an Honest Man.

"I got myself into a peck of trouble by starting after that thousand," said Alderman Charles H. Rector, referring to his claim to Mrs. Nancy B. Irving's reward for an honest man. "I find that people are blaming me for things I have not done. For example, J. Hamilton Farrar, 90 La Salle street, gives me credit for supporting the Street Railway commission and the new Committee on Local Transportation, which I did not do, contending that the commission had finished that work, and that traction matters can be taken care of in the Railroads committee."

Mr. Farrar, in his letter to the Alderman, said in part:

"You as Alderman have promised to work for and protect and legislate for the best interests of your constituents. I ask you if you have not voted for a Street Railway commission, not one of the members of which could tell how many citizens of Chicago have been killed by cars running in the public streets within the last twelve months, and also you have voted for the former Street Railway commission members, who had plenty of time to ascertain and report on deaths and accidents of this nature, but did not wish their constituents to know how many of them were being slaughtered for fear such citizens would cause a stopping of it. This same commission has concealed every other interest of its constituents which in any way militated against the car companies' interests, but has published every item which militated for the companies' interests with slave-like devotion. You are familiar with the plan and purpose of the subsidewalk railroad petition, or, if not, it seems that from the efforts made to make it public you ought to be. Can you say you have done nothing to bring this to the front, and still are honest to your constituents?"

SADDLE AND CYCLE CLUB SUFFERS BY THE STORM.

Annual Reception Interfered with by the Disturbance, Which Breaks in the Early Evening, but the Program Is Carried Out Within Doors—Banner Day for Weddings, All Sections of the City Being Represented—One Church Display.

Yesterday, as exactly one year ago, the Saddle and Cycle club, having made elaborate plans for its annual reception, again had a fierce storm destroy its music pavilion and compel the bevy of young women, in the gauziest of summer gowns, who presided at the tea tables on the veranda, to take refuge within doors. Yesterday, however, the storm delayed its coming until the reception hours were nearly over, while a year ago it prevented the guests even remaining.

The reception was set for 3 o'clock. Flowers on the veranda and within the clubhouse rivaled the trees and shrubs abloom on the grounds. Canopied tea tables, flower trimmed, were placed on the veranda, and near by a pavilion was erected for the orchestra. Mr. J. Lewis Cochran, the President of the club, received the guests, and the ladies assisting him were Mrs. Bertram Winston, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, Mrs. Edson Keith Jr., Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. William R. Odell, and Mrs. William M. Scudder.

The storm broke at 6 o'clock, driving the guests to shelter within doors. Tables were set for nearly 200 people to dine at the club, and there were many special dinner parties, among the larger parties being those of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell King, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Keith Jr., Mr. John King, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley High, Mr. Edward S. Isham, and Mrs. C. D. Erskine. The orchestra played during the dinner hour, and there was dancing afterward.

Save the reception at the Saddle and Cycle club, yesterday was given over socially to weddings, and it was a banner day. Leading the list of yesterday's brides were Miss Pence on the North Side, Miss Earle on the West Side, Miss Noe and Miss Cullinan on the South Side, each having a large circle of friends, and each, with the exception of Miss Pence, having a number of pretty girls for bridemaids. Only in Evanston was there a large church wedding, nearly all being home affairs, in a few instances followed by large receptions.

Miss Elizabeth Pence's wedding to Mr. James D. Lynch was one of the most interesting of the North Side weddings, although the ceremony was witnessed only by members of the two families. The bride's sister, Miss Gertrude Pence, was the only attendant. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Pence, 550 North State street. The house was decorated with smilax and white and pink peonies. The bride's gown was of cream Venetian lace, and she carried a bouquet made of swansonia. Her sister wore white French net over white silk, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. There was no reception. After a wedding trip in the East Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will live at 205 Goethe street.

One of the most notable of the West Side weddings of the year was that by which Miss Carolyn Earle, daughter of Mrs. Charles Warrington Earle, became the wife of Dr. George Howitt Weaver. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. John Henry Hopkins at the family residence, 535 Washington boulevard, was witnessed only by a small company of relatives and friends, but a large reception was held from 8 till 10 o'clock. The rooms, windows, and doors were festooned with Southern smilax, caught with bunches of pink roses and peonies. The bride's gown was of white louisine silk, with yoke and sleeves of duchesse lace, and her bouquet white roses and lilies of the valley. There was no maid of honor, Miss Anna Heper and Miss Helen Singer being bridemaids. Their gowns were pink silk mull over taffeta, and they carried white sweet peas. Dr. Alexander F. Stevenson was the groom's best man, and the bride's brother, Mr. William B. Earle, and Mr. F. D. Ansley were ushers. Another brother, Dr. Frank B. Earle, was master of ceremonies. There were many handsome presents. The wedding reception was one of the largest of the year. Mrs. Earle received with the bridal party, and wore a gown of gray crêpe de chine and lace. Dr. and Mrs. Weaver, after a short wedding trip, will be at home at 535 Washington boulevard.

Only a small company of relatives and friends witnessed the marriage of Miss Edith Chidsey Cullinan and Mr. Wilson S. Chapman Jr., another of yesterday's ceremonies. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John S. Cullinan of 6133 Woodlawn avenue, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Chapman of 297 Schiller street. The Rev. Percival McIntire of the Church of the Redeemer read the marriage service at 8 o'clock, Miss Florence Chapman, sister of the groom, being maid of honor, and Miss Ethel Keating, Miss Zoe Madden, and Miss Estelle Baldwin bridemaids. Florence and Helen Kelly, nieces of the groom, acted as flower girls. The groom was attended only by Mr. Stanley Baldwin Cullinan, brother of the bride. The bride wore white crêpe de chine, with tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Her maids were dressed alike in white mousseline de soie, and their flowers were American Beauty roses. There was no reception, Mr. and Mrs. Chapman leaving for the East on their wedding trip.

Leading all the weddings of yesterday for elaborate details and the large number of guests was that of Miss Dexter Broad Noe and Mr. Thomas Julien Hoops, which took place at 7:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sara Dexter Noe, 4556 Michigan avenue. It was a pink and white wedding, the bridemaids wearing pink sashes with their white mull gowns and carrying bouquets of pink roses. The maid of honor wore white only, tieing her bouquet of white roses with pink ribbon streamers. The bride's gown was of white lace, with a long train and tulle veil, and her bouquet a shower of lilies of the valley. The bridal attendants were Miss Agnes Jules Hoops, maid of honor; Mr. Walden W. Shaw, best man; Miss Mary Stuart Weed, Binghamton, N. Y.; Miss Jane Holmes Hoge, Evanston; Miss Gertrude Blair, and Miss Margaret Pratt, bridemaids; Mr. Isaac Miller Hamilton, Mr. Lee Parker of Evanston, Mr. Charles Foley, and Mr. Walter Hamilton Peacock, ushers. After the ceremony and reception there was a young people's dance. Mr. and Mrs. Hoops will be at home after Sept. 1 at 4158 Calumet avenue.

Mrs. E. F. Dore and Miss Bertha and Miss Marion Dore of 2730 Prairie avenue left yesterday for Lakeville, Conn., their summer home, where the wedding of Miss Bertha Dore and Mr. Henry Chapman Olcott will take place on June 22.

Miss Clara Frances Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Smith, 6117 Monroe avenue, and Dr. John Larkin Akers were married last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, the Rev. F. W. Millar of the Ryder Memorial Chapel officiating.

Evanston's contribution to yesterday's brides was Miss Sarah Letitia Hebert, whose wedding to Mr. Gardner Read took place at St. Mark's Church. The Rev. D. F. Smith, assisted by Dr. A. W. Little, performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock. The bride wore white crêpe de chine, with a tulle veil and a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Alice Roberts of Oak Park, wore pink mousseline de soie and carried pink roses. Instead of bridemaids there were four little flower girls—Marion and Margaret Lewis, Lois Wilder, and Dorothy Thomas. They wore broad pink sashes over their white frocks and carried baskets of pink carnations. Mr. Henry S. Adams of Brooklyn was the best man, and the ushers were Dr. A. W. Hebert, Mr. J. W. Hebert, Mr. William G. Hoag, and Dr. Burton Hazeltine. Peonies, palms, and ferns were used in the church decorations, and at the home of Mrs. Sarah K. Rogers, where the reception was held, fleur-de-lis and ferns made up the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Read will be at home the first and third Wednesdays in September at 1824 Hinman avenue.

Miss Isabel Grantley Tanner and Mr. David Adams Parmele were married last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tanner, 671 Warren avenue. The Rev. William M. Lawrence performed the ceremony. Miss Maud Rynd was the bride's only attendant, and Mr. Edward D. Bryan was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Parmele will live in Davenport, Ia.

Mrs. C. H. Conover of 590 North State street will give a breakfast tomorrow at 12 o'clock for Mrs. Richard Yates. There will be sixteen guests.

Miss Bertha Dibblee will leave on Saturday to join her mother and sister, Mrs. Henry Dibblee and Miss Frances Dibblee, at Rye Beach, their summer home.

The Colonial club will give a card party on Friday evening.

Miss Marjorie Dyrenforth of 425 La Salle avenue gave a luncheon and matinée party yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Goldstine, 484 Halsted street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leah, to Mr. Benjamin Wolf.

Picnic for Bohemian School.

Five lodges of the Bohemian-American School of the Fifth Ward will join in a picnic excursion to Kankakee, Ill., next Sunday over the Illinois Central railroad. The picnic will be given under the direction of the School board and for the benefit of that educational institution.

Aged Woman Run Over by Wagon Dies.

Mrs. Amelia Wohlerman, 89 years old, 2067 North Ashland avenue, who was run over by a wagon at Ashland avenue and Grace street last Monday, died from the effects of her injuries yesterday at the German Hospital. The driver of the wagon, Charles Denzel, has eluded arrest.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

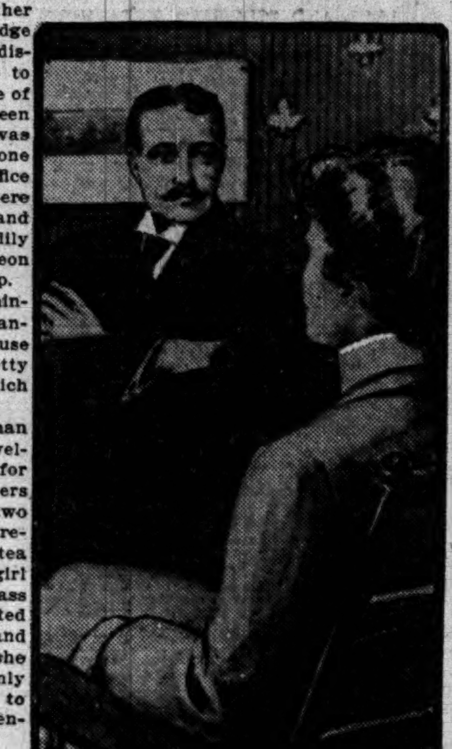

AN UGLY GIRL

By Margaret G. Fawcett.

[Copyright, 1901.]

HE was competing for a prize offered by a big publication and had buried himself in Ashton because it was the first place he happened to think of. Ashton was mildly gay in July. In January it was not much livelier than its own quiet cemetery on the West hill. Naturally Broadbridge did not mind the dullness. The mornings he devoted to writing, the afternoons to long tramps down the main street and out into the country. It was during these tramps that he planned his story. His evenings were a trifle slow—at first. It was at the end of his first week in Ashton that he met "the ugly girl" on one of his walks. She wore a sensible short skirt, sensible stout boots, a short, mannish coat, and a scarlet tam o' shanter. He noted these details with disapproval. He was accustomed to elegant women of the hot house variety. Most of all, he objected to the girl's lack of beauty. Small eyes of a nondescript color, though one might stretch a point and call them blue, a tip-tilted nose, and a wide mouth; these things he observed with unkind criticism on that first meeting. That lips and cheeks matched the tam o' shanter in color might have compensated somewhat for the irregular features, but, alas! nose and chin were only a shade paler. Then, too, the ugly girl's manner displeased him. She had looked him over with a provokingly superior little air, as if he were the green grocer's clerk or one of the other young men of the village, and Broadbridge had always prided himself on his air of distinction. He was angry that evening to find that he could not forget the episode of the meeting. A crimson tam flitted between his eyes and the pages of the book he was trying to read. The next morning but one he walked down to the village postoffice and met her on the way. Three dogs were jumping about her, two great Danes and a terrier. He went home and wrote steadily the rest of the morning. Before luncheon he read what he had written and tore it up.

"She's the daughter of the Episcopal minister," said his hostess that evening, in answering a blunt inquiry. "She keeps house for her father. They live in that pretty little white cottage next the church which you think is so picturesque."

He found the rector to be a gentleman and a scholar, whose broken health welcomed the quiet of Ashton. Hungering for the flesh pots of modern Egypt, Dr. Peters welcomed Broadbridge cordially. The two took a tramp together, and upon their return Broadbridge was invited to have tea at the rectory. He found that the ugly girl had much self-possession for a country lass and the fanciful name of Carr. She chatted cheerfully about many things with him and her father, but Broadbridge felt that she hardly separated the two—and he was only 30. He had learned that the best way to attract an intelligent young woman's attention was to say something rather rude.

"I hardly expected, Miss Peters," he observed, while sipping his coffee in the cozy library one night after dinner—the rector had been called out by a member of his parish—"to find anything quite so new as yourself in sleepy Ashton." One of Broadbridge's many gifts was an expressive voice. That adjective "new" implied many things, not all of them flattering.

"And you don't like new women," said Miss Peters, frankly. "Well, we are quits. I have no great admiration for the modern man. Please smoke, if you care to. Father always smokes here."

"And what is your definition of the modern man?" queried Broadbridge, with interest.

"All opinions and no convictions," retorted Miss Peters, succinctly. "Are you fond of Chopin?"

The abrupt change of subject annoyed Broadbridge. The ugly girl lacked tact, he thought.

That night wild Polish melodies, a tip-tilted nose, a mocking mouth, and a fat cheek were curiously mixed up in Broadbridge's dreams. The next morning he began a new story.

After his acquaintance with the Peters he altered his plans somewhat. He still wrote in the mornings, he still tramped about the country in the afternoons, but now a red tam o' shanter generally bobbed near his shoulder. In the evenings he visited Dr. Peters at the rectory. Miss Peters was interested in the story.

"It will be detestably cynical," she said, with her usual frankness. "All these modern stories are. I stopped reading them long ago."

"You are lacking in charity, Miss Peters," observed Broadbridge, gravely. "You should have considered the modern writers."

Miss Peters airily disregarded the sarcasm.

"We have smart writers, nowadays. We haven't any great writers."

"For a new woman you are the most old-fashioned I ever met," he said, gazing half quizzically at the mannish little figure. Miss Peters had grace, if she hadn't beauty.

"I suspect only my clothes are new," she answered, with a laugh. "Tell me about your heroine. Is she," hesitatingly, "beautiful?"

"To me she is beautiful," said Broadbridge, "though, of course, beauty is a matter of taste. Still I may safely say"—Miss Peters thought he said it with unnecessary, almost brutal, emphasis—"that the good reading public would also call my heroine beautiful."

"I suppose they are more interesting when they are beautiful," admitted Miss Peters, "but I wish"—wistfully—"some one would write a story about an ugly girl."

"It would be a rather catchy title," observed Broadbridge carelessly. He wondered if the ugly girl was not a trifle lacking in penetration.

Broadbridge was young enough to flatter himself that he understood women very well. Such presumption generally carries with it its own punishment. When Miss Peters, after that conversation about his heroine, began to avoid him, he made up his mind that she had read in his eyes his growing interest, and did not care to encourage it. Broadbridge began to feel blue and his story became of secondary importance. The rector possessed a valuable reference library, which he placed at Broadbridge's disposal.

When Miss Peters began to desert him in his walks the library was a pretext for meeting her. The story was almost finished, and in spite of his blueness he felt singularly elated over it. Miss Peters' lack of interest, however, marred his content. He was sitting in the library late one afternoon reading when she came in unexpectedly. She nodded cordially to Broadbridge, seized a book and turned to leave.

"Stay and talk," pleaded Broadbridge. "It's too early for lights and too dusky to read."

"We've nothing more to talk about," said Miss Peters, gazing into the fire. "I know what you would say on every subject."

"Well, life, for instance," suggested Broadbrige, nettled.

"And death?"

"An ending with no fresh beginning."

"And—love?"

"Flirtation carried to its logical conclusion—disillusionment."

As she mockingly repeated some of his own pet cynicisms Miss Peters looked provokingly impertinent in the firelight, but of course she couldn't realize her own irresistible charm, and when Broadbridge suddenly kissed her there seemed no excuse for him. He had no opportunity for the explanation that was meant to follow the kissing, for Miss Peters, after one indignant, scornful glance, fled from the room. That night he almost finished the story. The next morning, in passing through the hall, he heard Miss Peters' voice talking to the hostess.

"It's been an engagement of long standing," she was saying. "Although I don't believe I've ever mentioned the name to you before."

"It's perfectly lovely, and I congratulate you——"

Broadbridge, dazed, seized his hat and rushed out of the house. He walked all morning. In the afternoon he tried to finish his story, but found he couldn't write an intelligent line. Finally, with sudden resolve, he bundled it up and sent it unfinished to the editor. The next day he went down to bid the rector good-by. He inquired for Miss Peters.

"Ah," said the rector, kindly, "she was so sorry to leave without seeing you. She left last night for Boston to attend the wedding of a college friend. It's an engagement of long standing, I believe. The girls promised at college that whoever was married first should invite the other to be maid of honor."

"Ah," said Broadbridge, in turn, and there was no apparent excuse for the gayety that was expressed in that tiny monosyllable. "I'll probably see Miss Peters, then. I'm going to Boston later myself."

Two weeks after he left Ashton Broadbridge received a letter from the editor, together with the manuscript. "Your story is the most available of any sent in," said the letter, "but it's not finished. Doubtless you overlooked sending us the last sheet. If it ends happily, send it back to us with the missing sheet, and we'll consider it."

Two days later Miss Peters in Boston received a manuscript entitled "An Ugly Girl," together with the note Broadbridge had received from the editor. There was also a note from Broadbridge himself.

"I'm in a dilemma," said this latter note. "I should like to have the story accepted, for its acceptance would help make possible an ideal honeymoon with Easter, perhaps, in Rome. But the story is true to life. I can't mar it by making up an ending. Please read it yourself and tell me whether it is to end happily."

"I, too, should like to have the story accepted," wrote back Miss Peters, "for I feel as if I had a proprietary interest in it. End it happily, by all means."

Of course there was a postscript.

"Your title is a misnomer," it said. "You call your heroine ugly, but you make her out angelic."

Marquise de Fontenoy Letter.

Copyright, 1901, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.

ALL honor to Prince Joachim Murat for having given a much needed lesson to fashionable people in Paris and to the leaders of the smart set in connection with the courtesies due to the Chief Magistrate of France. Most of the great national and metropolitan exhibitions and shows are presided over and managed by members of the aristocracy and of the fashionable world at Paris. The President of the republic is expected in all cases where these shows and undertakings have a utilitarian or charitable object in view to honor them with a visit. This indeed is expected of him, and the managers and promoters of these affairs would be the first to bitterly complain if he failed to fulfill what are regarded as his Presidential obligations in this respect.

They consider it, however, to be good form to treat him with the most glacial politeness, in the stiffest possible manner, and to repel every disposition towards cordiality on his part. Indeed, their attitude towards him, which is naturally all pose and for the sake of show, is absolutely insulting in its polite disdain and superciliousness, which are all the more unpardonable in view of the fact that President Loubet is the most kind hearted and genial of men, without an atom of affectation in his composition, and yet withal possessed of a sort of native dignity which has won for him the good will of all foreign royal personages with whom he has been brought into contact. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to state that with the exception of Marshal MacMahon, there has been no Chief Magistrate of the French Republic who, by his simplicity of manner, has created so excellent an impression on foreign royalties as Emile Loubet.

When the President went the other day to pay his more or less official visit to the National Dog show at Paris he was welcomed by the head of the National Kennel association of France—namely: Prince Joachim Murat. The latter has some cause for complaint against the republic for the same law enacted during the Presidency of Jules Grévy on the proposition of General Boulanger, which drove all the Orleans Princes out of the army, including Boulanger's benefactor and patron, the late Duke d'Aumale, likewise deprived Prince Joachim Murat of the rank of General of cavalry, which he had won by gallant service in the various wars undertaken by France during the reign of his cousin, Napoleon III. And only those who have been soldiers from their youth in a continental country of Europe, where the military element predominates, socially speaking, can realize what it means to be suddenly expelled from the military caste, to be deprived of epaulettes won on battlefields, and to be reduced to the status of a mere civilian.

In spite of this undeserved treatment sustained by Prince Murat at the hands of the republic he welcomed President Loubet in the most charmingly cordial manner and with all that deference which is due to the Chief Magistrate of a country who is the people's choice. Prince Murat showed that he realized a thing which people are apt to so often forget—namely: that when they are lacking in respect to the elected ruler of a country they are ipso facto placing an indignity upon the nation which has chosen him and of which he is the chief representative. Indeed, it was impossible to be more cordially courteous than the Prince, and it may be questioned whether M. Loubet, since he has been President, ever enjoyed any function of this kind so much.

The Prince is a tall, good-looking man of 70, of military bearing, with heavy mustaches and frank eyes. Indeed, he looks much more an American than a Frenchman, and likewise talks French with a slight American accent, due to the fact that his mother was a Miss Fraser of Philadelphia and that he spent the first eighteen years of his life in this country. He is a grandson of King Murat of Naples and of Queen Caroline, sister of the first Emperor Napoleon, and was at one time engaged to be married to Miss Gwendoline Caldwell of Washington, the match, however, being broken off at the last moment.

One of the most powerful supporters and eloquent advocates of Christian Science is the Earl of Dunmore, who has just been publishing a series of important articles in favor of the cult in the London Daily Mail, for there is no man in the entire British peerage who is more level headed or who has a wider experience of the world. His career has been a strange blending of soldiering, art, letters, and adventures.

A guardsman in his earlier days, the Earl has been a Nimrod among hunters, a pioneer in exploration, has written books of travel, a novel, a number of songs, and an orchestral composition, which has been performed in St. James' Hall. Some twelve years ago he made the first of the big hunting expeditions to Asia Minor, bagging 1,600 head of game, great and small. Three years later he started off to explore Kashmir, Thibet, the Pamirs, and Chinese and Russian Turkistan, undergoing the most extraordinary hardships and dangers. He has likewise explored New Caledonia and has written a book about it, and has sunk the trifle of half a million of dollars in mining and farming in south Africa.

In the South Seas he narrowly escaped being eaten by the cannibals. He is a man of superb physique, standing six feet three in his stockings, rough and rugged in appearance, while his features and bearing are those of a man of fierce daring, with a will and power to go anywhere and do anything. Perhaps this aspect is accentuated through his being "lame" of an eye, as the Highlanders call it. He lost his left eye, like so many of his fellow-peers, during a battue, the culprit being the late Lord Lovat, who was terribly distressed about the affair.

He is the head of the great Scottish clan of Murray, and when in Highland costume, in which he looks superb, usually wears a bunch of juniper, for juniper is the badge of the Murrays, the badge being distinct from the crest. The latter belongs to the chief of the clan alone, whereas all the members of the clan are entitled to the badge.

The Countess of Dunmore, who is a daughter of the Earl of Leicester, is likewise a strong supporter of the Christian Science cult, and so, too, are her daughters, Lady Victoria and Lady Mildred Murray, and likewise the eldest son, Lord Fincastle, who won the Victoria Cross by an act of altogether remarkable gallantry and daring during the last Indian frontier war.

There are few old world families more intimately connected with the United States by marriage than that of which Lord Dunmore is the chief. Thus the uncle of the present peer and brother of the late Earl, Sir Charles Augustus Murray, was married to Elizabeth, daughter of James Wadsworth of Genesee, N. Y., by whom he has a son, Charles James Murray, now in Parliament. Then there is Captain Augustus Charles Murray of the royal navy, grandson of the fourth Earl, who married the daughter of David Lee of New York, while Henry Alexander Murray married the daughter of Samuel D. Babcock of New York.

Yet another of its members was the morganatic wife of King George III.'s younger son, the Duke of Sussex, and it was owing to his marriage with her that the royal marriage act was voted by Parliament, which renders invalid in law any union contracted by a member of the royal family, which has not received beforehand the sanction of the sovereign in council.

THEATRICAL NEWS AND GOSSIP.

Losing American Ventures in London.

All is not so lovely with the American companies in London as the cable reports and the accounts in the English papers would imply. A letter from a private and authentic source has a different story to tell, poor business and threatened failure being its burden. The American organizations, however, are not named as the sole victims. The statement of the writer is that nearly every manager and actor-manager in London has been losing money heavily this spring.

Perhaps the most astonishing bit in the epistle is that which declares that Mrs. Langtry has not been successful in her new theater, the Imperial, with the Marie Antoinette play, "A Royal Necklace," and that the house soon is to be closed.

"Alice Nielsen," the writer asserts, "is holding on by the heel of her boot, and Edna May in 'The Girl from Up There' is doing only fairly. Irving has had a bad frost, with revivals to follow. Mrs. Patrick Campbell's 'Mariana' fails to draw. Mrs. Langtry's beauty theater succumbs soon. The revivals at Wyndham's and the Criterion—'The Case of Rebellious Susan' and 'Wheels Within Wheels'—are doing no good. Forbes Robertson and Gertrude Elliott's 'The Sacrament of Judas' is not drawing, though it is dignified and strong, and the Comedy Theater will close up shortly.

"The season is proving disastrous all around—few genuine successes and much depression.

"Only 'The Second in Command,' at the Haymarket; 'The Wilderness,' at George Alexander's theater, the St. James; and Basil Hood's play, 'Sweet and Twenty,' at the Vaudeville Theater, and his opera, 'The Emerald Isle,' at the Savoy, can be called real successes, and they nearly have been throttled by the hot weather."

Sir Henry Irving's disaster has been public property in this country for a fortnight, as it is impossible to invent any recital to explain that the withdrawal of a new production a few weeks after its appearance upon the stage means anything but failure. "Coriolanus" evidently was a costly venture for the actor, as he does not intend to prepare a new play in its stead, falling back upon his répertoire. This must mean that he hopes to use the Shakspearean tragedy in his coming American tour, trusting apparently to the theater-going public to make up the deficit due to his failure to attract English audiences.

He has done such a deed before, and, in truth, he did it on his last tour with "Robespierre," which was given a lukewarm greeting in London, but which, with no merit but that of the Irving name, filled the Irving coffers anew when it was brought to this side of the Atlantic. There can be little doubt that the coffers will need another filling by October, when the tour will begin. The season of London revivals will end on July 1, and the actor will rest for the next three months.

Charles Frohman has discovered that Miss Edna May has worked so hard of late that she must have a vacation, no matter what the cost in box office receipts. So the copy of the London Era of yesterday's receipt contains a paragraph to the effect that she will be given a rest during the hot months of July and August, but that she will return to the Duke of York's Theater in September. In this fashion does the diplomatic manager avoid the possibility of a forced closing. Miss Alice Nielsen makes no announcement, the plan seemingly being to hold on if possible.

Outing for Stage Children.

Stage Manager A. L. Trahern of the "Lovers' Lane" company is to give the children employed in the production a tally-ho ride this afternoon. They will be taken to Lincoln Park and have a lunch there. The youngsters will wear the old-fashioned costumes they assume during the rehearsal for the "Old Folks' Concert."

New Pinero Play for Daniel Frohman.

Daniel Frohman is to offer the next of Arthur Wing Pinero's plays to the American public. He has purchased the American rights to the new comedy, as yet unnamed, to be produced in London by Arthur Bourchier in September. The New York presentation will be made at about the same time, probably by Mr. Frohman's stock company. At what theater the play will be seen in New York is a matter of some conjecture. Mr. Frohman did not prosper at Daly's Theater last year, and rumor has been insistent for several weeks in saying he would not control the house the coming season. The managers named as the future proprietors of the theater are Klaw & Erlanger, comprising a firm which the late Augustin Daly hated with deep intensity. If the gossip proves to be based on truth, the situation will be almost unparalleled for bitter irony.

New Policy at the Studebaker.

Early last winter, when Manager Henry W. Savage determined to shorten the annual tenancy of the Castle Square company at the Studebaker to twenty weeks, the plan was formed by the directors of the theater for inviting theatrical managers to use the house.

An effort was made to enter into an alliance with the theatrical syndicate, but that powerful institution demanded that the house be turned over to it absolutely as the first condition of partnership. As such a bargain would have ousted Manager Savage, it was refused, and overtures were made to the few independent players.

At the time it was said that Mrs. Fiske and Miss Henrietta Crosman both would appear there this fall, but Mrs. Fiske concluded to continue to bring her productions to the Grand Opera-House. Miss Crosman, however, has this week signed a contract with Manager Brown, and will be seen at the Studebaker in "Mistress Nell," which she is going to use a second year. It is said other players will come to the theater during the year, but their identity is not yet to be told.

It is evident that it is the hope of Manager Brown to give the house a theatrical, rather than an operatic rating, within the next year or two.

Irene Vanbrugh Signs a Frohman Contract.

Both Miss Irene Vanbrugh and her future husband, Dion Boucicault, have joined the forces of Manager Charles Frohman. Information received yesterday was that Miss Vanbrugh would succeed Miss Evelyn Millard as leading woman of the stock company of Mr. Frohman's London Theater, the Duke of York's, and that Mr. Boucicault would become the stage manager at the same house, appearing also as an actor of character parts. The first production of the fall will be made at another theater, as Miss Edna May is to return to the Duke of York's in the autumn, but the company will be installed at its regular theater by January. It may be that the organization will be brought to New York for the first four months of the season.

The heat of yesterday was felt seriously at almost every theater in the city. Only the theaters giving popular price matinées were able to draw the public in the afternoon.

Graustark for Mary Mannering.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Mr. Frank McKee of the well-known theatrical firm of Hoyt & McKee has just purchased from Messrs. H. S. Stone & Co., publishers, of Chicago, the dramatic rights in Mr. George Barr McCutcheon's novel, "Graustark; a Story of a Love Behind a Throne." Mr. McKee intends this play for Miss Mary Mannering, and will produce it after "Janice Meredith." Miss Mannering read the story while she was playing her recent engagement in Chicago and is delighted with the part of the Princess of Graustark. She thinks it will suit her better than any part that she has ever played, as it has so much picturesqueness, so much vivacity, and so much romantic love. The story is full of action and adventure, and admits of fine and unique scenic effects. Mr. McKee appreciates this fact and will spare no expense in the production of the play.

The dramatization of "Graustark" is being made by Miss Jeannette L. Gilder, who has just finished a dramatization of S. R. Crockett's "Joan of the Sword Hand," in which Miss Blanche Walsh will star next season. Miss Gilder, when seen today, said that she had the greatest confidence in the success of this play, not because of her ability as a dramatist, but because of the unusual opportunities offered by the story, which, while it is of the Zenda school of literature, is in no way imitative of Mr. Hope's peculiar manner. The hero is a typical young American, though the heroine is the reigning Princess of an European principality, in which the scene is chiefly laid.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, through whom the book was placed with Mr. McKee, cables Miss Gilder from London that negotiations are pending for a production of the play in that city by a well-known actor-manager.

PRETTY ROCKERIES FOR CHICAGO GARDENS.

A pretty rockery is a joy and a delight to the beholder. Nothing, perhaps, adds more to the beauty and the charm of a garden, large or small, than does the presence of an artistic, green-embroidered rockery. And few things are more simply or more easily arranged and brought into being. A little heap of rocks—good-sized lumps of coal will do at a pinch, "slag" is far from impossible or inartistic, and even old iron or broken bricks may be made to look attractive—a few vines and plants, a hardy fern or two, a limited quantity of good earth or loam, and a little time and attention will suffice for the creation of a great deal of beauty. Once properly in position the vines and plants will take care of themselves, almost; the rockery once put together little more time or trouble will be needed.

The first thing to decide upon is the location. The next, the kinds of vines or plants to be started. The selection of these, of course, must depend largely upon the locality and arrangement of the rockery. If a day-long flood of sunshine is to be enjoyed plant tall, dwarf, and climbing nasturtiums, petunias, summer flowering oxalis, sweet peas, and other full-flowering roots and bloomers. If the rockery is to be much shaded ferns, foliage plants, musk plant, cosmos, myosotis, and begonias will give best satisfaction. Pansies will do all the better for but a moderate amount of sunshine. Although spring flowering plants, by nature, they will bloom all summer long, practically speaking, if the straggling branches are cut back occasionally and no blossoms are allowed to go to seed. It is always a good thing, when cultivating pansies, to loosen the earth around the roots occasionally and place a little manure close in where they may draw from it. The loosening should always be done by hand, however, and the work should be most gently performed. A rockery entirely covered with pansies is most delightful to see.

If periodical or intermittent sunshine may be enjoyed by the rockery dwellers the list of flowers which may be depended upon will know no end. Heliotrope is wonderfully lovely in such a situation. It must have a fair amount of sunshine and more than a fair amount of water. Roses will grow on the top or sunny sides of a rockery most charmingly. Many of the varieties of lilies will do almost as well. Mignonette, sweet alyssum, dahlias, pinks, poppies, primroses, phlox, gilias, marigolds, calliopsis, bachelor's buttons, larkspur, geranium—hardy and semi-hardy garden plants and flowers without number, almost—all these may be depended upon to keep the rockery bright and vivid with blossoms from early June until fall. Hints in regard to plants and flowers for evening and early enjoyment, and for the foliage plants which are quite as satisfactory and delightful as the blossom-bearers, and almost as full of color, often, have been given in this connection from time to time. The thoughtful and flower-loving amateur gardener will experience no difficulty in remembering twenty times more kinds of flowers than the largest rockery will allow him an opportunity of using. Fern rockeries are wonderfully charming, and need no attention, once started, save an occasional watering when the weather is dry.

In building the rockery, do so gradually, stone by stone, sprinkling the earth pretty thickly in and around all the rocks save those which are in the middle of the lowest layer. Have plenty of good, rich earth on the top, and in all the outside crevices. The cool, moist earth of the woods is admirable for ferns, pansies, geraniums, and, in fact, most flowers, when it can be secured. Place the plants and roots in position gently, being careful not to crowd, and make use of seeds or seedlings whenever possible. Allow plenty of opportunity for natural growth and development. Water thoroughly—and gently—after first planting or sowing, then leave the rockery well alone until the growing plants fairly call for attention. And then—but after all, there is little more to be said in regard to the arrangement of a rockery, save that a large amount of pleasure and blossoming may safely be promised, and in return for a moderate amount of trouble and enjoyable labor.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

NOVEL OF MORE THAN PASSING INTEREST AND WORTH.

"The Vicar of St. Luke's," by Sybil Creed, Reveals Unusual Merit Both in Construction and in Characterization — Interesting Study of the Struggle Between Two Factions in a Church—Edward W. Townsend's Latest Book, "Days Like These."

TO find among the myriad of books that each year fare forth one with a merit beyond that of providing a momentary diversion, one that awakens a real interest and stimulates thought along new lines to an activity that lasts long after the book has been laid aside is a pleasure as keen as it is rare. Such a book is "The Vicar of St. Luke's" (Longmans), by Sibyl Creed. It is clever, both in construction and in characterization, but it is in the latter that the writer's strength lies. The events are such as are of vital importance to her men and women, who are made to meet their requirements with a consistency that bespeaks her deep insight into human nature and her knowledge of its expression, as modified by individual temperament, through every shade of emotion.

The inception of the story is a church quarrel between those members who are high church and those who are low. The question as to whether or not there should be candles used in the service brings to a head the strife that has been long smoldering. The meeting in which the matter is discussed and voted upon and the preliminary proceedings of this important occasion form an excellent background for bringing out the characteristics of those persons concerned most in the story, and the author realizes the possibilities of the opportunity she has created and uses it to the best advantage. There is Goring, the vicar, brilliant, gentle, grave, a slave to duty and his conscience, but in which slavery neither policy nor discretion plays any part. There is Bannerman, his junior warden, docile, adoring, unquestioning where his chief is concerned; and there is Docker, the senior warden, shrewd, politic, tolerant, elegant, resourceful as he needs must be with two such associates, having a pretty correct idea of everybody's worth, and by no means an underestimate of his own. He is not, perhaps, the most admirable character in the book, but he is by far the most interesting. These, with the most aristocratic part of the congregation, are high church, and by Goring's eloquence win the day. Then, when all is done, when the battles have been fought and the victory is theirs, Goring is struck with the pettiness, the insignificance of all he has been fighting for, and, guided by his conscience, refuses to use the candles after all. Docker, thinking of those who have been lifted to the topmost pinnacle of enthusiasm, and of their feelings when they find themselves without the leader who has put them there, pleads for conciliatory measures, but Goring has resolved to be frank with them and cannot be moved.

In the meantime another element has come into the life of the vicar. He falls in love—he who has set himself aside for the church and who has taken a voluntary vow of celibacy. On the eve of the day on which he has decided to ask the girl's father for her hand in marriage, that happens which is the beginning of the end. One of his parishioners dying, has left to Goring's care his only daughter. She is a vain, selfish, ignorant girl who at once falls in love with her protector, and when she finds his affections are placed elsewhere she brings against him the most damning accusations. The charge is made publicly, and in that hour of his need only Docker stands by him, but he stands firmly, profanely protesting, until Goring reminds him of his cloth.

This is the first of a series of unfortunate happenings that bring the story to an unhappy end. This, however, does not detract from its interest, for a happy ending would not have been at all in keeping.

Those who have followed the literary work of Edward W. Townsend will find in his latest book, "Days Like These" (Harpers), more of literary merit than in any of its predecessors. "Chimmy Fadden," of course, attained a popularity quite beyond the fortune of most authors; but "A Daughter of the Tenements" and a volume of short stories dealing with New York City gave little more than remote promise of as interesting a novel as this last.

Mr. Townsend has selected a most engrossing theme in taking a model in none too fashionable a dry goods store and endowing her with enormous wealth on the death of her uncle, a contractor. In the education through which she goes in order to enable her to maintain a place in the "best" society of the Atlantic metropolis, and in the description of the various members of "the Four Hundred" with whom she is thrown in contact there are scores of good situations, not one of which seems to have escaped the author. In a day when wealth and fashion are almost the first thought of Americans, a book of this sort must find readers in plenty.

But Mr. Townsend has not been content with writing a merely fashionable novel. His knowledge of the slums, shown in his short stories, enables him to put a host of minor characters in his book—prize fighters, saloonkeepers, desperate politicians, and criminals of other sorts, against which the gilded set stands out with remarkable distinctness. The whole exhibits a charming human sympathy of catholic scope, sufficient to include an entire city, and affording hardly less instruction than amusement to those who will read the lines and between them.

A single fault mars the book, through the author's not having given himself room enough for working out his theme. The numerous interests he depicts spread out through nine-tenths of the work, leaving it an admirable bit of realistic and sympathetic writing. These are contracted in the remaining tenth in order to furnish the necessary dénouement, leaving an impression of undue haste which greatly mars the artistic quality of the story through absolute lack of balance. Though it is nearly 450 pages long, "Days Like These" shows material and ability enough to have held the reader's attention undiminished through another 150 pages, in which a sense of proper symmetry could have been allowed to develop and mature the somewhat multifarious argument. Nine-tenths of the book leaves nothing to be desired in the way of modern sympathetic realism; the final tenth is the oldest and least commendable manner of old-fashioned romanticism.

Too much praise cannot be given Mr. Townsend, however, for permitting his literary powers to mature without rushing into print after the modern manner for the purpose of gathering up every shekel of tribute which so successful a work as "Chimmy Fadden" induced publishers to throw at him. With the practice gained by this most ambitious of his endeavors, and the rational praise which must follow it, he should have encouragement enough to do still better things, his habit of thought entitling him to all the honors which may fall in literature.

Mrs. John Ellsworth Graham has written "The Toltec Savior: A Historic Romance of Ancient Mexico" (Dillingham), in which she has laid her scene at a time long previous to that which was found so engrossing in General Lew Wallace's "The Fair God," yet with something of the same superstition of redemption and happiness behind it. It is to be said that the selection is a wise one, since it endeavors to account for those grandiose and mysterious ruins of America, which are here ascribed to the Toltecs.

The hero is Quetzalcohuatl, represented as a historical character, having been born a Prince among his people, and, later, their King. He sacrifices himself in order to overturn the ancient Toltec belief that the soul dies when the heart is destroyed, and his memory, preserved in a mystical drama annually enacted before the people, is the dominating influence in the book, though he himself has passed away before its pages open. For the rest, the heroine is Kochitl, a beautiful young girl and the inventor of that tremendous drink which is still known and absorbed in Mexico under the name of pulque. Two rival suitors appear for her hand, and it is the struggle of these Toltec notables for her favor which makes up the romantic element of the story.
